Washington, D. C., Jan. 17.—[Special.]—The senate munitions committee came to a probable end today in an explosion on the senate floor, where Senator Gerald P. Nye [Radical, N. D.], chairman of the committee, was denounced with unprecedented fury and senator after senator served notice that not another dollar would be voted "even for the writing of the final report."

With the galleries packed to the eaves and more than 100 members of the house of representatives on the floor, Democratic senators rose to defend the memory of President Woodrow Wilson, whom Senator Nye had accused of "falsifying" with respect to his knowledge of secret European treaties when America entered the war.

Nye Leaves Chamber.

Senate rules were forgotten as the Democrats gave vent to their indignation and impeached the motives, veracity, decency, and honor of Senator Nye.

Not even the late Senator Huey P. Long of Louisiana ever heard such an assault upon his character as that withstood by Senator Nye, and he did not withstand it all.

He left the chamber under the withering blasts of Senator Carter Glass [Dem., Va.], who called him a coward, assailed his charge against President Wilson as "mendacious" and "destitute of decency" and then expressed regret that more could not be said under the senate rules.

"Lest I should infringe the rules which I always obey," the tempestuous little Virginian concluded, "perhaps I had better desist, because what I feel like saying here or anywhere else to the man who thus insults the memory of Woodrow Wilson is something which may not be spoken here, or printed in the newspapers, or uttered by a gentleman."

Glass Splits Hand.

Senator Nye had returned to the chamber by this time and sat low in his chair, with drooping head. The right hand of Senator Glass had been split by the constant pounding of his desk and was covered with blood, so that he could not shake hands with the colleagues who rushed to congratulate him. As he sat down Senator Henry F. Ashurst [Dem., Ariz.] applauded, something that never is done on the senate floor, and the applause spread quickly to the galleries.

Senator Glass is 78 years old, but he spoke with all the vehemence and eloquent scorn that have distinguished his 35 years in congress as he lashed Senator Nye and defended the memory of President Wilson. His mouth curled in contempt as he repeatedly referred to "the senator from Dakota," not dignifying Mr. Nye with the customary distinction between "North" and "South."

Would Like to Cry Coward.

The speech of Senator Glass, who was Woodrow Wilson's secretary of the treasury from December, 1916, to February, 1920, was attended by profound silence after he apologized for "trespassing" upon the time of the senate and moved into the substance of what he had to say with these extraordinary words:

"If it were permissible in the senate to say that any man who would asperse the integrity and veracity of Woodrow Wilson is a coward; if it were permissible to say that his charge is not only malicious but positively mendacious, that I would be glad to say here and elsewhere to any man, whether he be a United States senator or not, because the charge would be not only destitute of decency but it would be such a shocking exhibition as never has hap-

HAUPTMANN NOT GUILTY ALONE, GOVERNOR SAYS

'Railroading' Hinted in Statement.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Trenton, N. J., Jan. 17.—[Special.]—In fighting mood, Gov. Harold G. Hoffman today slashed back at those who criticized yesterday's reprieve of Bruno Richard Hauptmann.

Bitterly bringing an open hint of "railroading" the convicted Lindbergh baby slayer to the chair, the governor said:

"I am worried about the eagerness of some of our law enforcement agencies to bring about the death of this one man so the books may be closed in the thought that another great crime mystery has been successfully solved."

Doubts One Man's Ability.

"I do doubt," he added, "that this crime could have been committed by one man." He expressed doubt also that Hauptmann ever was in the Lindbergh nursery.

Regarding threats of impeachment, the governor had this to say:

"If impeachment is the price that must be paid for daring to follow the dictates of my own conscience, I am ready to pay for it. A good investigation of the Lindbergh case might be a healthy thing. If an investigation is started I shall not run away."

He added that he definitly did "question the truthfulness and mental competency of some of the chief witnesses for the state," and said that the "eagerness" to get Hauptmann safely out of the way was "reflected in the order given to the banks to no longer bother about looking for the balance of the ransom money when approximately $30,000 still is in circulation."

Brings Renewed Search.

The governor's action brought renewed zeal into the search for evidence that Hauptmann had accomplices in the kidnaping.

Amidst the political uproar occasioned by the 30 day reprieve for the German alien who was to have died in the electric chair tonight, Gov. Hoffman said that in due course he would review his reasons for entertaining doubts as to Hauptmann's complete guilt. He challenged his political foes to hold a public investigation of the entire Lindbergh case.

Other developments today included the offer of Dr. John F. "Jafsie" Condon, chief state witness at the trial which resulted in Hauptmann's conviction, to return to the United States if he were wanted. Dr. Condon cabled from Panama to Attorney General David T. Wilentz, who promptly sent back the reply that there was no need for Condon's presence. The attorney general included in his message to Dr. Condon an attack upon the illegal reprieve by Gov. Hoffman as a reflection upon the state, the state's witnesses, the police authorities of the states and the nation who participated in gathering and presenting the evidence.

Hears of "No Evidence."

"The governor has assigned no reason for granting the reprieve," Wilentz informed Condon. "No new evidence has been called to my attention by the governor or defense counsel."

Meanwhile, Hauptmann passed the

'Song of Lark' Is Stilled at Art Institute

BY MARCIA WINN.

The "Song of the Lark" painted by Jules Breton, which was voted one of the most popular pictures in America during A Century of Progress Exposition, is not hanging in the Art Institute of Chicago, as many art patrons believe. Instead it stands in a dark storeroom on the institute's second floor.

This was learned yesterday when an art teacher approached an attendant at the institute and asked where "Song of the Lark" was hung.

"Why, I don't know, lady," the attendant replied. "I don't believe we have it."

"O, yes, you have it," the woman assured him with some asperity. "The original is here. I read that."

"No," replied the attendant. "It's not here."

Appeals to an Official.

The art teacher then repaired to an official of the Art institute.

"Why," she asked, "isn't 'Song of the Lark,' the picture that every school child knows and loves, on display?"

The official smiled deprecatingly. "O," he said, "we just haven't room for it. Mr. Harshe thinks modern art is more important."

Robert B. Harshe, director of the institute, appeared annoyed when asked why the picture was not hanging. He fumbled with the papers in his hand.

"It's not good enough for us," he said finally. "That's why it isn't hanging.

"We have at least 150 pictures which we think are better than 'Song of the Lark,'" Mr. Harshe continued. "It's just a picture of great popular interest which is not a good painting. It is sentimental and sweet, and people like sentimental pictures.

"In a Weak Moment——"

"In a weak moment during the World's Fair we decided that we would show the 'most popular picture in America.' It was voted that, you know, which just shows the low taste of America.

"Why," he continued, warming to his subject, "if this picture was called 'Song of the Mudhen,' it would never appeal to any one. It's just the ideal of the lark, and, so far as I can see, it hasn't even any lark in it.

"As for Jules Breton, he wasn't even a good painter. He was a derivative painter, a follower of Millet. He never painted a good picture.

"No, it's not good enough to hang here. Of course, you realize," Mr. Harshe added hastily, "that this is not my opinion alone, but also that of our trustees."

Mrs. Frank G. Logan, wealthy patron of the institute, whose husband is honorary president, expressed astonishment when informed that "Song of the Lark" was in storage.

"'Song of the Lark' is a beautiful thing and an inspiring thing, and the people should be seeing it," she said indignantly. "Not good enough for us? What about all those modernistic distortions hanging there now?"

MONSTER OR PIPEFISH, HIGHLAND LAKE HAS NO DERTH OF TALL TALES

The almost incredible antics of a water monster in Highland lake, two miles east of the village of Round Lake, in Lake county, are furnishing most of the hot stove conversation in the surrounding countryside.

Hayden Stuhley, a boxer, and Albert Behning of Round Lake have been fishing for the monster through the ice. Yesterday, they reported, they had it hooked, but it got away by snapping a strong wire line. Stuhley said that in its battle for freedom the creature cracked the ice, which is 24 inches thick.

The monster is described as having the head of a horse, the body of a snake, and a tawny mane. It is said to have been sighted in the lake twenty years ago. Henry Kern, assistant state game warden, expressed the belief the animal is an overgrown individual of the Lophobranchiate species—a pipefish.

MAHLON O. WEST, LAWYER, DIES OF HEART DISEASE

Mahlon Ogden West, 36 years old, member of the law firm Cutting, Moore & Sidley, died suddenly late last night at his home, 1547 North Sheridan road, Lake Forest.

Mr. West had been in apparently good health during the evening. He was stricken as he was preparing for bed. Dr. Theodore S. Proxmire, who was summoned, said that death was due to heart disease.

Mr. West was a graduate of Princeton university and the Northwestern university law school, and specialized in corporation law. He is survived by his wife, the former Ruth Elting, daughter of Mrs. Philip Le Fevre Elting; by an infant daughter, Ann; by his mother, Mrs. Frederick T. West, and two sisters, Mrs. Donald McPherson and Mrs. Perry Shepard.

The marriage of Mr. West to Miss Elting in the Fortnightly club was a Chicago society event of July, 1934.

Snow Sweeps City; New Cold Wave in Sight

Heavy snow which swept into Chicago late yesterday afternoon and continued all through the evening is unlikely to end, according to Forecaster J. R. Lloyd, until a blanket at least six inches deep has been spread.

A cold wave, Mr. Lloyd added, will move into the city in the wake of the storm.

"The snow probably will continue through the morning," he added, "and will be drifted by strong winds from an easterly direction. In the afternoon, with a shift of wind to the northwest, the temperature will drop. I look for 10 above in the evening and a mark of zero or lower Sunday morning."

Many Highways Blocked.

Over wide areas in Missouri, Wisconsin, Michigan, and Ohio the snow was already drifted deeply last night. In Indiana the snow early turned to sleet and covered the highways with ice. In some sections roads were blocked. Eight inches of snow had fallen at Newark, O., before midnight. In southern Michigan the fall was heavy.

Between Kenosha and Racine, Wis., 66 automobiles were reported stalled in drifts four feet deep. Plane service was tied up in the Chicago area. The winds that accompanied the snow whipped up huge waves on Lake Michigan and piled ice packs in the harbors. Off Kenosha, unable to land on account of the ice, was the fishing tug Cheerio with a crew of four. The vessel, in the opinion of coast guards, would be able to ride out the storm.

Some points in Indiana and Ohio reported that thunder and lightning occurred during the snowstorm.

Workers to Clear Streets.

Joseph J. Butler, superintendent of streets in Chicago, announced that preparations were made yesterday afternoon to handle difficulties that might grow out of the predicted heavy snowfall.

"All WPA and PWA workers who can be spared from their regular employment will be put to work cleaning the streets," he said. "They will work first in the loop and then in the outlying sections."

The Chicago Motor club issued a bulletin warning its members that Illinois roads might be blockaded.

The surface lines and the Chicago Motor Coach company had their snow plows and sweepers ready to clear the streets as soon as it became apparent such action was necessary.

KIPLING, GREAT BRITISH WRITER, IS DEAD AT 70

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 18.—[Saturday.]—Rudyard Kipling, poet and story teller, who put the British empire on the map in verse and prose, lost his great battle for life early this morning. He was 70 years of age.

Since Monday Kipling had fought against the effects of an operation for perforated ulcer of the stomach, and at a late hour last night, though bulletins admitted his condition was extremely critical, it was emphasized that his case "must not be regarded as hopeless."

This was taken as a sign that the poet might eventually pull through. But at 12:10 a. m. the end came with dramatic suddenness.

Wife and Daughter at Side.

Mrs. Kipling, who is the granddaughter of the late Joseph N. Balestier, prominent member of the Chicago bar between 1835 and 1841, was at the bedside with her daughter, Mrs. Bambridge, and the surgeon, A. E. Webb Johnson, who performed the operation. Mrs. Kipling and the daughter had been at the hospital since 1 a. m. Friday.

During the day oxygen and infusions were used in an effort to keep up Kipling's strength and a special medical and nursing staf was in constant attendance to note the slightest change in his condition.

Shortly before midnight Mrs. Kipling and Mrs. Bambridge were told the end seemed near. They hurried to his bedside, but the poet did not speak before he died, although he appeared to recognize his wife and daughter.

WROTE IN SPIRIT OF AGE

Rudyard Kipling in his work represented the spirit of his age and race. He was considered best in his work about the India of the native—in "Soldiers Three," "The Gadsbys," "The Man Who Would Be King," "Without Benefit of Clergy," and especially in "Kim," looked upon as his greatest achievement, a great panorama of the mystery and vastness of India.

Vigor, audacity, and efficiency appealed most to him and those were his personal and stylistic characteristics. He was a master of style, with an unerring sense of the right word.

During the last quarter century he had not written so much or so well, but he had remained a figure not only in literature but also as propagandist and even, in a minor way, a politician.

He often and vehemently gave Great Britain advice on the subjects of the colonies, on expansion, on the Boer war, against Canadian reciprocity, on the Irish question, on woman suffrage.

Spends Last Years in Sussex.

Though his last few years were dull in comparison to his years of literary creation, Kipling became his old Tory self on occasional visits to the Burwash parish council, where he made stormy defenses of his beloved imperialism before his Sussex neighbors.

Last July he published a poem, "The King and the Sea," in honor of

TAKES TURN FOR WORSE AS COLD AFFECTS HEART

Cause for Disquiet, Doctors Report.

BULLETIN.

[Copyright, 1936, By the Associated Press.]

SANDRINGHAM, England, Jan. 18 (Saturday).—Grave anxiety arose today over the condition of King George after a heart weakness developed, and a new physician extraordinary was called to the royal country estate.

The sovereign passed a quiet night, and today it was reported there was no change in his condition.

An announcement that Sir Maurice A. Cassidy, one of the three physicians extraordinary to the king, had been called to Sandringham, however, followed the report that his majesty's condition was unchanged.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
(Picture on Back Page.)

LONDON, Jan. 18 [Saturday.]—King George, 70 years old, monarch of the British empire, who has been suffering from bronchial catarrh at his country palace at Sandringham, Norfolk, was menaced by cardiac complications today. Physicians said they are alarmed about his condition.

A bulletin issued at Sandringham shortly after 11 o'clock last night stated:

"The bronchial catarrh from which his majesty the king is suffering is not severe, but there have appeared signs of cardiac weakness which must be regarded with some disquiet."

The bulletin was signed by three doctors, Frederic Willans, Sir Stanley Hewett, and Lord Dawson of Penn.

Takes Turn for Worse.

Shortly after midnight it was reported the illness had taken a turn for the worse and it was learned the king's medical advisers had decided the administration of oxygen would be advisable. Two trained nurses have arrived at Sandringham, and oxygen apparatus was rushed from London last night.

Earlier yesterday it was announced that the king was suffering from a cold, but it was not then regarded as serious. It was added that he is remaining indoors a few days as a precautionary measure owing to the cold weather. His indisposition, however, was apparently of such a nature that his heart was affected and later a full medical council was summoned to consider developments.

Lord Dawson, who has attended the king since the first symptoms appeared, remained at Sandringham throughout the night with Sir Stanley Hewett.

Queen and Two Sons Present.

The king has around him at Sandringham Queen Mary, the prince of Wales, and the duke of York, his eldest two sons, and two grandchildren, Princess Elizabeth and Princess Margaret Rose. The prince of Wales arrived last evening. The duke of York and his daughters have been at Sandringham since Christmas.

The royal family retired early. A strong force of police was on duty at the lodge gates all day yesterday and until late at night. They stopped all unauthorized persons from entering the drive or collecting around the gate. No inquiries were answered either at the lodge or by officials in the house.

Had Catarrh Last June.

The king had an attack of bronchial catarrh last June when he was ordered to take a two weeks' rest. His latest attack has taken the nation by surprise, though his health has never been the same since his grave illness in the fall of 1928 which so nearly cost him his life and necessitated a hurried recall of the prince of Wales, who was then traveling in Africa.

Then, also, it is being recalled tonight, his illness began as a cold and developed into a congestion of the lungs and pleurisy. His recovery was greeted at the time as a miracle of medical science.

Since his last illness the king's health has been guarded with the greatest care. He was not allowed to attend outdoor functions unless the weather was favorable and on Nov. 11 was not present at the Armialice day ceremony at the Whitehall cenotaph because of a slight fog.

Strain of State Duties Tells.

Court circles tonight emphasize the king's illness is not only the result of a sudden cold and the present severe weather. It is pointed out that the king for seven years has carried on the duties of state, and despite his recovery from the 1928 illness it was inevitable that the strain should remain.

The king, in the opinion of those in daily contact with him, came through the silver jubilee celebrations well but last month suffered great grief in the death of his sister, Princess Victoria. This, it is declared, had an inevitably depressing effect on his spirits.

Three members of the royal family are ill now. The other two are the duchess of York, who is recovering from an attack of influenzal pneumonia, and the duke of Gloucester, third son of the king, who is confined to his room in Buckingham palace with a sore throat.

BENNETT SERIOUSLY ILL

New York, Jan. 17.—[Special.]—Richard Bennett, veteran actor and father of Barbara, Constance, and Joan Bennett, was in a serious condition today in Harbor hospital, suffering from what is believed to be an incurable malady.

Mr. Bennett, 65, fell gravely ill last Saturday after his performance in "Winterset" at the Martin Beck theater. He was taken to his apartment in the Hotel Whitby and later to the hospital.

His daughter, Barbara, wife of Morton Downey, and Mr. Downey have been with him much of the time since then.

Mr. Bennett's career has lifted him from an humble start in Chicago to stardom on Broadway.

FEAR FOR ACTRESS

Hollywood, Cal., Jan. 17.—(AP)—Pauline Frederick, for years a star of the stage and screen, was reported in a critical condition tonight at the Cedars of Lebanon hospital.

The actress underwent an operation for an intestinal obstruction late last night, said Dr. H. O. Dennis.

Miss Frederick, who has been married five times, was born in Boston in 1885, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard O. Libby. She began her career on the stage in 1902.

From 1915 to 1923 she starred in motion pictures. She became famous for her rôles in "The Eternal City," "Zaza," and "Madame X." Recently she has appeared on the stage and in pictures in a minor rôle. One of her successful stage rôles was in "The Fourth Estate."

Her fifth husband, Col. Joseph A. Marmon, United States army, died during the past year.

Previously she had been married to Frank A. Andrews, New York architect; Willard Mack, playwright; Dr. Charles Rutherford, of Seattle, and Hugh C. Leighton, hotel man.

FORD ILL WITH COLD

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 17.—[Special.]—A cold confined Henry Ford to his home today. Although his illness is not serious, his physician ordered him to rest for a week or two as a precautionary measure, his office said.

M'ADOO FORCES CAPTURE STATE PARTY CONTROL

Los Angeles, Jan. 17.—(AP)—"Right wing" forces of United States Senator William G. McAdoo captured control of a Democratic state central committee meeting tonight and limited it solely to an endorsement of President Roosevelt's candidacy for reëlection.

The meeting adopted a resolution asking the President to select his own California delegation to the Democratic national convention. This resolution was presented in a love feast atmosphere by Committee Chairman Culbert L. Olson, state senator, loser in a proxy battle with McAdoo forces.

There were cries of "Sell out" and "Wait until tomorrow" after Olson presented the resolution, which omitted any reference to delegation policies supporting the state platform which he mentioned, in calling the meeting.

Olson lost control of the meeting by six votes because of big blocks of proxies held by supporters of Senator McAdoo.

RULES FILM PLAY 'LETTIE LYNTON' IS PLAGIARISM

New York, Jan. 17.—[Special.]—The United States Circuit Court of Appeals, reversing a decision handed down by Federal Judge John M. Woolsey in 1934, decided today that the motion picture "Lettie Lynton" had been based on the play "Dishonored Lady," written by Mrs. Margaret Ayer Barnes and Edward Sheldon.

The decision is one of the few handed down in this district in years favoring a plaintif in a plagiarism action. The court granted an injunction against the picture, a decree for damages to be determined by an accounting, and counsel fees.

Defendants in the action are the Metro-Goldwyn Pictures corporation, Metro-Goldwyn Distributing corporation, Loew's, Inc., and the Colver Export corporation.

An opinion written by Judge Learned Hand said that a drama could be pirated without having its dialogue borrowed. If this were not so, it was stated, there could be no piracy of pantomime, yet no one would deny that pantomime is drama.

FALLS TO DEATH AT HOSPITAL.

Solomon Woodring, 75 years old, 2506 North Clark street, leaped or fell to his death last night from a window on the sixth floor of the County hospital. Woodring was admitted to the hospital Jan. 13, suffering from a heart ailment.

15 DAUNTLESS POLICE SUCCOR A FAIR MAIDEN

Then Find Out What It's All About.

Fifteen policemen from the Town Hall station drove up cautiously in three squad cars last evening to the building at 3822 Wilton avenue. Armed with revolvers and rifles, a dozen of the men surrounded the building, guarding every entrance and the hallways, while the other three, headed by Sergt. Michael Ahern, examined the mail boxes in the vestibule.

They found the name they were looking for—"Evans"—and went to the apartment on the first floor. Weapon drawn, Sergt. Ahern rang the bell and a man came to the door. In response to questions he identified himself as Milton Evans and said he was employed in the Cook county forest preserve and was a Democratic precinct captain.

"Who else is inside?" the police inquired.

"Only my family," Evans replied.

The Missive of Distress.

"Then what about this?" Ahern asked, and handed Evans an envelope. On the envelope was scrawled "To the Police" and inside was a note reading: "Dear Police: Come at once. Address, 3822 Wilton avenue. Name, Barbara Evans."

The letter was received in the mail at the detective bureau yesterday. Because of the scrawled writing, seemingly done under great stress, the police had deduced that the writer was possibly held prisoner. The detective bureau had notified the Town Hall police and the fifteen policemen were sent out in the belief there would be trouble.

Evans puzzled over the note, which was written on the back of a grocery order slip.

"The only Barbara Evans here is my daughter," he said to the police. "Come in."

The Maiden Herself Is Found.

The police entered and Barbara Evans, 7 years old, and her brother, Jack, 5 years old, bounded forward excitedly.

"I did it!" the girl cried. "I did it!"

"You did what?" her father demanded.

"I wrote that," she smiled at the policemen. "I wrote it and then I took an envelope from a letter mama got and I crossed out her name and I wrote 'To the police' and I found a stamp and I sent Jack out to mail it and he did. Didn't you, Jack?"

Jack nodded agreement.

"But why did you do it?" Sergt. Ahern wanted to know.

"Why, can't you see?" Barbara asked. "We haven't got a telephone or I would have called you. It's all because of that boy next door. I don't get along with him and I wanted the police to punish him."

FALL FATAL TO WIDOW, 75.

Mrs. Rose Donarsky, 72 years old, 3823 North Menard avenue, a widow, died in St. Mary's hospital last night of injuries received in a fall on Wednesday.

SENATE GETS BILL TO CURB POWER OF U. S. SUPREME COURT

Washington, D. C., Jan. 17.—(AP)—Senator Norbeck of South Dakota today introduced a bill in the senate which would provide that "no act of the congress shall be held unconstitutional and void by the Supreme court without the concurrence of seven or more of the justices in the finding or decision of the court."

The measure was referred to the judiciary committee.

Almost simultaneously a bill proposing to increase the number of Supreme court justices from nine to eleven was introduced by Representative Lundeen of Minnesota.

"New blood," Lundeen said in a statement, "will mean a more liberal outlook on constitutional questions."

HAUPTMANN NOT GUILTY ALONE, GOVERNOR HOLDS

"Railroading" Hinted in Slashing Answer.

day which was to have been his last in an exceedingly cheerful mood, according to the prison warden. The official reprieve was read to him and he remarked in his deep voice: "That is good."

Gov. Hoffman declared that demands for his impeachment in several New Jersey newspapers were "typical of the editorial abuse I have received since November, 1934, when I committed the unpardonable sin of being elected, against the predictions of these newspapers."

"I have never expressed an opinion upon the guilt or innocence of Hauptmann," he said. "I do, however, share with hundreds of thousands of our people the doubt as to the value of the evidence that placed him in the Lindbergh nursery on the night of the crime; I do wonder what part passion and prejudice played in the conviction of a man who was previously tried and convicted in the columns of many of our newspapers.

Stands Pat on Reprieve.

"I make no apology for granting a reprieve in this case. During this period we may calmly consider some of the baffling phases of the crime and the subsequent trial of Hauptmann. I intend to direct the state police to continue their search for any other person or persons involved in the crime."

Hauptmann's firm refusal to change the story he told at the trial had evidently impressed the governor. He referred to the offer of a New York newspaper to pay $75,000, to be left to Hauptmann's widow and his child, for an exclusive confession. The offer was rejected. Likewise when Hauptmann was told that his only chance to save his life was to go before the board of pardons, admit his guilt, and throw himself upon the board's mercy, he refused, the governor said.

"Col. Lindbergh, Col. Schwarzkopf, and many others have repeatedly expressed the opinion that the crime was perpetrated by more than one person, and there is no justification now for abandoning that belief.

Convict Still in Prison.

"In the meantime Hauptmann is not being turned loose. He will remain safely in custody in the deathhouse in the New Jersey state prison. In order to set at rest many rumors concerning his conduct, may I say that, to the best of my knowledge, he has made no confession and has offered to make none.

"I am moved by no maudlin sentiment in this matter. I am the father of three children; I look upon kidnaping as the most dastardly of crimes, and I share the horrors that struck the hearts of people throughout the world after the murder of the Lindbergh baby.

"I am interested in the preservation of that thing we have rather proudly called 'Jersey justice,' and I hope that real and full justice will finally be done in this case. A stay of a comparatively few days cannot defeat that end.

"Impeachment proceedings represent only one of the threats leveled at me if I elected to follow my own sense of duty in this matter. I do not fear them, but I ask that the charges be heard in the halls of the legislature, as the constitution provides, and not in the biased editorial columns of New Jersey newspapers."

Governor's Life Threatened.

The intense excitement over the governor's action was reflected in nearly a dozen threats on his life contained today in his mail. It was learned that Attorney General Wilentz had also received threatening letters and so had Prosecutor Anthony Hauck Jr.

More rumors were in circulation today. A man and a woman were about to be arrested; reports of "confessions" came in from all over the country. But each such story was promptly discredited. Gov. Hoffman's statement indicated that it was more his disbelief in the credibility of some of the state's witnesses than any actual new evidence which had caused him to grant the reprieve.

Check Up on Akron Boy.

In Akron, O., officials were investigating a 5 year old boy, although they placed little faith in claims of a Barberton woman that he might be the Lindbergh baby.

The department of justice was asked to check records and referred the request to the New Jersey state police.

The boy was located in a home on the outskirts of Akron by a private detective, formerly a member of the Trenton police department, and by sheriff's deputies.

Silverstein said, "There has never been positive identification of the Lindbergh baby's body. I was present at the time Charles Lindbergh viewed the remains and he stayed only half a minute. This case should be checked completely."

"Baby Hadn't Curly Hair."

The woman who gave the first reports claimed to know all about the Lindbergh plot. She said Mrs. Andrew Dolfen, in whose home the child is living, had been a friend of Violet Sharp, Lindbergh maid who committed suicide. Mrs. Dolfen died two years ago.

Dolfen has expressed doubts that the child is his.

"When my child was a baby I was summoned from a long trucking trip to St. Louis with word that he was ill," he said today. "When I got home this boy was not ill and did not resemble my baby.

"I said to my wife, 'This is not our child; ours did not have curly hair.'"

"Later I noticed that my wife had plenty of money. I saw $600 in $20 bills at one time. She could not explain to me where she got it."

Mrs. Hauptmann and her child returned to New York. The defense lawyers took a day off. Trenton returned to something like its ordinary placidity. The execution date is now at least sixty days distant. The earliest date possible for the execution is March 16, the latest April 11.

AUTHOR OF STRANGE LINDBERGH 'CLEW' REMAINS IN HIS CELL

Stephen Spitz, 52 years old, Bridewell prisoner serving a sentence for passing worthless checks, who told a weird story of participating in a Lindbergh ransom money deal, remained a prisoner last night when efforts of his attorney to free him on a pauper's writ during the day were fruitless. Spitz's actual sentence expired yesterday, but he still must serve out a $1,000 fine.

Municipal Judge J. William Brooks denied Bernard Finnigan, Spitz's attorney, a hearing on the pauper's petition because the attorney failed to properly notify the state's attorney of the pending action. The hearing was continued until Monday.

Spitz told investigators that he bought some of the Lindbergh ransom money. He later amplified this statement to say that he could, if taken east, give Gov. Hoffman of New Jersey information on a hidden cache of the bills.

Alex Schwartz, owner of a tavern at 1567 North Halsted street, told investigators last night that Spitz approached him more than a year ago and asked permission to have a trunk containing $1,500 shipped to the tavern owner's home at 910 Grace street. Schwartz said he refused permission. He said that he believed Spitz's story was false.

COURT SLAYER SWAYS JURY TO SANITY VERDICT

Finding Causes Uproar; Murder Trial Next.

A jury before Chief Justice Denis J. Normoyle of the Criminal court yesterday found John W. Keogh sane, after as uproarious a hearing as the Criminal court has seen in many a day. The verdict confuted and confused some of the best minds in Cook county on the subject of insanity.

They have held, since Keogh killed Attorney Christopher G. Kinney in the courtroom of Circuit Judge John Prystalski and took three shots at the judge, that Keogh is a victim of insanity known as paranoia, characterized in his case by a mania on the subject of legislative reapportionment in Illinois.

Pursues Mania to Win Verdict.

Keogh, who is 72 years old, won his own verdict by a forty-five minute speech to the jury on his favorite topic, reapportionment. He did not mention his own mental condition.

The jury, which had previously heard Dr. Harry R. Hoffman, director of the Criminal court behavior clinic, testify that Keogh is insane and should be incarcerated, deliberated twenty minutes and found him sane.

Judge Normoyle, Dr. Hoffman and attorneys in the case, who included two representatives of Keogh, were dumfounded at the verdict. Keogh burst into a roar of laughter, in which some of the spectators joined. One of the latter remarked to Judge Normoyle:

"Can we file a petition now to try the jury?"

Chief Justice Bewildered.

"Well, I've seen it happen before," replied the judge, shaking his head in bewilderment.

As the result of the sanity verdict it will be necessary to try Keogh for the murder of Attorney Kinney. He will be arraigned Monday on an indictment returned Thursday. In the course of his remarks in court he announced that he would plead self-defense.

The hearing yesterday started out as a routine matter. Dr. Hoffman filed with the court a report on his examination of Keogh, stating that the prisoner was in a paranoiac state as a result of cerebral arterio-sclerosis [hardening of the arteries in the brain], that his condition would become progressively worse, that no recovery is possible, and that he should be committed to an institution.

The Unfolding of the Drama.

Judge Normoyle ordered a jury empaneled. The procedure was informal. Keogh was led into the courtroom, closely guarded by five bailiffs. Attorney Albert S. Long was present, representing Keogh's daughter, Mrs. Ruth Dickinson of Los Angeles. Public Defender Benjamin Bachrach was appointed to represent Keogh. Assistant State's Attorney Charles S. Dougherty was the prosecutor.

The only witness called was Dr. Hoffman, although Dr. Francis Garty, medical director of the Cook county psychopathic hospital, had also examined Keogh and pronounced him insane. Dr. Hoffman read his report. He added that Keogh is a victim of delusional insanity, suffering from delusions of persecution. Judge Normoyle asked if any one wished to question Dr. Hoffman further.

"Not I, your honor," replied Dougherty.

"Nor I," said Attorney Long.

"Nor I," said Defender Bachrach.

Keogh Objects Lustily.

"I object," roared Keogh from the midst of his bailiffs. "I am John W. Keogh, the defendant here. I object to this procedure. It is incompetent. I have not even been read the indictment nor have I been given a chance to plead not guilty. I am going to plead self-defense. I will not allow myself to be put in the position of a yellow dog."

Bachrach and Long attempted to quiet Keogh, but Judge Normoyle offered to read the indictment. He started to do so.

"May I come closer to the court?" asked Keogh.

Recalling the reason why Keogh was before him, Judge Normoyle squirmed.

"I'll talk louder," he promised.

Now, About Reapportionment.

The murder indictment read, Keogh demanded permission to question Dr. Hoffman. He asked only one question.

"Doctor," he said, "didn't I tell you about reapportionment?"

Dr. Hoffman admitted that he had. At that Keogh turned to the jurors and began to tell them about reapportionment. The attorneys objected. Judge Normoyle said that Keogh might talk for 15 minutes. He talked 30, and finally for 45 before he was told to stop.

Some of his remarks drew laughter in the courtroom, as when Judge Normoyle asked him if he was a member of the bar.

Fires Verbal Blast at Bar.

"No, but I'm a lawyer, within limits," replied Keogh. "And there are a lot of members of the bar who aren't lawyers."

Keogh described the numerous lawsuits which he has filed in futile attempts to force the legislature to redistrict state senatorial districts, which have not been reapportioned in Illinois since 1901.

"But the judges ducked," he said.

"What do you mean by that?" asked Judge Normoyle, recalling Judge Prystalski's dive beneath his bench on Monday to escape Keogh's bullets.

"One of them ducked real good," replied Keogh with a smile. "The others just ducked the issue."

Fayette H. Lawson, 4604 North Damen avenue, was foreman of the jury. The other members were William H. McCann, 201 East Superior street; Ernest C. Kruschs, 4631 Walton street; George M. Johnson, 5450 Belmont avenue; Louis G. Leonard, 1553 Hollywood avenue; Jack Molfese, 1655 North McVicker avenue; Louis W. G. Tennert, 4043 [illegible] street; James Lappen, 3722 Windsor avenue; Jeremiah Reidy, 8106 Langley avenue; Bruce J. Croskin, 2800 Harrison street, and Alex Hendleman, 1742 Haddon court.

Carter H. Harrison, collector of internal revenue, yesterday filed a lien for $10,836 against Keogh in the United States District court, charging failure to pay income taxes in 1931, 1932 and 1933.

In one of his reapportionment actions, Keogh refused to pay his income taxes for previous years, asserting that the government lacked power to collect them because it had failed to enforce what he asserted were provisions in the federal constitution which would have made reapportionment mandatory.

"GREY BONNET" DITTY RESULTS IN U. S. COURT SUIT

New York, Jan. 17.—(AP)—"Put On Your Old Grey Bonnet," lilting ballad which went-to-town on the piano in the parlor just after the turn of the century, went to federal court today.

It was one of the pieces involved in four suits for $5,000 each filed by music publishers against radio stations.

Remick Music corporation asked $5,000 from the National Broadcasting company for use of the Bonnet selection. M. Witmark & Sons sued the Marcus Loew Booking agency, Schenley Products Co., Inc., and William H. Rankin company on alleged broadcast of "I Like Mountain Music," and asked a similar sum from the Knickerbocker Broadcasting Co., Inc., for a rendition it says a soloist gave of the same song on Jan. 3.

Harms, Inc., sued the Columbia Broadcasting System, Inc., for what it said was a New Year's presentation of "I Get a Kick Out of You."

LINER CHEROKEE HITS FREIGHTER IN RIVER AT JACKSONVILLE, FLA.

Jacksonville, Fla., Jan. 17. — (AP) — The passenger liner Cherokee rammed the scrap iron laden British freighter Welcombe in an enveloping fog on the St. Johns river tonight, but nobody on either ship was hurt.

The Cherokee, with 121 passengers and a crew of about 100 aboard, veered hard aside in an effort to miss the Welcombe, riding at anchor in the river, and failed.

Crashing into the freighter, the passenger ship ripped the Welcombe's hull open and then ran aground.

Its whistle still blowing, a warning struck up when the 5,896 ton Cherokee loomed out of the fog, the Welcombe drawing 26 feet of water settled four feet deeper and rested on the river bed. The British ship's superstructure and crew accommodations for 45 men remained above water.

Among 121 passengers of the Clyde liner, outbound for Charleston and New York, were 90 newsboys from Brooklyn, N. Y., winners of a sea trip.

Uses Dishpan for Alarm; Warns School It's Afire

La Salle, Ill., Jan. 17.—[Special.]—Using a dishpan instead of the primeval tom tom but getting the same results, a housewife in Seatonville, Ill., sounded an alarm when icy walks prevented her from hurrying to the local school to warn officials and pupils that the building was afire. Students were marched to safety as firemen extinguished a roof blaze.

ALIENISTS CLASH OVER SANITY OF SLAYER OF BABY

Newburgh, N. Y., Jan. 17.—[Special.]—Four psychiatrists clashed today while Mrs. Dorothy Sherwood, charged with murdering her baby, waited to see whether their words might save her from the electric chair.

It was the last stand in the trial of the young widow, former Salvation Army girl and burlesque dancer, and upon its outcome the jury must determine whether she was sane or insane when last Aug. 20, in Moodna creek, off Caesar's lane, she drowned her 2 year old son, James.

Two witnesses for the defense have said flatly that when she held the baby under water almost half an hour in a shallow little pool she was insane. Two others were called today by the state to say that when she did—as she admits—she was sane.

TRUCK CRANKED IN GEAR; WOMAN ON WALK KILLED

Mrs. Ella Phillips, 62 years old, 1801 South Lawndale avenue, died in the Mount Sinai hospital last night of injuries received Wednesday when she was struck by a truck in front of 3654 West 16th street. The driver of the truck, John Drobny, 30 years old, 1326 South Springfield avenue, was cranking it without realizing it was in gear, and Mrs. Phillips was hit when the truck suddenly shot onto the sidewalk. Drobny was uninjured.

A verdict of manslaughter was returned yesterday by the coroner's jury investigating the death of Dr. Augustine Gibbons, 58 years old, 8123 South Elizabeth street, an employé in the county treasurer's office. He was formerly assistant state veterinarian. Dr. Gibbons died in the Woodlawn hospital Thursday of injuries incurred on Dec. 31 when struck by a hit and run automobile at 35th and Loomis streets.

At 4 p. m. yesterday 55 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1, according to the coroner's office. In the same period 47 were killed and 674 injured within the Chicago city limits.

Ether Fumes Start Blaze in Drug Room of Hospital

Fire started in a drug room at the county hospital yesterday as J. C. Lesko, a pharmacist, was transferring ether from a five gallon tin to operating room containers with a hand pump. Patients in nearby wards were moved away as a precaution, but firemen put out the blaze before it reached other cans of ether stored in the room. Friction in the hand pump is believed to have ignited fumes of the ether.

NYE DENOUNCED AS COWARD FOR WILSON ATTACK

Glass Defends Memory of President.

pened in the 35 years I have served in the congress of the United States."

The attacks on Senator Nye were not confined to his charge that President Wilson was a falsifier. He was accused of exploiting his position as chairman of the munitions committee for his political enhancement, for the sake of newspaper headlines, and for his personal profit.

Senator Tom Connally [Dem., Tex.] after scornful reference to Nye's "war profits" bills, demanded to know how much Nye had made in "peace profits" as a "chautauqua lecturer exploiting himself as chairman of the munitions committee." When Nye admitted that he had received remuneration for some of his speeches and offered to inform the senate of the exact amount, Connally demanded that he do so and inform the internal revenue service as well.

The debate in the senate yesterday had disclosed that the munitions committee was supplied with certain assistance by the Works Progress administration in New York City.

Spend New York's Money.

In replying to attacks upon himself by Senator Connally and others today Senator Nye explained that the WPA with the emergency relief organization of New York, had appropriated $80,000 of relief funds for a "white collar project" and supplied the committee with 49 assistants, including lawyers, engineers, investigators and stenographers. Of this amount, he said, $58,000 had been spent, including $23,000 put up by the city of New York.

When Senator Connally referred to this, Majority Leader Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas, who had not heard Senator Nye, leaped to his feet, demanding to know whether Senator Connally was speaking seriously.

"That is one of the most astonishing statements I ever heard in this senate," Robinson declared. "I am amazed to learn that funds appropriated for the relief of the distressed should be used by a committee of this senate and the senate put in the position of going on relief. It is a humiliation and disgrace to the senate of the United States. I trust we haven't descended to the level where we have to use funds appropriated for the relief of the hungry."

Senator James F. Byrnes [Dem., S. C.], chairman of the committee on audit and control, pointed out that the munitions committee has spent $124,600 of the $125,000 appropriated from the senate's funds, in addition to the $58,000 of relief funds, and has only $400 left. He declared that Senator Nye, in asking for the last appropriation of $50,000, assured the audit committee that this would be enough to complete the investigation, including the estimated cost of $5,000 for the preparation of the final report.

Senator Nye, however, told the senate that the committee had scheduled fifteen more days of hearings and would be unable, without further funds, to place important documents in the record and prepare its final report. He did not request a specific amount, but it was learned that he wants $10,000 and that the committee already has a deficit of $3,000 for clerical hire and stenographic reporting. Thus it appeared, from the overwhelming Democratic objection to a further appropriation, that the muninitions investigation is at an end.

J. P. Morgan and his principal partners, who were under investigation when Senator Nye made his charge against President Wilson, are scheduled to return next Thursday, but the resumption of the hearing will depend upon further developments.

"No Apologies" for Charges.

Senator Nye declared, in his speech setting off today's fireworks, that he had "no apologies to offer for any comment I have made or any course taken by the munitions committee." He referred to Senator Connally as "the Goliath of Texas"—inviting Connally's retort, "the little David of North Dakota"—and termed yesterday's "eruption" a "flow, flow, flow of blatant, bubbling gutter English." He read the transcript of his remarks in the committee, wherein he said both President Wilson and Secretary of State Robert Lansing "falsified" as to their knowledge of the secret treaties, and added:

"To have spoken thus appears to have marked me in the mind of the senator from Texas as the inhabitant of low house."

Nye then read one by one the documents on which he based his conclusion that President Wilson and Secretary Lansing were falsifiers when they said they knew nothing of the secret treaties prior to the Paris peace conference.

Reads Page's 1915 Letter.

One of the letters was from Ambassador Walter Hines Page at London, who wrote to Lansing on May 8, 1915, concerning confidential information that Italy had been offered certain Austrian territory if she would come into the war.

"Does this make our ambassador an inmate of a low house?" Nye asked.

He quoted Thomas Nelson Page, ambassador to Italy, writing of treaties for the disposition of territory between Italy and Russia early in 1917, and then read from the "intimate papers of Col. House," by Prof. Charles Seymour. Prof. Seymour, custodian of the house papers, stated definitly that Wilson knew of the treaties when America entered the war. Others quoted in support of Nye's contention were Secretary Lansing, Col. House, David Lloyd George and Arthur Balfour.

He referred to a secret document put with Lansing by Balfour, in April, 1917, saying the committee had taken cognizance of this, and finally passed around for senatorial inspection an excerpt from Lansing's day book. This was obtained confidentially from the library of congress.

"If the senator [Connally] can read that and conclude that Lansing did not falsify, I fail to see what could be done to prove the case," Nye remarked.

"Will the senator repeat here on the senate floor that Wilson and Lansing falsified?" Connally demanded.

"I do, without malice," Nye replied.

Evidence Termed Hearsay.

Senator Glass based his reply to Senator Nye largely upon the contention that the evidence against President Wilson was secondhand and hearsay and that question of the secret treaties was no concern of America when she entered the war. He pronounced the name of Balfour sneeringly as "Balfower," and ridiculed the idea that J. P. Morgan & Co. forced us into the war.

"When the question is reduced to its last analysis what do we find?" Senator Glass asked. "When, may I ask, was the senator from Dakota transferred from the room which the senator from Texas gave to him [the low house] to the British embassy? When did his intimacy with Mr. Balfour become so great as to warant his standing here and saying, because Mr. Balfour thought he said something to President Wilson, that his thought, his supposition, is to be taken as a verity and Woodrow Wilson is to be charged with falsification? Why, I would accept the word of Woodrow Wilson rather than that of Balfour and Seymour and the senator from Dakota put together.

Denies Morgan Influence.

"What a subtle and mean attempt to have it appear that Woodrow Wilson was compelled by the house of Morgan to drag this nation into the world war and to sacrifice the lives of our boys. No one ever associated with Woodrow Wilson, no one who ever had any access to the man's thoughts, would ever have the audacity to suggest that his sympathies were with the great banking interests of this country and that he took us into the war to save the paltry dollars of the Wall street interests.

"And yet, Mr. President, those who have noted the newspaper accounts of this investigation have seen question after question asked, the plain implication of which was that the house of Morgan influenced Woodrow Wilson to alter his policy of neutrality and to precipitate this country into war.

"I resent it as every American citizen who knew Woodrow Wilson would resent it as an infamous libel, whether suggested or whether directly made.

Congress Declared War.

"Woodrow Wilson did not declare war. The constitution confides that business exclusively to the congress of the United States. The President came before the congress and stated his reasons why there should be a declaration, and the congress responded and the country responded with applause and appreciation of the manhood of their President.

"That approval and that applause was different from the applause that greeted the sinking of the Lusitania, and it now would be appropriate for the senator from North Dakota to offer for the consideration of the senate a resolution of apology to Germany for our declaration of war.

"From time to time it has been suggested in the newspapers that the members of this committee were going to present to the country shocking revelations. It remained until the day before yesterday to present anything of a shocking nature, and that was the unspeakable accusation against a dead President, dirt dauding the sepulchre of Woodrow Wilson.

"What has been presented, what of any imperative nature has been disclosed, that was not already known; what that is relevant to this discussion and to this investigation?

Loans Known to All.

"Every intelligent American citizen knows that the banking interests of this country were loaning large sums of money to the allies; and why not? We were selling the warring nations our cotton. We were selling them our wheat. We were selling them our produce of every description, both the allies and the central powers so far as delivery could be made. Why should we not have sold them our credit?

"Why should we have shut down our industries? Why should we have refused to the producing farmers of this country the right to sell the products of their farms? And why should we have prevented, if we could have prevented, the banking interests from selling their credit abroad?

"Everybody who came in contact with the then president of the United States knows perfectly well that he wanted to be neutral. To some of us he was vastly too neutral, and was bitterly assailed by men of the type of Theodore Roosevelt and others for not taking this country into war two years before we entered war. There were millions of American citizens with boys whose lives would be risked who felt the same way about it.

"Suppose there were secret treaties—and there were, were we to sit idly by and permit German submarines to sink our merchant vessels and other vessels upon which our nationals traveled on the high seas? Whether Wilson knew or did not know—and he did not know—of these secret treaties, was that a justification for brigandage on the high seas? Should he have made a condition of our entrance into the war that the European nations should abrogate all secret treaties, whether or not he knew of them?

"Why, everybody knows, except the senator from North Dakota, that Woodrow Wilson came near wrecking his life at Versailles in his protestations against carrying out the terms of certain secret treaties; but, after all, what has that to do with this queston? What has that to do with legislation designed to keep this country out of useless war? What has that to do with the manufacture and exportation of munitions of war?

"You let the United States of America segregate itself in all of its trade relations whenever war shall occur, and you literally wreck the economic status of this country."

War on Britain Sought.

"O, the miserable demagogy, the miserable and mendacious suggestion, that the house of Morgan altered the neutrality course of Woodrow Wilson!

"As a matter of fact, the President was appealed to by some influential people to declare war against Great Britain for intercepting and injuring our trade relations. As a matter of fact, everybody intimate with Mr. Wilson knows that he was excessively impatient with Ambassador Page because of the ambassador's frequent and incessant partiality for Great Britain.

"And when an extract is read here from some letters from Ambassador Page in confirmation of the miserable charge that Woodrow Wilson was a liar, I begin to wonder if that was one of the letters from Ambassador Page which Mr. Wilson did not read at all. And when extracts are read here from Prof. Seymour, who is a romanticist, to insist that Wilson knew what Wilson said he did not know, and serious United States senators are asked to take that testimony as a confirmation of the outrageous assault upon the integrity and the veracity of the dead President of the United States, that is the most shocking thing that has emanated from this committee.

Regrets Appropriation.

"Mr. President, I admit with some degree, if not of shame, of intense regret, that as a member of the committee on appropriations of the senate and as its chairman I voted funds for this exploitation. I will never vote another dollar to anybody or any committee any one of whose members is so insensible to every consideration of decency as to stand on the senate floor and bitterly assail two dead men who are honored by this entire nation. Not another dollar will I vote to that committee.

"It may be pardoned to its members to think and to say that they regard their work as of inestimable value. So far as I have been able to appraise it I think it is $125,000 of the senate's funds wasted and given over by at least one member of that committee to the exploitation of himself, to a desperate and constant effort to figure on the front pages of sensational papers; but even the sensational papers are tired of it."

MORGAN FIRM DENIES ADVANCE KNOWLEDGE OF ATTACK ON NYE

New York, Jan. 18.—[Special.]—Denying Senator Gerald P. Nye's statement on the floor of the senate today that members of the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co. passed notes among themselves predicting an attack on the munitions committee, the firm sent a telegram to the North Dakota senator in which they said:

"If you have been correctly reported we beg to inform you that the statement is wholly untrue and we shall appreciate your making correction of it. None of us had information of any kind as to Senator Connally's intention until advised through members of the press that he was already making the speech later reported.

COOLIDGE QUITS TREASURY POST; REMAINS SILENT

Undersecretary Retires on Feb. 15.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 17.—[Special.]—Thomas Jefferson Coolidge, undersecretary of the treasury, and brains of its financing operations as the department's only major executive with long practical banking experience, resigned today. The resignation was accepted by President Roosevelt to become effective Feb. 15.

T. J. COOLIDGE. [Acme Photo.]

At the same time the President accepted the resignation of Lawrence W. Robert Jr., assistant secretary of the treasury without portfolio. The Robert resignation, which was dated Jan. 6, is also to become effective Feb. 15.

Long Casualty List.

The two resignations added to the long list of casualties in the treasury department arising largely from conflict of conservative minds with New Deal financial politics. The Robert resignation is considered an exception to those who left in abhorrence over administration finances as it has been persistently rumored the administration considered him a problem child of little financial ability.

Mr. Coolidge, a conservative, a Republican and a great-great-grandson of Thomas Jefferson, declined to comment on his resignation. He has been the chief link between the administration and the bankers to whom it must turn when the needs arise for borrowing billions to meet New Deal expenses or maturing obligations.

Letter Hints at Discord.

In his letter of resignation Coolidge hinted at discord with "circumstances have arisen which make it advisable for me to tender you my resignation."

Developments of the last few days indicated the administration would have to lean heavily upon him in financing the AAA substitute and the bonus which appears to be certain of passage over a probable presidential veto. It is believed that these and other financial outlays which the New Deal is contemplating led Mr. Coolidge, like other conservatives, to leave the department in disillusionment over any sustained New Deal effort toward budget balancing.

Mr. Coolidge, who was vice president of the First National bank of Boston before coming to the treasury department as an assistant in March, 1934, to be made undersecretary the following April, has been described as the directing genius behind the treasury's huge refunding operations.

Heavy Financing Ahead.

In the next 17½ months the treasury must undertake an additional 11 billion 800 million dollars in financing and refinancing operations, exclusive of unscheduled demands which may arise. No indication was given at the treasury as to its selection for this job to replace Coolidge.

Robert, a former Georgia Tech football star and Atlanta builder, was the first assistant secretary appointed under the New Deal. He was placed in charge of public buildings and was the treasury's representative on the PWA board. Eight months after he got the post he was removed by order of the President. The removal gave rise to rumors of a scandal, which were denied by the President and the PWA.

First Slated for PWA.

During the summer it was reported Robert would get a major position under the WPA. As the structure of the works relief unit was being plotted, Robert was discovered one evening along with Marvin H. McIntyre, assistant secretary to the President, in the hotel room of B. B. Robinson of Chicago, chief lobbyist for the Associated Gas and Electric company, by senate investigators on a search for the elusive Howard C. Hopson, utilities head. In the following unpleasantness to the administration WPA Administrator Harry Hopkins is said to have turned thumbs down on Robert.

Robert's letter of resignation said he was returning to the business world with "the highest confidence in the security of business and industry."

The President accepted Coolidge's resignation with the salutation "My dear Jeff" and that of Robert with "My dear Chip." The Coolidge letter carried formal expressions of regret and appreciation for services rendered. The Robert letter gave thanks for his expression of confidence and carried good wishes on Robert's resumption of a business career.

Stage All Set for Senate to Vote Baby Bond Bonus Today

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 17.—[Special.]—The stage was set late today for passage of the "baby bond" bonus bill by the senate tomorrow. A motion limiting debate was put through by Senator Pat Harrison [Dem., Miss.], chief author of the legislation, just as the senate adjourned.

Harrison's motion, designed to shut off a flood of senatorial oratory, provided that after 2 o'clock tomorrow no senator could speak more than once or longer than 15 minutes on the bill itself or more than once and longer than 30 minutes on any amendment.

House leaders, who pushed through a bonus bill for payment in cash last week, are in accord with the bond plan. Leaders of the bonus bloc in both houses are supremely confident of passage, if need be, over presidential veto.

Harrison Counts on Wires.

Harrison's strategy, the latest development in the rush to distribute $50 bonds that may be cashed on demand of the 3,518,191 veterans holding adjusted service certificates, followed two verbal proposals in the senate for stemming financial chaos.

One was the "good wife" theory advanced by Harrison and the other the "printing press money" scheme given a lengthy explanation by the chief senatorial exponent of inflation, Senator Elmer Thomas [Dem., Okla.].

Harrison's statement was made when other senators asked what would happen should all the veterans want to cash in their bonds at once. This would mean the treasury would be forced to shell out more than 2 billion dollars.

"The good wife will use her influence to have the veteran put the bond away for a rainy day," replied Harrison. "These bonds start drawing interest of 3 per cent after June 15, 1937."

Hastings Recalls Veto.

Senator Daniel O. Hastings [Rep., Del.] then brought up President Roosevelt's veto of the Patman bill last year, a subject irksome to the Democratic leaders who claim to be following the administration.

"I desire to ask some explanation of the difference between this bill and the bill vetoed by the President in May," said Hastings, "which makes the senator from Mississippi feel justified in advocating this bill as against leading a fight on the floor of the senate in support of the President's veto. If that will not embarrass the senator I think it might help the members of the senate."

Harrison retorted that Hastings was smart enough to know the difference.

"Nothing Embarrasses Me."

"Nothing ever embarrasses me," said the Mississippian. "The senator will recall that the so-called Patman bill [bonus vetoed last year] was an inflationary measure, and if the senator will read the President's remarks he will see that one of the strong points made in the veto message was the inflationary character of the proposal."

Then Harrison declared that whether or not the bond bonus bill was signed by the President it would be enacted into law.

The basis for Senator Thomas' argument for inflation to pay the bonus was that the government would be required to pay more than four billion dollars to meet the principal and interest on the bill. He claimed there was 12 billion dollars in gold and silver held by the treasury and only 5 or 6 billions in currency outstanding. The new money would be backed by the excess metallic reserves, according to Thomas.

FIGHT TO FINISH ON TERMITES CALLED AT FINNISH LEGATION

Washington, D. C., Jan. 17.—[Special.]—Termites have invaded the Finnish legation. Ever since last spring when millions of wood destroying insects invaded the nether portions of the legation, an unceasing fight has been waged against the invaders, according to Mme. Jarnefelt, wife of the Finnish minister.

With the same gallantry with which Finland has paid its war debts when all other debtor nations defaulted, Mme. Jarnefelt laughingly confessed that she had called on her realty company "rather than the United States government" for aid.

"It is the first international situation for some weeks in which we have not been asked to intervene," an assistant secretary of state declared today. "As far as we can learn there is no reciprocity question involved, since we have had no reports of termites in the American legation in Helsingfors."

PAROLED CONVICT GETS 30 DAYS FOR CARRYING A GUN

William Jacko, 32 years old, 2617 Augusta street, a paroled convict, was sentenced yesterday to 30 days in the Bridewell on a charge of carrying concealed weapons by Municipal Judge Gibson E. Gorman. On completing the sentence Jacko will be taken to Joliet prison to finish a robbery term of ten years to life from which he was paroled in 1932 after serving seven years. Jacko was arrested Tuesday when policemen caught him in front of 900 North Damen avenue carrying a gun. Detective bureau records show that he was convicted of larceny in 1923 and sentenced to a year in the Bridewell.

Awarded $100 Damages for a Punch on His Nose

Rockford, Ill., Jan. 17.—[Special.]—Britton Van Kuren was awarded damages of $100 by a Circuit court jury here for a punch on his nose. Van Kuren claimed he suffered a broken nose when he was struck last Sept. 15 by Clifford Whitford, a tavern employé.

SCHOOLS TO OPEN FIRE PREVENTION CAMPAIGN TODAY

With the sponsorship of the Chicago Association of Commerce, high school pupils will launch today a two weeks' campaign to educate others against the sort of negligence that causes fires. The association has chosen junior fire marshals in the schools and has instructed them with the aid of the Illinois Insurance department.

An exhibit of modern and ancient fire fighting apparatus in the Mandel Brothers department store is to continue through the campaign.

Harold Scott Jr. of the Roosevelt High school was named yesterday winner of the fire prevention poster contest of the association of commerce. Max Rosen of the Tuley High school won second prize. Theirs and other posters entered in the contest will be part of the Mandel Brothers display.

Mental Treatment Ordered for Delinquency Defendant

Municipal Judge Leon Edelman yesterday committed Frank Trush, alias Edward Jordan, 22 years old, 3716 Maple Square avenue, to the psychopathic hospital. Sergt. Michael Ahern of the Town Hall police testified that Trush, who was arraigned on a charge of contributing to the delinquency of a minor, admitted annoying some 50 girls and young women.

MRS. REBECCA S. CHANDLER IS GIVEN DIVORCE

Judge Oscar F. Nelson granted Mrs. Rebecca S. Chandler, 198 Forest avenue, Winnetka, an uncontested divorce yesterday from Buckingham Chandler, real estate broker. The Chandlers were married in 1914. Mrs. Chandler testified that her husband deserted her on Jan. 11, 1935, and since has refused to support her. She asked no alimony, stating that she has independent means.

Roomer Is Chloroformed to Death; Held Suicide

Eberhardt Anderson, 40 years old, 526 Wesley avenue, Oak Park, was found chloroformed to death yesterday in a rooming house at 645 West Madison street under circumstances which caused police to pronounce his death suicide. He engaged a room yesterday morning and returned there at 2 p. m., telling the proprietor, Philip Goldman, to arouse him at 6 o'clock. When Goldman went to his room he found Anderson dead. Oak Park police said he had been unemployed.

THRILLING STORY OF ELLSWORTH RESCUE AT POLE

Explorer and Companion Found in Antarctic.

LONDON, Jan. 17.—(AP)—Lincoln Ellsworth and his co-pilot were safe aboard a rescue ship tonight, dramatically snatched from death in the icy antarctic one week before starvation threatened their lives.

Both were well, although Ellsworth, noted American explorer, was suffering from a slight cold.

The rescue ship Discovery II., sent out jointly by the British and Australian governments, found Ellsworth and Herbert Hollick-Kenyon, his English-Canadian co-pilot, yesterday in Little America.

Very Little Food Left.

An official of the colonial office said the airmen, who started out from Dundee Island in the Weddell sea to make the first flight across the Antarctic continent, had provisions sufficient only to sustain them until next Friday.

[Dundee Island is 600 miles south of Cape Horn, southernmost tip of South America. It was estimated Ellsworth and his companion had flown about 2,300 miles.]

The colonial office official had no information, however, that there were supplies in caches left by the Byrd expedition, as reported in Washington, D. C., by Dr. Thomas C. Poulter, second in command of the Byrd party.

Ellsworth and Hollick-Kenyon had not been reported since Nov. 23.

Flyers Ran Out of Fuel.

Wireless messages from the relief expedition disclosed Ellsworth and Hollick-Kenyon ran out of fuel on their daring and successful flight across the south polar wastes. A damaged radio transmitter kept them from sending out word of their plight.

While the men rested, the colonial office in London, 9,000 miles away, anxiously awaited further details of the rescue and of the successful flight—both of which added important chapters to the gripping history of antarctic exploration.

Hope for the men's safety had been abandoned by many, but not by their immediate families and other explorers.

Story of Rescue.

This eight word message from the commander of the Discovery II., Lieut. L. C. Hill, told the world the flyers were safe:

"Ellsworth and Kenyon are both alive and well," it said. A later message said, "Ship's party returned with Ellsworth Jan. 16."

The rescue was described more fully in this message:

"On first arrival in the Bay of Whales, an orange colored cloth with a tent was observed on the barrier face.

"A rocket fired from the ship was not answered. A Moth airplane flew to Little America, five miles distant. Kenyon emerged. A food parachute was dropped with letters.

Ellsworth Has Slight Cold.

"Kenyon advanced and met the ship's party. He was received on board at 12:35 a. m. Jan. 16. He reported Ellsworth alive but suffering from a slight cold. The ship's party is advancing to meet Ellsworth. [A subsequent message disclosed the explorer was taken aboard].

"The American airmen state they ran out of fuel 20 miles from Little America, on a bearing of 165 degrees, and sledged in.

"Kenyon is very fit. A transmitter switch caused the radio failure."

Hopes for the safety of the men had been revived yesterday with a brief message from the Discovery that an unidentified airplane and man had been sighted by it.

Lieut. Hill, commander of the Discovery, was sent messages of congratulation by Premier Lyons of Australia and other high officials for his success in maneuvering through the ice floes and his fast time in reaching the Bay of Whales, where the ship forced its way through ice. The Discovery II. sailed from Dunedin, New Zealand, Jan. 2.

[Hollick-Kenyon's wife, in Ewing's Landing, British Columbia, walked a mile over the snow to receive by telephone the news of her husband's safety. "I felt confident they would get through. I haven't worried more than I could help," she said. "I never lost confidence he would be found alive. "They"—the two children—"will be overjoyed. I must rush home to tell them."]

Relatives here of Hollick-Kenyon, a native of England, had lost hope. Mrs. H. V. Kenyon, his aunt, said, "We thought six weeks was the limit. We had no news and feared the worst.

"Only a few days ago, my husband wrote Herbert's mother in Canada, condoling her for the loss of her son."

Admiral Hails Flyers.

Admiral Sir William Goodenough, former president of the Royal Geographical society, said: "The whole world will rejoice to know that these two brave men have come through safely. That shows what enterprise can do when carried out with forethought."

Messages were received in England from the Discovery II. through a wireless station at Awaru, New Zealand. She is equipped with only a one kilowatt sending set.

Another rescue vessel, the Wyatt Earp, supply ship of the Ellsworth expedition, was en route to Little America under the command of Sir Hubert Wilkins to join the search. The Wyatt Earp bore a plane flown from the United States to South America by Dick Merrill.

Revenue Ship Returns Jan. 27.

DUNEDIN, New Zealand, Jan. 17.—(AP)—The Discovery II., ship which rescued Lincoln Ellsworth and his co-pilot, will return with them to New Zealand about Jan. 27, officials announced tonight.

Japanese Games Sent Here as Gift to Playgrounds

Several sets of shuttlecock and battledore, a popular children's game in Japan, will be given to the recreation division of the Chicago park district at 2 p. m. today in the Burnham park administration building. Eight Japanese women and girls living in Chicago will present the gift, sent here by the Japan Playground association to promote international friendship.

FORMER SHERIF MEYERING NAMED PROBATION CHIEF

Succeeds J. W. Houston in County Job.

William D. Meyering, former sheriff of Cook county, was appointed chief county probation officer yesterday. The appointment was made at a joint meeting of the committees on probation of the Municipal and Circuit courts and all the judges of the Superior court.

Meyering succeeds John W. Houston, a former Municipal judge, who had held the probation office since 1910. Mr. Houston, who is 77 years old, resigned Thursday because of frail health.

Gets $5,000 a Year.

Meyering was nominated at the joint meeting by Superior Judge James J. Kelly. There was no opposition candidate and the election was unanimous. The appointment is for an indefinite term and the annual salary is $5,000.

The county probation office supervises persons who have been placed on probation by Municipal and Criminal court judges. The probationers are required to report at intervals. The office has a staf of 75 employes.

Sheriff from 1930 to 1934.

Meyering, who is 44 years old, lives at 7414 Calumet avenue. During the world war he lost his right arm in combat. He served as alderman of the 8th ward from 1925 to 1929 and was reelected for another term, resigning from the council to take the office of sheriff in 1930. He was sheriff until 1934.

4,000 ETHIOPIANS REPORTED SLAIN; ARMY IN FLIGHT

Italy Claims Big Victory; Denied in Addis Ababa.

ROME, Jan. 17.—(AP)—Premier Mussolini tightened his "military secrets" censorship tonight by rephrasing the decree to prevent officials or manufacturers from disclosing past, present, or future war plans. They also were forbidden to give out estimates of stocks of munitions on hand.

Bitter fighting in southern Ethiopia, with 4,000 Ethiopians slain, was reported in a communique. Marshal Pietro Badoglio, commander in chief of the Fascist armies in Africa, said:

"The enemy is completely routed. The last resistance of the Ethiopian rear guard has been beaten along the entire front and Ras Desta Demtu's troops are abandoning themselves to flight along caravan routes to the northwest.

4,000 Dead Counted.

"Perfect coördination of infantry, tanks, artillery, and aviation has greatly increased the enemy losses. Up until yesterday we had counted 4,000 dead. Losses among the Italians are few."

Italy, informed circles said today, has decided to attend the session of the league of nations council at Geneva Monday, when the question of an oil boycott may come up. Baron Pompeo Aloisi, delegate to the league, is expected to leave tomorrow and to play a "normal rôle" while there.

The Fascist government sent a lengthy protest to the league against what is called Ethiopian atrocities, including the mutilation of Italians taken prisoner and even the dead on the battlefield. It also charged the use of dumdum bullets by Haile Selassie's warriors.

Italy, it was said in well informed circles, has answered a Stockholm protest against the bombing of a Swedish Red Cross unit in Ethiopia by "rejecting" the Swedish claims for reparations because the bombing was "one of the inevitable risks" of war.

DETAILS OE FIGHTING

BY SIR PERCIVAL PHILLIPS.
[Special Correspondent of the London Daily Telegraph and The Chicago Tribune.]
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DJIBOUTI, French Somaliland, Jan. 17.—Dispatches concerning the fighting between Italian and Ethiopian troops on the southern front indicate that Ras Desta Demtu's flank west of the Webbe Shibeli river, which engaged the Italian vanguard, fought with remarkable tenacity. It fell back slowly at night, relying, as usual, on bush tactics and assailing the enemy with rifle fire from rocks and hillsides.

Ethiopian losses were due largely to massed counter attacks in the open, undertaken against orders from their general. The Ethiopians met concentrated machine gun fire near the village of Malka Ladir and were forced to scatter to the hills.

The Italians depended upon air bombs to break up a concentration of Ethiopians around Lake Huku. The planes flew low in close formation and their machine guns sprayed the Ethiopian infantry.

Drop Incendiary Bombs.

Incendiary bombs were dropped upon native hamlets in the valley of the Ganale Dorya and all were destroyed. It is claimed that more than 2,000 bombs were dropped Monday and Tuesday.

Some of Ras Desta's troops retired behind Dawa toward the Kenya frontier, where they were reinforced by tribesmen from Boro and Walena who had not yet been in action. The remainder retreated along the Ganale Dorya into the mountains to the west.

The Ethiopians did not estimate their casualties, but claim the Italians lost heavily, while the morale of their own troops remains unshaken. The Ethiopians say Italian claims that 4,000 Ethiopians were killed are ridiculous.

Italian Mutinies Reported.

[Special to London Daily Telegraph and The Chicago Tribune.]
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia, Jan. 17.—Somali [native] deserters from the Italian army in the south, who are reaching Ras Desta Demtu's headquarters in large numbers, bring remarkable stories of happenings behind the Italian lines.

They report that friction between regular troops and Fascist militiamen has led to serious fighting and that the Somalis are disaffected as a result of treatment by the white soldiers of their women folk while the men are at the front.

The trouble between the regulars and Fascists appears to arise from the former's complaint that the Fascists pushed Italy into the war but always remain at the rear instead of doing some of the fighting. They receive all the honors and rewards, it is alleged, while the regulars do all the fighting and undergo all the hardships without reward.

Several Killed in Fight.

Near the end of December, deserters state, several men were killed near Mogadishu, Italian Somaliland, in a battle between Fascists and regulars.

Another fight resulted from a dispute over a woman. A Fascist militiaman shot a regular, whereupon others joined in. Revolvers and daggers were used. Ten men were killed and 50 wounded. The regulars were then sent to the front while the Fascists remained at Mogadishu.

British Hold Four Italian Flyers.

LONDON, Jan. 17.—(AP)—The foreign office announced today that the captain and crew of three of an Italian warplane which made a forced landing Wednesday 50 miles inside the Sudan frontier in East Africa had been interned under neutrality regulations promulgated last October. The Italian government has been notified, it was said. The plane landed at Debet Awatak.

U-BOAT PASTOR CHARGES HITLER BACKS PAGANISM

Denounces Rule Over Protestants.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Jan. 17.—The Rev. Martin Niemoeller, submarine commander during the world war and leader of the Protestant pastors who are fighting for a free creed, threw down a new gauntlet to Reichsfuehrer Hitler's church government today. He denounced its activities in a scathing pamphlet in which he charges the government with aiding and abetting the "new pagan movement."

The pastor, in summarizing the church situation, contends there is no free church left in Germany and that the Protestant church is operated by the government.

"It has arrogated power in the church by first assuming control of its finances," he says. "Then it started directing church life by appointing the church council."

Claims State Rules Church.

The Rev. Mr. Niemoeller asserts the government also has "usurped the mental leadership of the church."

"State, or rather church councils, forbid the church to reject the attacks of the new pagan groups," he adds. "This is quite natural since the Nazi state is in sympathy with these groups."

The secret police is coöperating with the government to control the church since Hans Kerrl, minister for church affairs, has instructed "the police how it shall conduct itself," according to Niemoeller. Orders issued to the church are based on political considerations, and the pastor says in his pamphlet:

"The church, which is made into a political body, is no longer free to show obedience to the gospel and creed."

Niemoeller declares that the present state church is carrying out the program of the German Christians [Nazis] who want to revise the gospel "to suit their racial and political theories."

Attacks Kerrl's Reign.

The militant pastor further declares that the church councils were appointed for two years but that there is no limit to the reign of Kerrl in the church. He charges Kerrl intends to impose a constitution adapted to his principles of a state church on the Protestant community at the expiration of the transition period.

"Persons who do not realize this," Niemoeller says, "simply fail to remember the totalitarian principles of the Nazi state. The greater part of the Protestant church is now the prisoner of the German state."

Friends of the opposition leader again fear for his safety. They suspect he will be arrested. Others, however, declare the arrest of prominent pastors has been forbidden by government leaders because they wish to avoid the resentment such seizures would cause in Protestant circles of the United States, Great Britain and in the Scandinavian countries at a time when the Germans are inviting athletes of the world to participate in the Olympic games.

Seek to Call Conference.

Niemoeller and his associates are attempting to call a national conference of opposition pastors. It is scheduled to be held in Berlin Jan. 29.

Regardless of continued protests of opposition pastors, Kerrl has appointed a new church council in Hessen-Nassau. He succeeded in enlisting the coöperation of only three churchmen, but said he would soon nominate two more.

Sakdals Refuse to Serve in New Philippine Army

MANILA, P. I., Jan. 17.—(AP)—Rizal town officials reported today Sakdalista leaders announced their followers would refuse to register for compulsory military service. They said the Sakdals would rather go to jail than serve in the Philippine army. All 20 year old Filipino men were ordered to register by April 7 in a manifesto issued Monday by President Manuel Quezon promulgating the drastic commonwealth defense act.

German Colonies Lost in War Must Be Returned: Goebbels

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Jan. 17.—Germany's colonies, which were lost in the world war, must be returned to the reich, Paul Joseph Goebbels, minister of propaganda, warned tonight in an address before a huge audience in Berlin. He pointed to Italy as an example of what happens if healthy nations are denied an outlet to their needs.

In the same breath Goebbels urged the nation to be grateful for her rearmament.

"We had a choice between butter and cannon," Goebbels cried. "We chose cannon. There is always the possibility of our being attacked. If we are attacked, butter would not help us, but cannon will.

"It is true there is a league of nations. If through its moral pressure it can prevent war that is all to the good, but we prefer also to have cannon because what is sewed twice wears better."

Warning to Critics.

Goebbels complained of the lack of gratitude of persons who criticize the Nazis.

"We will not stand for it any more because otherwise we might some day find ourselves pressed against the wall," he shouted. "Our private lives are an example to the whole nation, barring a few exceptions which are unavoidable in view of the great number of persons involved."

The propaganda minister promised that the Nazi 25 point program would be fully enforced, but when and how would have to be decided by Reichsfuehrer Hitler. He admitted the situation in the labor market is "precarious, partly for seasonal reasons and partly because of a shortage of raw materials which is caused by a shortage in foreign currency."

Goebbels also admitted that wages have not been raised.

Defends Rise in Prices.

"The raise was not omitted out of sympathy for employers who are not close to us but in an effort to keep prices stable," he said. "It is true the price of foreign products went up, but it was necessary for the sake of agriculture. It would be easy to govern if we were as rich as the United States. Governing should be a pleasure in the United States because everything is plentiful there.

"We are a proletarian nation. We are so poor we do not even have colonies. We insist on having colonies. The case of Italy shows what happens when a country is unable to expand. The attitude of Italy is comprehensible, although the method adopted by her may be wrong. Such a policy is a danger to the whole world.

"It will be to the advantage of the whole world if we are given back our colonies. Nations which hold them now cannot do anything with the territories because they do not need them. Formerly we spent billions of dollars on foreign foodstuffs. This year we spent only 400 millions. The balance was used for the necessary rearmament of Germany."

Berlin Is Alarmed.

Meanwhile the attitude of France and Great Britain is alarming Berlin. The demarche of Sir Eric Phipps, the British ambassador, and Francois Poncet, the French ambassador, in protesting the agitation carried on in the German press against the Rhineland demilitarized zone has made the Germans feel that despite the Anglo-German naval pact, Britain stands by France and not by Germany as the Nazis had hoped.

Official circles in Berlin express the hope that since France and Britain emphatically insist on the necessity of respecting the provisions of the Locarno pact, these countries will be willing to "talk reasonable terms with Germany on the question of an air pact now that soviet Russia makes no bones about its determination to rearm on even a greater scale."

German military experts would welcome such an agreement because the army is still short of 15,000 officers, who are needed to train the conscripts. Another difficulty is a lack of mechanics and engineers in the air force. Not enough mechanical experts are willing to enlist for the full four and one-half year term of service.

REVISE TREATIES TO END CAUSE OF WAR! EDEN URGES

British Chief Also Backs Stronger League.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 17.—Revision of the peace treaties so that some of the latent causes of war may be removed, plus a league of nations strengthened so formidably as to be able to discourage aggression, were named tonight by Capt. Anthony Eden, foreign secretary, as basic factors in any effective collective peace system.

He indicated that promotion of these two characteristics of a collective security system would be supported by Great Britain's foreign policy during the coming year, but he insisted that Britain must also strengthen its armed defenses as the only sure way to peace.

Eden made his statements in an address to his constituents in Leamington at an engineering employers' association dinner. It was the first public address he has made since his appointment as foreign minister.

Vague on League Policy.

He reviewed the international situation, but disappointed hearers who had expected he would somewhat definitly outline what Britain's policy will be at the league of nations council session at Geneva next week. He referred to the international situation only in the most general terms.

That important events are coming to a head in European politics was foreshadowed in two other directions tonight. First, before leaving London for Leamington, Eden had a half hour talk with Charles Corbin, the French ambassador, and immediately afterward a 45 minute conversation with Dino Grandi, Premier Mussolini's ambassador. These conversations supposedly concern new peace plans and their working out at Geneva next week.

Second, the British government in response to an inquiry from Berlin, assured Germany that recent Franco-British general staf talks concerned the Mediterranean purely and had nothing to do with possible British aid on France's eastern frontier.

Pledges Friendship with U. S.

Capt. Eden, in this connection, in his speech tonight declared that the two outstanding facts of last year were the emergence of a strong Germany claiming the right to re-arm and also the emergence of the league of nations to a position of vigorous responsibility.

Besides recommending treaty revision and strengthening of the league, Eden pledged Britain's policy to "take any and every opportunity to strengthen those bonds of friendship and understanding with the United States, bonds which owe so much of their solidity to ancestry, tradition and ideals shared in common."

Eden warned that the road to collective security which the British want to inaugurate by "basing foreign policy on membership in the league of nations" would be a long one and he said he would approach his task at Geneva next week "in a spirit of realism."

Warning to Germany.

"We must all try to look beyond the immediate conflict with which the league is confronted and keep hold of a few essentials," he continued, suggesting that the British wanted to oil up the league machinery so it would work against Germany if Reichsfuehrer Hitler seeks territorial extensions by violence, or against Japanese aggression.

"Two essentials we must attain are that aggression must not be allowed to succeed and that the members of the league, acting together, should be so strong and so united that they may bring it home to any aggressor now or in the future that peaceful negotiation and not aggression is not merely the best but the only successful way of removing discontent."

In all this, however, Eden indicated Britain would not stick its neck out or attract any undue attention to its leadership at Geneva. The idea is that these are good things for others to promote.

LABATT KIDNAPERS TO FACE TWO SUSPECTS SEIZED IN ILLINOIS

LONDON, Ont., Jan. 17.—(AP)—Kidnapers and alleged kidnapers of John S. Labatt will all be in one room for a few hours here Monday. Police laid plans today for placing a strong armed guard in and around Middlesex county's courtroom and are ready for the "reunion" stage of the famous case.

Herman Kierdorff and Russell Knowles, captured a few weeks ago in Ottawa, Ill., will be present for preliminary hearing on charges of armed robbery and kidnaping. David Meisner, Michael McCardell, and John David Bannon, all convicted abductors, will be here as witnesses, coming from Kingston penitentiary.

It was learned that provincial police had made elaborate plans for guarding the five men. A mysterious telephone call to a London newspaper office last night strengthened an official determination that nothing would be left to chance. An unidentified voice told the London Free Press that if Kierdorff was not freed after his hearing Monday, his friends would "spring" him. Police are investigating the source of the call.

Report Chinese Troops Fighting Japanese Forces at the Border

BY JOHN POWELL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TIENTSIN, China, Jan. 17.—Japanese headquarters refuses to confirm or deny sensational reports in Chinese papers of preliminary skirmishing between Japanese supported Manchukuoan troops and military forces of Gen. Fu Tso-yi, Nanking chairman of Suiyuan province.

It was stated that severe fighting occurred near the town of Hingho, directly west of Kalgan, early Wednesday. The Chinese claim that the Manchukuoan troops led by Japanese officers were driven back into Chahar province.

Invading Force Withdraws.

The Chinese papers said the Japanese-Manchukuo vanguard advanced southwestward from Changpeh, where the Japanese recently created a so-called autonomous Mongolian political council, but that when they crossed the border were blocked by forces of Gen. Wang Ching-kuo, subordinate of Gen. Fu Tso-yi. After an hour's exchange of rifle fire the invading force withdrew, awaiting reinforcements. The Chinese force also sent messages for reinforcements.

The official Chinese report mentioned no clash. It said three Japanese war planes circled the town of Pingtichuan adjacent to the border, but did not bomb it.

Japanese-Manchukuo troops advanced from Dolon Nor on the Jehol-Chahar border shortly before Christmas and occupied six counties stretching directly across central Chahar northward to Kalgan, creating a corridor cutting the overland trail connecting Kalgan and Urga, capital of soviet controled Outer Mongolia.

Mongols Ready to Resist.

On Jan. 2 and 3 the Japanese organized a new capital of the so-called autonomous Mongolian state at the town of Changpeh. They declared all portions north of the Great Wall belonged to Mongols and announced their intention of uniting all Mongols under the Japanese-Manchukuoan banner.

The Chinese claim the Inner Mongols are unfavorable to the Japanese scheme and are prepared to resist in the event of a Japanese advance into Suiyuan province.

The situation has elements of a powder magazine as relations between the Japanese and the soviet supported Outer Mongols are already tense. Daily border clashes near Lake Buyornor are resulting in casualties and growing animosities.

Plan to Cut Chinese Tariff.

Japanese reports are that the East Hopei autonomous government headed by the renegade Yin Ju-ken is planning a drastic reduction in the Chinese tarif ostensibly to make smuggling unprofitable, but actually to favor Japanese goods. Yin's government yesterday placed an order with a Japanese publishing house for 500,000 textbooks to use in the primary schools of the autonomous district.

The books, edited by the so-called Japanese-Manchukuo cultural society, eliminate all historical references which the Japanese claim are apt to create animosities between the two countries. Chinese students in Peiping opposed the alteration and charge that it falsifies history.

VOID $60,000 INSURANCE OF E. J. BRUNDAGE

Verdict of Jury Holds Death Was Suicide.

After a debate that lasted five hours a jury in the Superior court yesterday returned a verdict which held invalid three insurance policies for a total of $60,000 taken out by Edward J. Brundage shortly before his death on Jan. 20, 1934.

The jurors also signed a special interrogatory stating that Mr. Brundage, former attorney general of Illinois and a Republican leader, committed suicide.

Mr. Brundage was found shot to death in the basement of his Lake Forest home. There was a .38 caliber pistol lying on the ledge of an open safe near the body.

A suit to force payment of the insurance was brought by Mrs. Germaine V. Brundage, widow of the former attorney general, against the Mutual Benefit Life Insurance Company of New Jersey. Hearing of the case, which required ten days, was before Judge George W. Bristow of Paris, Ill., sitting in the Superior court here.

Company Cites Suicide Clause.

The company advanced the claim that Mr. Brundage committed suicide two months after he took out the policies and pointed to a clause in the contract making the insurance void in the event of suicide within a year.

Col. Calvin H. Goddard, ballistics expert, testified for the company. Under questioning of Attorney Edward M. Burke, he said that the bullet which killed Mr. Brundage was fired from his pistol and that the weapon was apparently held only a few inches from his chest. The bullet entered the body near the heart.

The company also argued that Mr. Brundage was in straitened financial circumstances and that he had lost his hold on his political faction. This indicated, according to the defense attorney, that he planned his death so that his family might benefit from the large amount of insurance he carried.

Battle Over Suicide Theory.

Attorney Edward R. Adams of the firm of Miller, Gorham, Wales & Adams, who represented Mrs. Brundage, contended [although the burden of proof had to be furnished by the insurance company] that there had been no suicide. Actually, he declared, suicide was almost impossible.

During his final address to the jury Attorney Adams lay on the floor of the courtroom to show the position of Mr. Brundage's body when found, and from this position talked of how nearly impossible it would have been for the former attorney general to place the pistol in the safe after shooting himself.

Further, Mr. Adams asserted that if Mr. Brundage had contemplated killing himself so that his family might profit, he would have done so three months earlier, when he had policies for $100,000 which would have been incontestable.

Outlook Bright, He Contends.

He added that while Mr. Brundage had debts of $58,000, he expected to collect a $50,000 fee for legal work and would not have been in desperate straits after that.

Witnesses summoned to contradict the assertion that Mr. Brundage had lost his political influence included former State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe, George Barrett, and Thomas Wallace. All said the political omens were favorable to him at the time of his death. Thomas J. Peden, master in chancery for the federal court, testified that Mr. Brundage had been in good spirits the last few days of his life.

When the jury retired arguments among the members were so heated that a bailiff at one time requested them to be quieter. Their noise, he said, was disturbing the hearing of a case in the nearby courtroom of Judge Harry B. Miller.

FREE EXPATRIATE WHO WILL WED, GO TO HOLLAND

Leavenworth, Kas., Jan. 17.—(AP)—Lawardus Gerhardus Borgart, a man without a country, was released from Leavenworth federal prison today for deportation to the Netherlands.

He said he would be married in New York to Emma Callmeyer, a domestic, who corresponded with him during his 15 years in prison. She will accompany him to his native land, he said.

Borgart lost his Dutch citizenship when he enlisted in the United States army. His citizenship in this country was revoked upon his conviction and life sentence for an offense against a nurse at Fort Lewis, Wash., in 1921.

President Roosevelt ordered Borgart's release, stipulating he must leave the country. Dutch officials have agreed to his return, but refused a regular passport. A consular letter of identification was arranged.

Borgart became an expert stone cutter while in the penitentiary.

SHIPPERS BREAK WITH CANADIAN DOCKMEN'S UNION

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTREAL, Que., Jan. 17.—A dramatic sequel to the longshoremen's strike which paralyzed shipping here early last season came today in the announcement that the Shipping Federation of Canada has severed connections with the Association of Syndicated Longshoremen. Two thousand members of the association were involved in last season's walkout.

A new agreement, effective April 1, has been drawn up between the shipping federation and the National Independent Union of Longshoremen. This organization has long sought a contract with the shipping companies and the agreement now effected will give its members preference of work on ocean going vessels next summer.

17 North Chicago Strikers Sentenced to Jail for Violence

Circuit Judge E. D. Shurtleff of Marengo, sitting yesterday at Waukegan, sentenced 17 trade union members to jail terms for violations of an injunction protecting the plant and employés of the Oakes Products corporation in North Chicago from violence in a current strike. The establishment manufactures automobile accessories.

Charles White, president, and John Nadelhofer, vice president of local No. 140 of the International Union of Metal Polishers, Buffers, Platers and Helpers, and Dan Jerik, president of the machinists' union, were sentenced to 60 days in jail.

O. C. Smith and Joseph Witek, whom witnesses had accused of being leaders in violence about the plant, were sentenced to 45 days in jail. They belong to a "vertical" union formed after the strike began to embrace all other workers in the factory.

Thirty day sentences were imposed on De Lores Tempoles of the vertical group and four members of the polishers' union, Louis Bogue, R. Manring, Sterling Wright, and John Katalinik.

Seven Get Fifteen Day Terms.

The judge ordered fifteen day terms for two polishers, Earl Griffin and Gus Coffas, and for five machinists, Edward Crawley, Hugo Wiljama, Joseph Vasofski, Eric Oswald, and William Bach.

Judge Shurtleff granted Joseph L. Bishop and Francis Wendt, attorneys for the defendants, a week in which to perfect an appeal and stayed execution of the sentences for that period.

The sentences imposed by Judge Shurtleff were more severe than those recommended by the attorneys for the Oakes Products company, Leslie H. Vogel and Richard H. Merrick of Chicago, and Clarence Diver of Waukegan. At the judge's request, they filed recommendations Thursday, asking that ten of the men be sent to jail, but recommending fines for the seven men on whom the judge imposed 15 day sentences.

"Picketing by an organized union with organized pickets constitutes conspiracy," said Judge Shurtleff in passing sentence. "An act of one becomes an act of all. There can be no lawful and peaceable picketing when there has been an infraction or unlawful act by any one of the parties. When picketing is done by an organized group, each picket is equally guilty of any violation."

On Dec. 11 the polishers' local called out its eighty members employed by the Oakes concern, and the thirty-three members of the machinists' union walked out in sympathy. The polishers struck to win jurisdiction over automatic machinery which had been installed in the plant and had been manned with unskilled labor.

Most of Strikers Back on Job.

A few days later other employés of the company organized the vertical union. They swelled the number of strikers at one time to 400 of the plant's crew of 500. Most of the verticalists are now back at work.

On Dec. 18 Circuit Judge Ralph J. Dady of Waukegan enjoined the strikers from picketing in groups of more than two and from interfering with the factory's operations. When contempt citations were issued the unionists took change of venue to Judge Shurtleff.

In the trial of the contempt charges witnesses testified that the defendants had beaten employés who reported for work at the plant and had forced them to depart. The defendants admitted only one act of violence.

Warns Against Bad Advice.

"The poorest advice any laboring man can take is from the hallucinations of some man's brain who never did a day's work in his life and who would not know a day's work if he met it squarely on the street," said Judge Shurtleff in passing sentence.

Asked to whom he referred he said: "That's very obvious. I mean the President of the United States and his brain trust."

HERRIOT TO QUIT CABINET; SEEN AS ACT TO AID LAVAL

French Ex-Premier to Get Back Party Reins.

PARIS, Jan. 17.—(AP)—Former Premier Edouard Herriot said tonight he would resign as minister of state but the prospective move was regarded as one which would strengthen the cabinet of Premier Laval, rather than weaken it.

Herriot's resignation would be given solely so he might resume the presidency of the Radical Socialist party, which holds the balance of power in the chamber of deputies.

Following Herriot's resignation several weeks ago as president, the party had threatened to follow the anti-government leadership of former Premier Edouard Daladier, who heads a left wing, anti-Laval faction.

Will Quit Next Week.

Political circles said the announcement meant Herriot had wrested a promise from five other Radical Socialist ministers to remain in the government while he whipped the party into line behind Laval until the spring elections.

Herriot made his decision public with a statement to a group of radical Socialist deputies, who asked him to quit the government and take over the party leadership.

He said he would not resign until after Laval returns from a Geneva meeting of the league council next week.

2 Hurt in "Ethiopian" Clash.

Two policemen were injured and ten students arrested today in clashes arising from a University of Paris student strike in protest against the continued employment of Dr. Gaston Jeze, Ethiopian legal aid and a university law professor.

The crisis occurred both in classrooms and Latin quarter streets.

Nationalist students, demanding that Dr. Jeze be dismissed, clashed with Leftist sympathizers and police were called to break up street fights. Authorities closed the school of science after a scuffle between striking students and those who refused to leave their classes.

Film Beauty of "Silents" Works in Relief Picture

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 17.—[Special.]—Juanita Hansen, whose blonde beauty thrilled old time audiences at silent serial movies, has emerged from illnesses, law suits, and retirement to resume movie work, this time as an actress in a federal relief works movie being made here. "I'm broke, but I have my health back," Miss Hansen said, "and I'm glad of the work."

BRITISH LEADERS ROW OVER SECRET ARMAMENT DEAL

Cabinet Men Oppose "Inner Clique."

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 17.—Secret rearmament talks being conducted by the cabinet defense committee, which met for the fourth day in succession yesterday, are causing uneasiness in political circles and even in the cabinet itself, says today's Daily Herald, organ of the Labor party.

In what appears to be an attempt to make political capital from the prolonged discussions, opposition circles assert that a number of cabinet ministers who are not members of the defense committee feel that they are being deliberately excluded from meetings at which grave decisions affecting the future of the country are taken.

Issue To Be Aired in Commons.

The disgruntled ministers, according to the Herald, complain that the cabinet will later be peremptorily asked to endorse the plans concocted by a few members and take collective responsibility for them.

The matter will be brought up in the house of commons immediately after it reassembles on Feb. 4 by Maj. C. R. Attlee, Labor leader, who intends to ask Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin for a full and frank statement.

Opposition circles charge that the defense chiefs are taking advantage of the international situation and Germany's rearmament to bring pressure upon the prime minister to endorse their demands for a costly overhauling and reconditioning of the fighting forces.

Plan Empire Coördination.

The rearmament plans now nearing completion will involve the expenditure of many millions of dollars for additional army mechanization, naval replacements and increase of the air force and to provide for coördination and close coöperation of the armed forces controled and paid for by empire countries.

To effect this there may be a committee of imperial defense, including representatives of all the dominions, sitting permanently in London and exercising supreme control over all empire forces.

Neighbors'll Be Surprised on Hearing About This!

Du Page county authorities were searching yesterday for two burglars who looted the home of Claude Martin on North Washington street in Naperville Thursday night of jewelry and clothing valued at $350. The burglars backed their automobile into a ditch as they were leaving and neighbors, unaware of the housebreaking, aided the men in getting the car started. Martin and his wife were at a movie.

SUBSTITUTE AAA PROGRAM BEARS PRESIDENT'S O. K.

May Ask Conservation Law Changes.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 17.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt today expressed himself confident that the new farm program, under which the administration plans to revive objectives of the dead AAA by means of the soil conservation act of 1935, will solve the nation's agricultural problem.

With a wry raugh in recollection of the Supreme court's lethal decision on the crop control program, the President refused to comment on the new proposal in relation to production control. The aim of the administration is now, he said, a well rounded agricultural development of the nation.

The President expressed some concern as to whether the administration could proceed up to the hilt on the proposal agreed upon at yesterday's White House conference with administration leaders under the existing act. He said he believed slight amendments would be necessary.

Dodges Fund Raising Question.

He declined to discuss how funds will be raised to meet the subsidies to be paid under the plan. He gave an intimation that new taxes may be necessary but added that he was not yet ready to discuss that phase of the proposal.

The discussion came at the White House semi-weekly press conference. Mr. Roosevelt said he wished it made clear that he was in no way replying to the farm address former President Hoover delivered in Nebraska last night. He insisted he had not yet had an opportunity to read the Hoover speech.

At the outset of his remarks the President emphasized that the proposal is not new. He quoted from a formal statement, issued by him last Oct. 25, in which he said he asserted that the permanent AAA would rest on soil erosion. The new program, he said, is replacement of the emergency features of the AAA by long range soil erosion and soil conservation.

The President declined to estimate what outlay the government will make to farmers who coöperate in crop production through reducing acreage as a soil erosion preventative and soil conservative. On Capitol Hill estimates ranged from 200 to 600 million dollars for 1936.

Explains Soil Erosion.

In his characteristic rôle of a teacher before a class the President dwelt on two forms of soil erosion. He gave the first as the actual washing away of soil and the second as a loss of chemicals through failure to rotate crops. He cited his farm at Warm Springs, Ga., as an example of the former and his estate at Hyde Park, N. Y., as a possible example of the latter.

The first was tangible and the second intangible soil erosion. The President admitted, in response to a question, that he thought his interpretation of the act brought every farm in the country under the scope of the conservation act.

As to administration of the act he explained that the existing machinery would be sufficient. County agents and the entire AAA setup could work out the determination of both types of erosion on which farmers would receive payments from the government either by leasing or purchase of land withdrawn from production as a conservation measure.

Reads from October Statement.

The President read from his Oct. 25 statement in which he spoke of a "long time more permanent plan for American agriculture," which he said was growing out of the efforts of the AAA, which was then, alive. He spoke first, of holding to the gains of the then existent adjustment operations, and second, of a broadening of operations to give farmers an incentive for conservation and efficient use of the soil.

In the department of agriculture experts were attacking the task of whipping the proposal into shape for presentation in congress. They wrestled with the problems of determining how subsidies are to be paid and how funds are to be raised.

On Capitol Hill one of the objectives of the administration since the demolition of the AAA was launched on its way through congress. The house agriculture committee approved a measure to pay 296 million dollars due farmers under AAA contracts.

DIES OF HUNGER; BROTHER, SISTER DIDN'T KNOW IT

Cincinnati, O., Jan. 17.—(AP)—Police tonight reported finding an aged brother and sister keeping vigil over the body of Bernard Varnhorn, 80, former church organist, who, the coroner reported, had been dead at least two days.

The brother and sister, Frank and Minnie Varnhorn, 75 and 65 years old, respectively, were taken to a hospital where attachés reported them in a serious condition from malnutrition.

Patrolman Chris Cordes said Varnhorn's body was found on a pallet of old papers and clothes. The brother and sister, he said, were seated staring at the body.

On a table near by were a half consumed loaf of bread, part of a bottle of milk, and on the floor was a pot of saurkraut and meat.

Coroner Frank M. Coppock Jr. said Bernard had succumbed to starvation.

DON GEYER QUITS JOB AS MANAGER OF MILK AGENCY

Action Is Surprise to Officials.

Don N. Geyer, secretary and manager of the Pure Milk association, bargaining agency for nearly 15,000 dairy farmers in the Chicago milk area, resigned his position yesterday, the resignation to take effect not later than March 15. Geyer gave no reason for his action.

DON N. GEYER. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

John P. Case of Naperville, president of the association, issued a statement announcing the receipt of Geyer's resignation and said no plans had been made to fill the vacancy. Geyer insisted that his move was not the result of any friction or dissatisfaction with the other officials.

Ask Him to Reconsider.

"We are sorry to see Mr. Geyer go and have asked him to reconsider," Case said. "The board of directors of the association has not formally passed on the resignation. The next regular meeting is scheduled for Feb. 13."

Geyer, in tendering his resignation, remarked that the association was in sound condition, with its milk sold until Sept. 1, 1936, on a contract basis and was, therefore, in a strong position to adjust itself to a change in management. Geyer said that his future plans were indefinite, but he indicated he would continue in some branch of the dairy industry.

Named Manager in 1929.

Geyer was a charter member of the association and was elected director at large at the first annual meeting in March, 1926. In 1929 he was elected secretary and manager, the position he held until his resignation. His salary was $11,520 a year.

During the milk strike last year Geyer's management of the association was assailed by striking dairy farmers. Several weeks ago while he was addressing a meeting of McHenry county farmers his parked automobile was riddled by bullets.

U. S. SUES CAPONE TO GET $127,000 IN ALCOHOL TAXES

Liens for $127,439 each against Al Capone, former gang chief now serving a term in federal prison for income tax evasion, and Hymie [Loud Mouth] Levin, Capone's former loop collector who recently served an 18 month term on a similar charge, were filed in the United States District court yesterday. The liens, filed by Carter H. Harrison, collector of internal revenue, cover alcohol taxes allegedly unpaid from 1921 to 1932, which takes in the prohibition era when Capone and his gang were at the height of their power.

An income tax lien was also filed yesterday against William H. Malone, former head of the Illinois tax commission, who is a fugitive in Europe on a tax evasion indictment. Malone allegedly owes $250 in income taxes for 1933.

The memory of "B. Franklin, Printer," was honored yesterday on the 230th anniversary of his birth, when the Old Time Printers' association placed a wreath at the foot of the Benjamin Franklin statue in Lincoln park.

The ceremony, an annual event with the Old Time Printers, took place at 1 p. m., but a further observance of the anniversary will be held tonight when the association holds a reunion and dinner-dance at the Stevens hotel.

Dr. Allen D. Albert, a Franklin student, will deliver the principal address. Dr. Gerson B. Levi, rabbi of the Temple Isaiah Israel, will give the invocation. William F. Howe is president of the group.

WOMAN TRIES TO ATTACK POLISH FOREIGN CHIEF

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WARSAW, Jan. 17.—Polish officials today hushed up news of an attempt made to attack Josef Beck, foreign minister, as he was leaving the parliament house yesterday evening after appearing for the second time before a parliamentary committee to answer questions about Poland's foreign policy.

A small crowd was gathered before the parliament house entrance, and as Beck left the building an unidentified woman, well dressed and about 25 years old, ran toward the minister. She was immediately seized by Beck's bodyguard and hustled into the parliament building.

Officials of both regular and political police refused to divulge her name, but said she has been examined by medical experts and found insane. News of the attack spread rapidly through Warsaw, but no mention of it has been published in the closely censored Polish press.

HORNER TO CARRY FIGHT INTO OPEN AT PARLEY TODAY

Democratic Fireworks Due at State Session.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Democratic fireworks are looked for today when the Democratic state central committee meets for a showdown on the question of indorsing Gov. Henry Horner or Dr. Herman N. Bundesen for the governorship nomination.

The governor, running for a second term, was ditched Sunday by the slate makers of the Illinois party organization, and Dr. Bundesen, head of the Chicago board of health, was made their choice. The Cook county organization has since ratified this slate. At 2 o'clock today the state committee, in a session at the Morrison hotel, is to consider similar action.

The call for the meeting was issued yesterday by Bruce Campbell of Belleville, state chairman. At once the lines began to be tightened, the Horner camp preparing for a battle before the committee.

Plan Roundup of Proxies.

The Campbell call, after urging all members to be present in person, asked them, if unable to attend, to send their proxies to Chairman Campbell. At once the Horner camp sent wires to friendly committeemen downstate emphasizing the fact that their presence was urgently needed, and asking, if they could not come in person, to send their proxies to Dan Sullivan, secretary of the state committee. Mr. Sullivan, departmental auditor, is the governor's political adviser.

It was indicated that the Horner camp will make a drive for opening the meeting to the press on the Woodrow Wilsonian idea of "open covenants openly arrived at." Open publicity, it was pointed out, would be in sharp contrast to the secrecy which in recent years has enveloped the meetings of the Cook county organization.

Horner Hopes Run High.

The Horner group indicates it will fight against any slate indorsement by the state committee on the ground that this is in violation of the spirit of the direct primary law.

The voting of the state committeemen, who are elected by congressional districts, will be on the basis of the primary vote cast in their districts. The talk in politics last night was that the anti-Horner group expects to have enough votes to control.

Gov. Horner held conferences during the day at the Congress hotel, and headquarters are expected to be opened next week, possibly at the Hotel Sherman.

Frederick E. Merrills of Belleville, chairman of the St. Clair county Democratic committee, announced last night that the St. Clair delegation will give its unqualified support to Gov. Horner. The announcement was considered significant in view of the fact that Belleville is Campbell's home.

The Courtney Situation.

The controversy over whether the Democratic organization would indorse State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney simmered down somewhat yesterday. Some of the party chiefs took the view that although there have been personal grievances, they would not affect action on Mr. Courtney, who has announced himself for renomination on his record.

Committeemen express a fear of any battle with Courtney, pointing out that if he were ditched and then hooked up with Horner it would tear the primaries wide open, and many a payroller would be out in the snow.

The Horner camp has not as yet decided whether it will put an entire state ticket into the field. It was indicated that in case it does Charles Dougherty, an asisstant state's attorney, might be favored for state auditor. A downstater would be picked for lieutenant governor, while the intimation was that no one would be put up in opposition to Secretary of State Hughes, Attorney General Kerner, and John C. Martin, organization slate candidate for state treasurer.

Granted Divorce

MRS. JEAN PLATT KAHN.

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Superior Judge Oscar F. Nelson granted a divorce yesterday to Mrs. Jean Platt Kahn, 1250 Lawndale avenue, from Wayne Kahn. Kahn was arrested a week ago on a charge of bigamy. He married a second wife, Mrs. Mary Blumenfeld Kahn, on March 18, 1934, and they have a son, Wayne Jr., 1 year old. Judge Joseph B. David, before whom Kahn appeared in the Criminal court on the bigamy charge, stated that if the first Mrs. Kahn got a divorce he would perform a legal marriage ceremony for Kahn and his second wife when the case is called Tuesday.

INDORSE MASTRO TO SUCCEED TO PRIGNANO'S JOBS

Nicholas Mastro, an investigator in the corporation counsel's office, was indorsed for ward committeeman by the 20th ward regular Democratic organization yesterday to succeed Albert J. Prignano, committeeman and state representative who was murdered three weeks ago.

At the same meeting Mastro and State Representative Charles Coia were indorsed for nomination and election to the Illinois house at Springfield from the 17th district, Mastro for Prignano's seat and Coia for his own seat, which he has held for eight terms.

EDWARD A. HAYES DENIES AMBITION TO BE GOVERNOR

Appearance of petitions downstate for Edward A. Hayes of Decatur for the Republican nomination for governor brought a statement last night from Mr. Hayes disavowing any candidacy.

Mr. Hayes, a past national commander of the American Legion, is manager of the campaign of Frank Knox for the Republican nomination for president. His statement saying he is a "neutral" follows:

"My attention has been called to the fact that petitions are being distributed over the state of Illinois, designed to bring about my candidacy for governor. While I greatly appreciate the efforts of my friends, I am not a candidate and do not intend to become a candidate for governor.

Neutral to All, He Says.

"As the chairman of the 'Frank Knox for President' committee, I am and will remain friendly, but entirely neutral, as to any and all prospective candidates for office on the Republican ticket."

At the Hotel La Salle headquarters it was surmised the petitions were put out by downstate friends of Mr. Hayes, who was regarded as a governorship possibility after the Republican Grass Roots conference at Springfield, in which he took a leading part.

In Cook county, Republican politics lagged. The county committee will not begin considering candidates until next week. Candidacies for state and county positions are still to be presented.

Brooks Leads in Polls.

Meanwhile, George F. Harding, who is supporting Wayland Brooks for the governorship, gave out the results of some polls taken at various points in the city.

"We have taken a great number of these," said Mr. Harding. "They invariably show Mr. Brooks far in the lead of other candidates."

A few samples said to be typical were cited: At the Rock Island station in the 19th ward a poll yielded Oglesby 5, Small 4, Brooks 164, Caldwell 10, Searcy 1. At Irving Park and Milwaukee avenues a poll showed: Oglesby 2, Small 35, Carlstrom 63, Brooks 116, Caldwell 6, Searcy 7. At 11th street and Michigan avenue a poll yielded: Oglesby 8, Small 30, Carlstrom 31, Brooks 103, Caldwell 5, Searcy 5, Schnackenberg 4, Kuhn 1.

INDS PEONAGE UNDER U. S. FLAG IN PORTO RICO

U. U. Expert Calls Jibaro "Forgotten Man."

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

The Jibaro, an American citizen, forming three-quarters of the population of Porto Rico, is truly the forgotten man of our time, in the opinion of Prof. William H. Haas of Northwestern university. Dr. Haas has recently completed a report on his last summer's survey of conditions on the island, which became an American protectorate and later a territory as a result of the Spanish war. Secretary of the Interior Ickes has recently returned from the island and has promised an effort to make independent farmers of these peons.

"Although an American citizen," said Dr. Haas, "the Jibaro knows not the meaning of the status and may not even be aware of the high honor thrust upon him by official decree. He doesn't bother about citizenship; it is food that he wants. He has become lost in the hills, like our southern mountaineers. History has ignored him. He has been ruthlessly exploited by those privileged to help him.

White Blood Dominates.

"The name Jibaro was given long ago in Porto Rico to one living in the country. He is a part of Indian, Spanish, and black cultural elements fused into one. Physically and culturally he is a product of four centuries of amalgamation in the new world. In the present admixtures white blood dominates.

"The laws have definitly consigned the Jibaro to a state of peonage, a state which he has held so long that in the presence of his superiors he will stand barefooted, hat in hand, head and eyes lowered as if awaiting the order of an executioner. Such is life for one group of American citizens.

"The Jibaro population is now 78.2 per cent of the entire population. Many have been forced to go to the cities, where they build their huts on nonactive land. The wretchedness of the group beggars description.

Peaceable and Kindly People.

"The island districts seethe with misery. Housing facilities are inadequate. Many are the cases where two or more families with their numerous brood occupy a small, one room cabin. Yet they are peaceable and kindly, ready to share their meager store with a stranger or run an errand for him.

"It is almost inconceivable to one accustomed to good food and regular meals that the Jibaro and members of his family have any energy left for work, on the diet conditions forced upon them. With only a cup or two of black coffee for breakfast, the worker may walk from his hillside house several miles to his work, and then work from dawn to dusk for less than a dollar a day. He is definitly a man with the hoe. The hopelessness of his situation has become almost second nature to him. The Stars and Stripes have brought no liberty that he did not have under the Red and Gold of Spain.

Cane Interests Take Rich Land.

"Sugar cane under the protective arms of a tarif law is by far the most profitable crop. Sugar lands under the control of large corporations have taken the limited areas of rich, flat coastal lands and have pushed into and up valleys. With this extension has gone the food crop land. Where corn once grew, cane now waves its glossy leaves.

"The little plot once allotted the Jibaro for his food crops is now 'too valuable' to allow him to putter around in. With the high density of population of 482 per square mile, no longer does the one acre in ten in food crops begin to supply the island with food. Imported food is too high for the Jibaro.

"The plight of the Jibaro must be alleviated before the island can be said to be on a firm footing. The resources of the island are too limited to take care of such an overdense population. The only hope lies in a directed policy that is free of party politics or favoritism. The shame of the situation in which we, the richest nation on earth, find ourselves, must be remedied."

MUSIC ON RADIO LATEST CLEW IN LIGGETT MURDER

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 17.—[Special.]—A new clew that may enable authorities to fix the exact time of the Walter W. Liggett murder Dec. 9 entered the case today as prosecution and defense attorneys were completing preparation for the start Monday of the trial of Isadore [Kid Cann] Blumenfeld on a first degree murder charge.

Peter S. Neilson, assistant Hennepin county attorney, was checking the "log" of a radio station. He sought to determine what time the evening of Dec. 9 a certain melody was broadcast. He said he had received a telephone call from a woman who said she had heard the shots which killed the weekly newspaper publisher at the same time the musical selection was coming over the radio.

Neilson said he sought this information in an effort to fix more exactly the minute of the shooting and make a closer check on the time elements in the alibi offered by Cann, who contends he was in a loop barber shop at the approximate time of the murder.

Meyer Shulberg and Sam Kaufman, associates of Cann in the liquor distributing firm for which he is sales manager, conferred with County Attorney Ed J. Goff today. What happened at the conference was not disclosed.

Wesley Andersch, scheduled to be a key witness for the state in Cann's trial, was sued for divorce late today by his estranged wife, Mrs. Mildred Andersch.

Touhy Taken to St. Paul for Trial

WEAVER NAMED AS KIDNAPER OF BANKER BREMER

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 17.—[Special.]—The second anniversary of the $200,000 kidnaping of Edward G. Bremer, St. Paul banker, today found the government putting its final knots in the web which has been drawn around three of the 26 persons indicted for the abduction.

Of the others, chiefly members of the Barker-Karpis gang, all but two have been accounted for since Bremer was seized on a St. Paul street Jan. 17, 1934.

Alvin Karpis and Harry Campbell still are at large. The remainder of the 26, excepting the three on trial, are in prison or dead.

In the trial of Harry Sawyer, William Weaver and Cassius McDonald the government centered its attention on Weaver today.

Byron Bolton, confessed member of the kidnap gang, identified Weaver as one of the men in the Bensenville, Ill., hideout where Bremer was held for 21 days and named Alvin Karpis, Arthur [Doc] Barker, Harry Campbell and Harold Alderton as others who were there.

At the same time, as the government neared the end of its direct testimony, an attempt by Weaver's counsel to put blame for the Bremer abduction on the Jack Klutas gang of Chicago, was blocked by Judge Gunnar H. Nordbye, who sustained an objection to "going into other mobs."

Bolton, awaiting sentence for his part in the kidnaping, also told of seeing Sawyer in the Bensenville house.

Lower Bail Refused

Tommy Touhy, once the leader of a now shattered outlaw gang, was taken to St. Paul yesterday to stand trial in federal court for his part in the robbery of $78,000 from a mail truck in Minneapolis on Jan. 3, 1933. His removal was ordered earlier in the day by Federal Judge Walter C. Lindley of Danville, sitting here. Touhy, too ill to appear before the judge, remained in an anteroom during the court session.

Before ordering the removal Judge Lindley denied Touhy's petition that his $50,000 bond, originally set by the St. Paul grand jury, be reduced to $30,000. Friends of the outlaw had scheduled property they said was worth $100,000 for the bond, but the government insisted that it was insufficient.

Touhy was arrested at 3130 Palmer square on Jan. 3.

TEST FARMER'S SANITY.

Edward Meintzer, 49 years old, a farmer living on Techny road, a half mile southwest of Northbrook, was taken to the county psychopathic hospital yesterday for an examination after he had fired a shot through a floor of his home and told police he wanted to kill himself.

LOTS OF MAGIC—EVEN AN EGG, BUT NO RABBITS

Newest Feats Displayed by Masters.

There probably will be few if any green, white, and purple rabbits popping out of magicians' hats in 1936, if the annual originality night of the Chicago assembly of the Society of American Magicians may be used as a magical barometer.

Nor, judging from last night's show at the Cube theater, 218 South Wabash avenue, where magician met magician to display new, original feats, will there be many egg acts in 1936. Only one egg was whisked out of the thin air during the evening, and it, unfortunately, cracked—to the dismay of young Hugh Riley, its "producer," and to the hilarious delight of the seasoned audience.

Calendar Juice Has a Kick.

Have you ever heard of calendar juice? Neither had the majority of the magicians, until Bert Gustus, an exponent of "mental magic," arose and took a long swig of pink liquid.

"It gives you power to dispense with all calendars," he said, as he smacked his lips over the magic potion, "and to recite dates, or days in the week. Give me any date," he told the audience, "and I'll tell you the day of the week."

"March 11, 1911?" came the request. "Saturday," was the answer.

"February 4, 1902?"

"Tuesday."

"Jan. 17, 1936?" came a call.

"Professor" Gustus put a fumbling hand to his gray hair. "January 17, 1936" he repeated, puzzled, as the audience guffawed. "Oh," he finally said, "that's today, today—why, today is Friday."

Produces Golf Equipment.

Russell Walsh, iron company executive who practises magic as a hobby, gave a performance which his fellow magicians pronounced "real artistry." Out of air, to which he gave a golf club atmosphere, he produced all the requisites for a golf game, from flags to tees ["a patent tee of which I am the patentee"] to a bottle of Scotch and an immense goblet. With them he produced long, shiny golf clubs, which he caused, equally mysteriously, to vanish.

And then there was Ernest Jackson, who chewed up a glass bottle and washed it down with kerosene; George Turner, who pulled 27 handkerchiefs from an empty trunk; Earl Lehman, who changed clear water into yellow or black, and Hampden McLaughlin, who wrote a spirit picture with fire.

But no rabbits, anywhere, and only one cracked egg.

BUS-L TRANSFER SWAPPING PLAN TO BEGIN TONIGHT

Elevated to Honor Slips at 27 Stations.

Free transfers between trains of the elevated lines and buses of the Chicago Motor Coach company will be issued beginning at midnight tonight. The transfers will be given when requested on payment of the regular 10 cent cash fare charged by both systems and will be honored at 27 elevated stations.

Introduction of these transfers marks the second step in the establishment of a universal transfer system among the transportation services in Chicago, which first was proposed by Mayor Kelly. Following the mayor's suggestion, Barnet Hodes, city corporation counsel, submitted to the Illinois commerce commission detailed proposals for liberalizing the transfer policy.

Three Steps in the Program.

Last Sept. 22 the Chicago Surface lines and the elevated lines began exchanging transfers under an order to give the practice a one year trial. In November the commission directed that the bus company and the elevated lines start honoring each other's transfers on Jan. 6. At the request of the "L" company this date was postponed until Jan. 19.

The third major phase of universal transfers, that between street cars and buses, is now under consideration by the commerce commission with a decision expected some time next month.

There has been a constantly increasing use of joint transfers between surface and elevated lines with indications that joint rides btween the two systems will be taken by upward of 25 million passengers during the experimental year designated by the commission. The commission order on elevated-bus transfers, likewise, is for a one year period.

New Rules for Passengers.

The present order permits the use of more than one motor coach line in the free transfer arrangement, but passengers will be allowed to take only one ride on the elevated for a single fare.

A passenger starting his trip on the elevated within the city limits will be given a green transfer, on request, which will permit him to transfer to a motor coach line at one of the twenty-seven stations shown in the map printed on this page. He will not be permitted again to board the elevated on the same transfer.

A passenger starting on a bus will be given an orange transfer, on request, which will entitle him to board the elevated at a transfer station. At the end of the elevated ride, if it is a transfer point, he may again board a bus line without charge on presentation of the orange transfer.

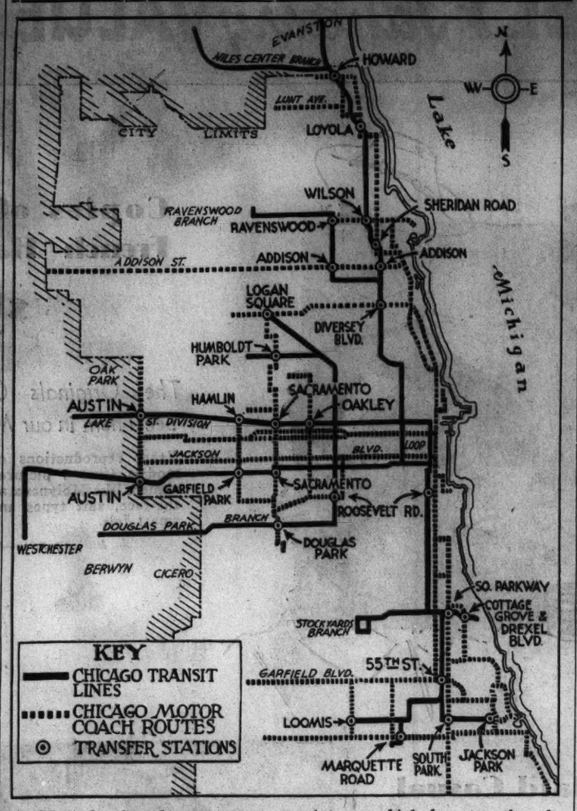
Two Slips Are Required.

The passenger starting out on a bus may use more than one bus line to reach the transfer point on the elevated, but is required to obtain an intra-system transfer in addition to the orange transfer.

As in the system between the surface and elevated lines, a passenger desiring to transfer to a bus must before leaving the elevated station stamp his transfer in a time-stamping machine.

A passenger on a bus route crossing an elevated line may transfer to the "L" at any station. In this respect the system differs from the surface-elevated arrangement which requires transfer at the first intersecting line. The ordinary restrictions on reverse riding and limits on time are retained.

Bus-Elevated Transfer Points



Map showing the twenty-seven points at which free transfers between elevated and bus lines will be issued under new system, which goes into effect at midnight tonight.

KIPLING, GREAT BRITISH WRITER, TAKEN BY DEATH

Succumbs at 70 of Stomach Ailment.

the silver jubilee of King George V. of England. It was compared unfavorably with his "Recessional," and critics declared it lacked the fire and zest of his earlier works.

In 1935 official Nazi newspapers described him as a "fanatic hater of Germans and one of the bitterest enemies of Germany." The outburst resulted from a letter Kipling had written, saying:

"The Boche has learned nothing from the last war, and he has suffered comparatively little from it."

Kipling was born on Dec. 30, 1865, in Bombay, India, where his father, the son of a Wesleyan clergyman, was a professor of architectural sculpture in the British School of Art.

Kipling was named Rudyard after a lake in Staffordshire, where his father, John Lockwood Kipling, met and courted Alice MacDonald.

In 1868 his mother took him to England, where, in the same year, his sister was born. The next year the mother returned to India with the children. In 1871 both parents went to England with the children, leaving them in the care of friends to be educated.

Revealed Talents Early.

At the age of 13 Rudyard was placed in the United Service college at Westward Ho in North Devon. The boy's masters were quick to notice his precocity and his exceptional talent for English literature and the classics, but they found it impossible to make him pursue any regular course of study.

In school he began devoting more and more of his time to original composition and verse. Soon his essays appeared regularly in the school newspaper, of which he afterward became editor, and in the Bideford Journal.

Despite his love for a bookish life he took a keen interest in outdoor sports. He was a stockily built lad, and when he played in their games he showed more endurance than most of his companions.

His eyesight had greatly failed at the age of 10 as a result of overstrain, and after that he wore spectacles with divided lenses. Even these did not enable him to see clearly, and his constant stumbling brought him the nickname "Beetle."

After finishing his course at Westwood Ho in 1882 he sailed for India to take a position on the Civil and Military Gazette and Pioneer at Lahore. Here his capability as a journalist was swiftly recognized by his superiors.

First Book Out in 1886.

Kipling's first book, "Departmental Ditties," was published in India in 1886. The author set most of his own type and bound the book himself. Every copy was sold in a few weeks and the book was widely circulated.

After five years on the Gazette, Kipling joined the staf of the Pioneer in Allahabad. While he was on the Pioneer he published his first prose work, "Plain Tales from the Hills." The short stories, "Soldiers Three," "The Gadsbys," "Under the Deodars," "The Phantom Rickshaw," and "Wee Willie Winkee" also were published at this time.

After two years on the Pioneer Kipling left on a tour of the world, going first to Japan and then to America. His experiences on his wanderings left a keen impression on his mind, and many of them are recorded in "The Light That Failed," in which the hero, Dick Haldane, bears a likeness to the author.

On his return to London he lived in a garret and began a dreary struggle to earn his living with his pen. Writing of his poverty at this time, Kipling said: "It is not pleasant for a man of catholic tastes and healthy appetites to exist for twenty-four days on 50 shillings."

A bit later Macmillan & Co. accepted "Plain Tales from the Hills." It was successful at once. It was republished in America, where it was received as warmly as in England. His other Indian stories were speedily reprinted, and almost overnight he became the most widely known writer in England.

Married Yankee Girl.

In 1892 the author again visited America. On his return to England in the same year he married Miss Caroline Starr Balestier, daughter of the late Wolcott Balestier of New York. After a wedding trip to Japan they settled on the estate of Mrs. Kipling's family at Brattleboro, Vt., where their two children were born. They remained there until 1896, when they settled in England.

Kipling has published more than a hundred volumes. By far the most famous of his works are those dealing with the British common soldier —"Tommy Atkins"—in India.

These stories, with "Barrack Room Ballads," "The Jungle Book," "Many Inventions," "The Seven Seas," and "Soldier Stories," all published between 1890 and 1900, have become better known than most of his later novels and poems.

His other works include "Puck of Pook's Hill," "Captains Courageous," "The Drums of the Fore and Aft," and "Recessional." The last mentioned appeared first in the London Times and was subsequently chosen as the poem to be read at Queen Victoria's second jubilee in 1897.

Lost Son in War.

During the world war, in which his 18 year old son John was lost, he produced descriptive stories of the armies, including "The New Armies in Training," "France at War," "Fringes of the Fleet," and "Sea Warfare," as well as some small volumes of war poetry. In 1920 he published "Letters of Travel."

Kipling was the first Englishman to receive the Nobel prize for literature, which was awarded to him in 1907. The selection caused a wave of adverse comment to sweep England at the time, particularly in view of the several prominent British writers who were ignored by the committee of awards.

Kipling's failure to be named poet laureate was attributed to two different poems, but Kipling himself never commented on the once widely discussed controversy. In one of his "Barrack Room Ballads" he was said to have "insulted" Queen Victoria with a description of the "Widow of Windsor," but another legend credited his failure to a poem entitled "The Bastard King of England."

HOUSE KIPLING BUILT IN VERMONT IN 1892 IS STILL STANDING

Brattleboro, Vt., Jan. 17.—(AP)—Few in this small Vermont town tonight could recall the days when Rudyard Kipling wandered about the countryside here. A brother-in-law, Beatty Balestier, lives in nearby Dummerston.

However, the house which Kipling built and where he wrote, among other books, "Jungle Book" and "Many Inventions," still stands on a slope in Dummerston. Kipling built the home, called Naulahka," shortly after he came here in 1892, and remained until 1897.

One Brattleboro resident, Arthur V. D. Piper, a lawyer, remembers going to the Kipling home as a lad to deliver some curtain material. Residents recall that Kipling came here on shopping trips, but seldom mingled with the townspeople.

TUNNEL BUILDER CALLS SILICOSIS SUITS A HOLDUP

Gauley Bridge, W. Va., Jan. 17.—(AP)—The head of the firm which drilled Hawk's Nest tunnel declared today 450 suits filed by workmen who claimed to have contracted silicosis constituted a gigantic "holdup and blackmail."

P. H. Faulconer, president of Rinehart & Dennis, contractors of Charlottesville, Va., came to this city near the 10 million dollar hydroelectric development with the avowed purpose of "letting out the whole truth about this job," which a congressman claims caused the death of 476 men.

"Only 48 men died during the work here," he said. "I don't know how many had silicosis, but most of them died of pneumonia. And during that epidemic of pneumonia we had a lower death rate in our construction camps than the rest of this county.

"We paid into the state compensation fund $166,000, but the Supreme court of West Virginia ruled that silicosis was not covered in the provisions of the law.

"Since that time we have paid out over $300,000 to the silicosis racket.

"The records show that men brought suits who had never been in this tunnel, and some others by men who actually were in the tube an hour."

WPA Wreckers Put Street Back as They Found It

Workmen yesterday completed the task of resurfacing that part of the street in the 6700 block on Perry avenue which was torn up Wednesday by Works Progress administration laborers before a protest of the property owners stopped further demolition. The street was said to be in good condition, having been laid less than five years ago by private contractors. A guarantee has not expired on the paving.

HONORED BY POSTMASTER.

Oconto, Wis., Jan. 17.—[Special.]—Frank J. Horak, Oconto postmaster, has been named regional director of postmasters in Wisconsin and Illinois, it was announced today in a communication received from William H. McCarthy, San Francisco postmaster, president of the National Association of Postmasters.

BRIDGE OPENINGS SHOW INCREASE OVER LAST YEAR

Trafic Delayed a Total of 150 Days.

Chicago trafic was delayed more times and more hours in 1935 due to bridge openings for vessel passages than in any year since 1931, according to a compilation prepared by Harbormaster William J. Lynch. The figures showed that the 54 bridges operated by the city were raised 55,991 times and held up trafic a total of 215,961 minutes last year.

The number of openings was 364 greater than in 1934 and compared with 49,373 in 1932, the low of recent years, and with 67,572 in 1931. The total time the bridges were opened in 1935 equaled nearly 150 days or approximately 450 eight hour days. Trafic was delayed about three days more in 1935 than in 1934.

Downtown Spans Show Gain.

Increases in openings of the sixteen downtown bridges from Michigan avenue to Van Buren street more than accounted for all of the gain in 1935. The sixteen bridges were opened 22,146 times compared with 20,136 in 1934, an increase of 2,010.

Examination of the figures for the downtown bridges discloses further that the eight bridges from Michigan avenue to Franklin street, which serve the heavy road trafic crossing the main river to and from the downtown district, were opened more times than in any year since 1930. These eight bridges were opened 50 per cent more frequently in 1935 than in 1934, the number showing an increase from 9,003 to 13,583 times. The other eight downtown bridges between Lake and Van Buren streets were opened 2,570 times fewer than in 1934. The decline in the south branch of the river was due to the discontinuance of a car ferry service by one of the railroad companies.

The openings of the eight bridges over the main river blocked trafic a total of 727 hours, or 91 eight hour days. The sixteen downtown bridges halted trafic 1,287 hours, or approximately 161 eight hour days.

Comparison for 3 Years.

The following table shows the number of openings of the downtown bridges in each of the last three years and the average time for each opening in 1935:

	—No. of openings—			Ave. time
	1933.	1934.	1935.	in min.
Michigan	1,068	1,110	1,643	4.1
Wabash	1,029	1,101	1,617	4.2
State	1,337	1,706	2,130	3.6
Dearborn	1,091	1,177	1,701	3.3
Clark	944	1,077	1,596	3.2
La Salle	824	927	1,560	3.2
Wells	930	963	1,651	4.0
Franklin	947	942	1,691	3.1
Lake	1,265	1,321	1,046	4.4
Randolph	1,346	1,379	1,091	3.1
Washington	1,199	1,265	931	3.1
Madison	1,184	1,282	949	3.4
Monroe	1,208	1,292	1,089	3.1
Adams	1,182	1,298	905	3.3
Jackson	1,152	1,289	963	3.3
Van Buren	1,664	2,097	1,589	3.2
Totals	18,470	20,136	22,146	3.4

The cost of operating the fifty-four bridges in 1935 was $883,595, which was an increase of $68,317 over the 1934 figure. In 1933 the cost was $792,237, in 1932 $794,233, in 1931 $984,806, and in 1930 $876,686.

SCHAAF TO FACE JURY IN DEATH OF MRS. HENNEMAN

CRIMINAL COURT.

Dominick DeChristopher, assault to rob, sentenced to 1 to 14 years in the penitentiary; Milton Rayford, larceny, sentenced to 10 years in the penitentiary under the habitual criminal act by Judge Joseph B. David.

Wallace Jaks, robbery, sentenced to 20 years in the penitentiary under the habitual criminal act by Judge Denis J. Normoyle.

A coroner's jury yesterday closed the inquest into the death of Mrs. Elsie Henneman, 35 years old, 6643 Normal avenue, and ordered William Schaaf, 32 years old, 2442 North Austin avenue, held to the grand jury on a charge of murder. Mrs. Henneman was the wife of George Henneman, secretary and treasurer of local 191 of the painters' union. Schaaf was formerly financial secretary of the union.

Mrs. Henneman was killed Jan. 3 by a shotgun blast as she rode with her husband in their automobile in front of 333 Root street. Henneman escaped unhurt by falling to the floor of the automobile. He said at the inquest that he recognized Schaaf as the man who fired the shotgun from an automobile that drove up beside the Henneman car. The driver of the car is still being sought.

Schaaf denied the charge and said he had been at home the night of the slaying. His wife supported his alibi.

BEG YOUR PARDON.

An item yesterday said that William H. Gallagher, who appeared before Judge Rudolph F. Desort in an alimony case, is 60 years old. Mr. Gallagher says his correct age is 53.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 20 years, and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation.

Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, just a healing, soothing vegetable laxative, mild and pleasant.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They help cause the bowels to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth"—bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache caused by constipation — you should find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets.

Thousands take them to keep right. Try them. 15c, 30c, 60c.

LOUIS SHAPIRO.

Circuit Judge Stanley H. Klarkowski yesterday sent Louis Shapiro, 70 years old, to the county jail on a contempt of court charge until he accounts for a shortage of $10,361 in the funds of an apartment building he manages. The building is at 612 Sheridan road, Evanston.

Shapiro owns an equity in the building, on which a mortgage was foreclosed in 1933. He was appointed manager with instructions to turn all receipts over to the Chicago Title and Trust company, receivership trustee. On Jan. 6 Judge Klarkowski ordered Shapiro and his lawyer, Isaac K. Goodman, to account for the funds collected.

Shapiro asserted yesterday that he had turned the funds over to Goodman, but the lawyer produced receipts showing that he had turned them back to Shapiro. Judge Klarkowski continued the hearing as to Goodman for 30 days, and instructed Assistant State's Attorney John C. Courtney, whom he summoned to the courtroom, to investigate any possibility of conspiracy between Shapiro and Goodman.

FRANK J. BAIER 94; 43 DESCENDANTS CELEBRATE TODAY

FRANK J. BAIER.

The eight children, twenty-one grandchildren, and fourteen great-grandchildren of Frank J. Baier will gather today in his home at 5309 North McVicker avenue in a reunion to celebrate his 94th birthday. Mr. Baier has been a Chicago resident for sixty-five years.

Born in Silges, Germany, in 1842, he came to the United States in 1869. He arrived in Chicago in 1871, only a few months before the great fire of that year. He settled with his bride on Kinzie street near the river. His home was near the railroad supply house at South Water and Wells streets, where he was employed as a cabinet maker.

The night of the fire he made three trips to his employer's plant, saving his tools and some valuable material. Realizing his own house was in the path of the flames, he hastily dug holes in his yard and buried most of his household belongings, thus saving them, although the house was consumed as the fire swept northward.

MOTOR CAR TURNS ON OWNER; STIRS UP A LOT OF GRIEF

Edward Sargeant, 45 years old, of Glenview, told Judge Harry H. Porter in the Evanston Municipal court yesterday how his own automobile turned and chased him. At the end of the recital the judge granted Sargeant a year's probation and exacted from him a promise that he would not drink or drive a car during this period.

Sargeant was arrested on a disorderly conduct charge on Jan. 1 after his automobile crashed into three parked cars at Church street and Benson avenue in Evanston.

"I cranked my car," Sargeant explained to Judge Porter. "The car was in gear. It knocked me down and ran over me. As I hung on it struck a parked car, then another. I was jarred loose as it struck a third car. I shouted at it. Then it hit a rut, caromed off a pole, and started back at me just as the police arrived."

PROBATION FOR THEFT.

Carl Hines, 25 years old, 6707 Ogden avenue, charged with complicity in the theft of 600 bundles of shingles from a lumber yard at 900 South Kostner avenue, was placed on a year's probation by Judge Matthew D. Hartigan yesterday.

70,000 STUDENTS NEEDED TO FILL CLASSES OF WPA

30,000 Now Enrolled in Cook County.

Seventy "contactors" are busy rounding up students for Works Progress administration classes in Cook county, but the program has fallen far short of its goal of 100,000 students. Enrollment in 1,400 classes was reported yesterday to have reached 30,000, with 900 teachers on the pay roll.

The duty of the "contactors" is to stir up public support for the program by speaking before women's clubs, civic groups, and parent-teacher associations. Each class must have at least ten students in order to operate.

Wide Variety of Subjects.

Available for study are 477 subjects. Included are current events, psychology, sociology, commercial law, short story writing, literary appreciation, book reviews, biology, sewing, cooking, nutrition, dietetics, history [ancient, modern, and local], business administration, and interior decorating.

The program is successor to the emergency education project, formerly operated by the Illinois Emergency Relief commission. It retains the EEP's citizenship training features, seeking to qualify and induce aliens to become citizens, with special courses for this purpose.

Norman A. Hedenberg, director of WPA education for Chicago, said that 20,000 persons are enrolled in the classes in the city, and 10,000 more in the remainder of Cook county. Although classes opened last week, registrations are still being taken in most public high schools and branch libraries.

Photographers are employed by WPA on several of its projects, it was learned yesterday. There are six camera men in various WPA districts of the state who make "before and after" and progress pictures of construction projects for permanent records.

Take Pictures in Parks.

Eight more photographers are paid by WPA to work for the Chicago park district. Four of them roam through the parks taking pictures of park buildings and driveways. Three camera men are engaged in recording trafic conditions on streets under park district jurisdiction. Another obtains photographs of recreational activities for use in books now being prepared.

Timekeepers' records summarized yesterday showed that 181,224 persons were working on 2,128 projects on Jan. 10. Of the total, 172,301 were former relief clients. Because persons who received relief at any time between May 1, 1935, and Nov. 1, 1935, are eligible for WPA employment, the latter figure does not show the number of cases removed directly from relief rolls by WPA.

POLICE ASSOCIATION TO HOLD ITS ANNUAL ELECTION TOMORROW

JAMES SULLIVAN.

Policeman James Sullivan of the homicide detail yesterday announced he is a candidate for president of the Police Benevolent association, which will hold its annual election at 159 North State street starting at 1:30 p. m. tomorrow. Sullivan and the ticket he heads are opposed by a slate headed by Sergt. Jack Flanagan of the motorcycle division. The major contest centers on the presidency, now held by Lieut. Stephen O'Mara, one of the policemen who was retired on Jan. 1 under the new age limit of 63 years.

CHIEF OF CAR MEN SUCCEEDS LEWIS IN LABOR COUNCIL

Green Reveals Election of Felix Knight.

Miami, Fla., Jan. 17.—[Special.]—Felix H. Knight, president of the Brotherhood of Railway Carmen of America, today was elected to membership on the executive council of the American Federation of Labor to succeed John L. Lewis, militant leader of the United Mine Workers of America, who resigned last November.

In connection with his announcement of Knight's election, William Green, president of the federation, revealed that he personally intervened, prior to the last elections, to save Lewis from defeat. He and Lewis often differed on labor problems.

"It was only by threat of resigning the presidency of the federation," Green told newspaper men, "that I succeeded in securing the reelection of Lewis to the place he afterward resigned."

Lewis said last fall, in explanation of his resignation, that he was "tired of looking out the window" at council session. It was generally understood he split with the council over its policy of promoting craft instead of industrial unions.

Green said Knight would arrive next week from Kansas City to participate in the council session.

Facts About RUM

Rum is a yellowish-brown liquor of fine bouquet and sweet, smooth, alcoholic taste and flavor. Jamaica is generally considered the home of rum. However, good rum is also produced in Cuba, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands.

There are two types of rum, known as Cuban type and Jamaica type. Bacardi and Ronrico are Cuban type rums. Jamaica Green Label and St. Croix are Jamaica type rums. Bacardi and Ronrico come in two types, white and gold. The white is drier, lighter in color and body and better adapted to mixing, while the gold is sweeter and preferred for straight drinking.

Because of its stimulating qualities, rum is standard equipment in the British navy.

In cooking, rum adds a unique flavor to sauces, candies, cakes and all forms of dessert.

THE WALL STREET MEMBER OF THE ADMINISTRATION.

Joseph P. Kennedy, who was credited with cleaning up a great fortune as a stock market bear between 1929 and 1933, was therefore able to contribute heavily to the Roosevelt campaign fund, and did. He gave $19,000 outright to elect Mr. Roosevelt and loaned $50,000 for the same purpose. Wall street operators usually expect to get a return on their investments. Kennedy's reward was an appointment as head of the securities commission. President Roosevelt, after many bitter words in his inaugural speech about money changers, had appointed a stock market manipulator to stop stock market manipulation.

That Kennedy was not a repentant hitting the sawdust trail was soon disclosed. Scarcely had he been inducted into office when a senate investigating committee unearthed the fact that Kennedy had only a short time previously participated in a stock pool in which he and his associates had made 395 thousand dollars. The pool was in the stock of the Libbey-Owens-Ford company and operated during the period of the post-prohibition boom. The issue was wisely chosen because, said the senate report, "the pool was materially aided by a popular delusion that the company was engaged in manufacturing glass bottles and was therefore to be classified as a repeal stock, whereas in fact it made no bottles and its business was in no way enhanced by the repeal of prohibition."

Mr. Kennedy served as chairman of the securities commission from July 1, 1934, until the 1st of October, 1935. On that day he became a private citizen, free to carry on in the stock market. Upon his resignation, however, Mr. Kennedy remained, according to Mr. Roosevelt, "a part of the administration." His membership in the administration and his previous service have not handicapped him in his operation on the exchange. On Dec. 28 he was retained to give expert advice to a company which wanted some attention given to its stock. A few days after his appointment by this company he conferred with the President, who again emphasized that Mr. Kennedy was still "a member of the administration."

The name of the company for whose stock Mr. Kennedy has become nursemaid is the Radio Corporation of America. Stock of this company is notoriously speculative. Throughout the period of booming stock prices it was the outstanding trading vehicle for speculation. Millions were made by the pools operating in it, as the price of Radio common was run up from $41 to $549 in the big bull market. In volume of trade in 1929 it led its nearest competitor by 12 million shares.

What gave some of the speculative flavor to the stock was the fact that it was run by a group of people willing to take more than average chances. They bought out the nation's vaudeville business just before variety shows went out of style. And they purchased the biggest phonograph concern when amusement via the disk was about to hit the skids. And there were other spectacular acquirements, some good and some bad.

The same interests are still identified with the company. There have been several years of deficits and the dividend on a preferred stock of the company is $21 in arrears. Dividends on cumulative preferred stocks which get that far behind are usually paid off in common stock. And in any company in which such an operation is in process it is of interest to the controlling stockholders to have the common stock sell at as high a figure as possible.

This sounds like old deal. All this was supposed to have been stopped when the security exchange act went into effect. And that, perhaps, explains why Mr. Kennedy, who lately, as chairman of the securities commission, was said to have terminated all such shenanigan, has been retained by a corporation which has an interest in having its stock rise. For whatever cause, Radio has again become a market leader and sold yesterday at the highest price in about five years.

It is not clear what is meant by being "a member of the administration" while holding no office. But whatever it is, it affords, as Mr. Kennedy's frequent conferences with the President show, an access to official and political information scandalously improper for a stock broker to have. In his article in this week's Saturday Evening Post Mr. Kennedy says, "Temptation runs side by side with opportunity through the maze-like structure of our financial markets"—and politics, we may add.

WARNING TO ILLINOIS REPUBLICANS.

Republican prospects in Illinois are encouraging and discouraging. They are good and they are bad. Possibly what makes them good tends to make them bad.

Illinois is a Republican state. In the unexpected misery of the depression it followed a false prophet with a hollow voice. It voted for Mr. Roosevelt. It got the New Deal. It is tired of the New Deal. It cannot stomach the revolution. It is not for socialism. It is ready to be Republican again.

That is the good part of it.

The belief that Illinois is prepared to turn the rascals out has acted like yeast on political ambitions. Old timers and newcomers in political action who were unwilling to come out of their corners two years ago, thinking the New Deal unbeatable, who were willing to let any one be nominated except themselves, now struggle for nomination.

Good men, men not so good, and one ancient gray wolf are in this struggle for governor. Ambitions are natural to men who look to politics for careers or for the advancement of self-interest. If a man is in politics he wants to go as far as he can in it, and if he is a good citizen he is to be encouraged. Men who control political organizations and seek power by presenting and electing candidates have to be taken into account. They may be good or bad.

The bad part of the Republican prospect in Illinois is found in this scramble for position and control. In normal times people expect a free fight if many ambitious men have reason to believe they can get something desirable. These are not normal times. They call for something better than a free fight without consideration for the public good.

Illinois wants to rid itself of the New Deal. It wants to help other states rid the nation of it. To accomplish this it is necessary that the best possible Republican ticket be nominated. If the old gray wolf of Kankakee should slink in because a number of candidates and organizations are engaged in a battle royal the good prospects will drop off the tree like rotten apples. Illinois will not go Republican. Its defection might even keep the nation from going Republican.

The Republican management, such as it is, had better change its temper. Personal ambitions should be restrained for public service. The best man for governor should be found and supported. Otherwise a glorious opportunity will be lost. The Republican party will go back to its ashes rattling a tin can.

It has the chance to remake itself. It can also jump off the high bridge.

THE RFC AND THE TENNESSEAN.

Senator Hastings of Delaware is asking a senatorial inquiry into the transfer of control of the Nashville Tennessean by the RFC to Paul M. Davis. Mr. Davis is the brother of Norman Davis, President Roosevelt's ambassador at large. The Tennessean is an important newspaper in a border state. The administration had every reason to desire this journal to remain friendly to it. One purpose of the inquiry is to determine whether this political objective was the controlling factor in the matter.

The charge is an exceedingly serious one, but the circumstances of the sale, to the extent that they have been revealed, are so curious that nothing less than a full disclosure of the facts will quiet suspicion.

The bonds through which control was acquired were the property of the Canal Bank and Trust company of New Orleans. That bank went into receivership and owed the RFC 45 million dollars. The liquidator of the bank's assets agreed with Mr. James Hammond, publisher of the Memphis Commercial-Appeal, to sell him the bonds for $200,000, the price which the bank had paid for them. Jesse Jones, chairman of the RFC, or some one responsible to him, vetoed the sale. Thereupon the RFC itself purchased the bonds and they have now been transferred to the friendly hands of Mr. Davis. No opportunity has been given Mr. Hammond to raise his bid and the statements on the matter which have been wrung from Mr. Jones have not served to quiet the suspicion that he has been playing favorites.

The senatorial inquiry may serve to disclose the political objectives, if any, which governed the sale. It may also throw light on the business methods of the RFC. Further than that, it may show whether this administration is using the money of the taxpayers to buy and retain control of the press for its own partisan purposes. The administration was balked in its attempt to control the newspapers through NRA; it may now be using less direct means to attain the same end.

The importance to the country of ascertaining the facts can hardly be exaggerated. Certainly if the administration has nothing to conceal it will welcome the inquiry.

Editorial of the Day

A PLEA TO FARMERS.

[Danville Commercial-News.]

A remarkable plea to farmers to stop arguing over the scrapping of the AAA and carry on their own crop-control program was penned by Harry S. Edbrooke of Route 2, Rankin, who says he farms 240 acres of land as a tenant. This plea appeared in the "Voice of the People," in Saturday's edition.

Writes Mr. Edbrooke in a personal letter to the editor: "It is no panacea, no cure all. Just simple, common sense. A thought that I have enlarged upon this last year until I am sure I have a possible solution to many of our farm price problems. A solution that will admit of the need of help from others and coöperation from its followers. Surely not a subsidized bromide that gives a headache to one group of our citizens while it induces indigestion in its supposed beneficiaries."

In brief, Mr. Edbrooke would use the township, county, and state organizations that were carrying on the AAA program, the records and statistics that have been gathered, with the farmers paying their share of the administrative costs, to carry on a stabilized production program "not irrigated by a flood of dollars taken forcibly from one group of Americans for our benefit."

He would unite wheat, cotton, corn-hog and other farmers and work out a balanced production which would bring increased prices naturally, regain the world market and eventually put agriculture on a profitable basis without the aid of subsidies.

Mr. Edbrooke's plan merits serious consideration. Possibly farm leaders are thinking along the same line. Such a closely knit national organization could bring efficiency in production and distribution and, while increasing financial returns on the farm, at the same time reduce living costs.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

Here to the Line, let the quibs fall where they may. Reg. U.S. Pat. Office

THE LADY on my left at dinner the other night confided she would be mighty strong for communism only a friend who has just come back from a sightseeing tour in Russia says that over there they park six families in one room. I agreed with her that living in one room with five other families would not be nice because one of the families would probably be eating onions all the time. But that wasn't her objection. She said she had a wire haired terrier and that one of the other five families or all of them might keep police dogs who would eat her cunning little wire haired with one gulp. Also among the other five families there would probably be several who snored. "And then," she concluded with a final burst of confidence, "there's that odious Mrs. Nosey, sh—don't look, she's at the other end of the table, but when the other five families were picked out to live in the same room with me and Cuthbert I just know that terrible woman and her horrible family would be one of the five; she's always copying my hats." "But," I interposed gently, "under communism maybe you could file charges against her and have her stood up in front of a stone wall and shot for copying your hats." My neighbor admitted in that case she wouldn't mind being a communist. However, she still insisted that six families living in one room would be a bit crowded. We would have gone deeper into the question, but the man across the table wanted everybody to watch a new trick he could do with matches, and so world politics and economics had to be dropped.

A KIND OF ODE TO OGDEN NASH.

If I could write as you do, Ogden Nash,
With such insouciance and nonchalance and dash;
Could give old Pegasus the rein and let him ramble
Along most any trodden road, or idly amble
Into a pathless wilderness of words, where adjectives strange and exotic thrive,
And yet, at last, arrive;
Could court the Muse of Poesy cave-mannishly;
could beat her,
And muss her hair, and take all sorts of liberties with her meter;
Could mock her spinster handmaiden, the prim Miss
Prosody, transgressing every rule of her,
And make her laugh and like it, and never know
I'd made a fool of her;
Could cause the most staid and stoic readers to laugh uproariously,
And then—this is the milk in the contented cocoanut,
so to speak—quite gloriously
Could satisfy my grateful, gleeful creditors
With money gladly paid to me by tickled editors—
Ah, what an art were mine! If it would make me
Ogden Nashish
I think I would try anything, like peruna, say, or hashish.
And, really, it seems so easy. You start out with a few offhand observations, similar to these,
then, just in the nick of time,
End with a rare, inimitable rhyme.
You catch a sleek little phrase in your claws, look this way and that,
All casually and unconcernedly, like a noncommital cat
Playing with a mouse. The little phrase proceeds to creep
Timidly into the shadows. You seem to be asleep:
"This time," your readers say,
"Goody! Aha! The quarry got away!"
But nay. Yea, a thousand times, nay.
With a sudden arching of your back and lashing of your tail you make a spring—
And that ends the thing.
O Ogden Nash, you must have an enormous, unabridged thesaurus,
Or something, to compose so many chrestomathic verses for us!
(Or, perhaps, on second thought, this lilting, literate man
Is just a super-crossword puzzle fan.)

EOLUS.

BRINGING INTO THE LIGHT the secrets of the state department just before America's entry into the great war is most illuminating. In war the statesmen have the secrets and the population have a slogan. And if it's a good hot slogan the soldiers plunge joyfully forward and have their arms and legs shot off and die repeating the slogan. Moral: To have a good war you've got to have a good slogan.

I WISH the whisky manufacturers would devote more time to cutting down the price per quart and less time to making a bottle easy to open. In old days we used a small instrument called a corkscrew to draw the cork out of a whisky bottle. Who ever sees a corkscrew these days? They must have stopped making them. They've got the likker bottles so easy to open nowadays that all you have to do to open 'em is to point at 'em and snap your fingers at 'em and—smack! they're open like that.

"OF ME A GRAIN."

The curled leaf weighted with cocoon
Will be the first to fall,
To lodge some bright September noon
Against a garden wall.

That little singing mouse, the wren,
Will be the first to fly,
To sever all connections when
A north wind chills the sky.

But Spring will find a covered leaf
Answering the rain
And, after Winter's savage grief,
The wren will sing again.

L. W. G.

MUSSOLINI says his troops have advanced a grand total of forty-four miles on the southern front. Taking into account the time that the war's been going on that's about four city blocks a day. I still believe Cæsar was a greater general than Mussolini.

How to Keep Well By Dr. Irving S. Cutter

ST. VITUS' DANCE.

CHOREA, or St. Vitus' dance, was first described accurately by a seventeenth century English physician, Thomas Sydenham, who for a time served as a captain of cavalry in Cromwell's army. It is now known as Sydenham's chorea and is an important disease of childhood.

The disease is characterized by irregular, uncoördinated movements of the muscles of the body and may be first noticed in the face as grimaces or contortions. Afflicted children are accused of "making faces" and the jerking movements may become obvious even before the disease is recognized. St. Vitus' dance is found more often in girls than in boys and is rarely seen after the age of 20.

It is necessary to distinguish between a habit spasm and true chorea. As a rule, habit spasms consist of repetitions of the same movement, such as jerking the head, twitching the eyelids, or twisting the mouth. There is no loss of power in the muscles, which is present in chorea.

It is difficult, however, to differentiate chorea from hysteria. In each of these conditions the movements may increase when the patient is being examined or is under observation. Involuntary contractions may also appear in the early stage of encephalitis [sleeping sickness].

More often than not during the development of chorea the mother will relate that the child has been extremely nervous for a few weeks. The patients themselves will first complain of feeling very tired and the muscles will show marked weakness. In other cases the onset is sudden or is preceded by a period in which the child is clumsy, dropping things that she is handling.

On thorough examination some infection can usually be traced and the chief type is closely related to that which causes rheumatism. Some authorities believe the symptoms may be due to a mild form of encephalitis.

The child must be prevented from injuring himself by adequate padding of the metal parts of the bed proper, as well as of the hands and perhaps the head. Precautions against chilling must be taken and if there is much perspiration the skin must be kept dry. Everything calculated to produce excitement—such as the presence of other children, visitors, etc.—must be eliminated. If the case is severe great difficulty may be encountered in feeding, as the head may jerk so persistently that the child cannot feed himself. Occasionally a rubber feeding tube will be required.

The diet should be largely liquid—fruits, fruit juices, and milk. As soon as the temperature disappears eggs, fish, chicken, and vegetables may be given. The last thing to add is meat.

A most important point in the treatment of chorea is that the patient shall be kept in bed for weeks beyond the time of apparent recovery. This is desirable because heart damage may occur if the child is permitted to get about before convalescence has been completely established. Even though there is no evidence of inflammation of the lining of the heart [endocarditis] there may be a slight heart enlargement and bed rest is the ideal way to assist nature to maintain normal heart muscle.

A safe rule to follow is that no child who has had even a moderately severe attack of chorea shall be allowed to return to school within three months. We must recall that we are dealing with a severe infection which has a tendency to affect the nerves, causing a marked irritation of these structures, and some enlargement of the capillaries that may lead to permanent damage if rest and freedom from care, school duties, etc., are not insisted upon.

When carefully managed the disease need not leave a damaged heart. If carelessly handled or regarded with indifference heart injury all too often results.

ANGINA PECTORIS.

Mrs. M. C. G. writes:

1. What is the cause of angina pectoris?
2. Is there a cure?
3. How should a patient with this disease take care of himself?
4. Does it come suddenly or is there a warning?
5. Is smoking harmful?

REPLY.

1. In angina pectoris the walls of the aorta are usually found to be diseased. Deposits of lime and fatty substances have brought about a condition known as arteriosclerosis, or hardening of the blood vessels.

2. Absolute freedom from subsequent attacks cannot be guaranteed, even with the best possible care, yet it is within the province of most patients to so regulate their activities that attacks will be few and far between.

3. It is important not to overdistend the stomach, hence meals should be taken leisurely and the diet should be only that which will maintain body strength without adding to weight. Overweight persons should lose most if not all of their excess fat. Worry and overwork must be eliminated and exposure to cold avoided. Heavy exercise and hurrying are prohibited and all emotional upsets must be shunned.

4. The attacks are sudden. Amyl nitrite or nitroglycerin should be immediately at hand. The patient should carry one or both with him constantly.

5. Since a marked stimulation of the heart rate is present more than an hour after smoking, indulgence in tobacco is contraindicated.

ITCHING EAR.

P. M. R. writes: I have a crawling, itching sensation around and in one of my ears. What causes this condition and what can be done to relieve it?

REPLY.

The skin irritation is probably due to a fungus infection, possibly ringworm. Iodine, in the form of Lugol's solution, may be applied cautiously. The important thing is to cleanse the ear canal and follow with some mild antiseptic. Inasmuch as the ear is an important structure it is not wise to attempt home management.

COLD SORES.

E. M. M. writes: What is the remedy for cold sores?

REPLY.

Spirits of camphor if used frequently is quite efficient. If the sore breaks, the application of a mild antiseptic ointment is of value.

WISEST COURSE.

F. M. writes: Should we consult a physician in the case of a 75 year old man with arthritis whose thumb socket slips?

REPLY.

The wisest course to follow.

From Across the Sea

BY ALEX SMALL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

CAIRO, Egypt. The Suez canal, with the implications it had for India and the whole British empire, supplied the real motive for British intervention when in 1882 they established a practical protectorate over Egypt.

The cry against "imperialism" was strong then, however, in spite of the general pride taken in the empire on which the sun never sets. So a nominal reason had to be given. That was the disordered, almost anarchical, state into which Egypt had fallen. Nowhere was the disorder worse than in finance. The country was bankrupt and in foreign receivership.

Commonly British apologists for the occupation put the blame for this financial chaos on the government of Egypt, and especially on the khedive who ruled from 1863 to 1879, Ismail. The accusation is only too true, but it does not tell the whole story. Viewed today, it is hard to see how Egypt could have avoided going into bankruptcy. That was the price which had to be paid by a people which within one-half century was trying to "go western."

The awakening of Egypt, which began when Napoleon's soldiers brought to it the doctrins of the French revolution, meant a far greater change than in mere material progress.

Egypt belonged to the Turkish empire. Though the connection had become merely nominal, and the Egyptian government could do about as it pleased, Egypt was still firmly attached to a vast spiritual empire, Islam.

Egypt was the first country in this group to try transforming itself. The process, begun a century ago, is still going on, but the essentials have been done. The other Islamic peoples have followed.

In so doing, these peoples have had to change their mode of living. The change has been more vast than the tourist ever sees, who still is fascinated by veiled women in the streets of Cairo, by pious groups outside mosques, by red fezzes and tarbooshes. The essentials have gone—the patriarchal system which gave absolute power to the male head of a family, the enslavement of women, the use of slave labor.

The process, in every one of these countries, has been accompanied by financial disorder and bankruptcy. The story was always the same. An "enlightened" sultan or khedive or bey would be eagerly offered a slice of the surplus investing capital of Europe. With it he would make some improvements, and on the strength of that get more credit.

The sequel would be the same also—foreign intervention. Hence the British protectorate over Egypt [nominally abolished now] and hence the French protectorates over Tunis and Morocco.

Just the same, the responsibility of Egyptian governments during the 19th century was heavy for the financial mess into which the country was dragged. From the departure of the French in 1801 until the British occupation in 1882, Egypt was ruled by as wild, tough, and picturesque a succession of rogues as ever poisoned a rival or looted a treasury.

Until the middle of the century Egypt was solvent. It had been ruled for 44 years by an Albanian adventurer, Mehemet [or Mohammed] Ali, an iron willed, fiery scoundrel who founded the dynasty which, in the person of King Fuad I., today sits on the throne of the country. He also founded modern Egypt. He gave it an army and a navy, schools and administration—even an empire, in the Sudan.

His achievement, in leaving the treasury with some cash in it, was remarkable for an oriental ruler. None the less, he strained the resources of the country to the limit.

His worst legacy to his successors was a peculiar economic system, more strongly resembling bolshevism than anything else. All land was his own property, and the government had a monopoly of all export-import trade. It was Mohammedan and did not suit badly the temper and institutions of Egyptians. To establish it Mehemet Ali found convenient texts in the Koran, a book which he could remember or forget according to his purpose of the moment.

His peculiar system had to be abolished before Egypt could advance farther in the ways of western progress, and the abolition of it was one of the contributing causes to bankruptcy.

CITIZENSHIP STATUS.

Chicago, Jan. 12.—[Friend of the People.]—I am a Russian citizen and was a sailor. In 1925 I was in Valparaiso and signed as a sailor on an English boat bound for New York. On arrival at New York I asked to be paid off, as I wanted to stay in New York. Have been here ever since. Am I illegally in this country? I would like to become a citizen. What steps shall I take to determine my status here? I have a child in Germany whom I would like to bring to this country. What steps shall I take to do this? My sister would like to adopt this child, as I am separated from my wife. She agrees to release the child to me, but I am at a loss to know whether I can obtain her admittance to this country as I do not know whether I am legally in this country. J. L.

It is suggested that the inquirer call at this office with the attached letter, in order that all the facts in the case may be ascertained and he may be appropriately advised.

PROBATE PROCEEDINGS.

Victorville, Cal., Jan. 10.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I am a resident of Illinois on a leave of absence in California. While here my wife died. Her estate consisted of various stocks, market value about $500. She left no will. 1. Can this be settled here in California or [2] will it be necessary to return to Illinois? J. A. H.

1. Technically, the principal probate should be where the deceased resided at the time of her death, but if you intend to continue in California it seems possible that you could handle the proceedings in such a way that the point would not be raised. First, you should try to get the transfer officers of the corporation to waive probate.

JOBS IN CHEMISTRY.

Midland, Mich., Jan. 11.—Your editorial of Sunday, Jan. 5, captioned "Chemistry," was fairly accurate at that. Ten years ago it would have been absolutely acurate, but with present conditions as they are this field is being crowded rapidly, though not as badly as some other fields.

Two examples will serve to illustrate that jobs can still be had: A chemical engineering graduate of a Big Ten school lost his job in 1932. He made a card file, listing concerns, the people to see, result of interview, etc., and developed a good sales talk. He soon received a position with a prominent midwestern chemical concern and has been with it ever since.

A chemical research minded friend dropped in today to announce his acceptance of an offer by an eastern concern. The offer contained a substantial increase in salary and was the third received from only five interviews he had at the close of school last June.

In each case there was no element of luck and no use of influence. Each person is of average intelligence and received average grades while in school. However, each knew what he wanted and worked for it in a systematic way until he received it. This should prove that results are largely up to the individual now as heretofore. BURT TAHLMAN.

RECOVERY WITHOUT A NEW DEAL.

Michigan City, Ind., Jan. 14.—Here is an extract from the Westminster Bank Review of London, England, of December, 1935:

The past five years have been exceptionally eventful. At the beginning of 1930, although the financial crisis had broken, we did not realize that not merely our financial but our whole industrial and economic system was to undergo the most severe test in its history, and there were very few who then appreciated how serious the contraction in trade was going to be. But our industrial organization has passed through this test. Since 1932 we have been able to watch the tide turning, until today production in this country is at a higher level than ever before—although we still have two million unemployed. The severe depression and subsequent recovery have inevitably made their mark not merely upon the details but also upon the general framework of our industrial structure.

They seem to be getting along pretty well without any New Deal. W. S.

TRANSFERS.

Chicago, Jan. 14.—The "L" lines announce that transfers to the Chicago Motor Coach company will be issued, effective Jan. 19. Transfers with the surface lines have been in effect about four months and the "L" lines have made no provisions for handling the increased traffic. There has been little or no increase in equipment in operation, resulting in overcrowded cars and no increase in ticket agent service. Ticket agents are forced to issue transfers in addition to making change, issuing "L" tickets, etc., with the result that passengers are compelled to line up and suffer a long wait for a chance to get on a station platform crowded to a danger point.

If the "L" desires to issue transfers, station platforms should be widened and additional ticket agents to issue transfers only should be provided. Passengers who have no interest in transfers should not be compelled to line up half way down the stairway for a chance to pay their fare, as is the case at Clark and Lake street station. PASSENGER.

THE SAN JACINTO SHAFT.

Chicago, Jan. 15.—I note in this morning's paper that Texas will erect a memorial shaft on San Jacinto battlefield near Houston, Tex., for their centennial celebration. The cost is to be $1,000,000 and the observation level will be 550 feet above the ground, "higher than the Washington monument."

Not touching on the lack of imagination which selects another shaft as the type of memorial, it seems too bad that those who had it in charge had the bad taste to go higher than the Washington monument, which in the hearts of the American people will always outrank any other memorial shaft.

Restraint is the keynote of beauty and greatness in all character. Had the announcement read that the observation level would be held to a height a few feet below the Washington monument, it would have struck a popular and responsive chord everywhere in America.

Conversely the announcement as it stand smacks of the presumptuous and vainglorious.

Let us at least hope that Texas will be consistent and show equal self-assertion in the coming national election—instead of taking orders from Washington.

Or is her centennial monument simply a revelation of her effort to get out of an inferiority complex?

Perhaps it isn't too late to mend her ways and avoid both mistakes.

BEN OLIVER.

GERMANY.

Forest Park, Ill., Jan. 14.—Why all this criticism of European dictators? Why all these cartoons depicting a giant holding a whip over a cowering nation? Have these various writers and cartoonists ever been in these countries and talked with the people there?

I spent last summer in Germany, and the picture is entirely different over there; their leader is worshiped, and he is considered their second savior. Every home contains a picture of Hitler, and the common greeting is not "How do you do?" but "Hail Hitler."

Crime in that country is at a minimum. In May a bank in a small town was robbed, and every citizen set out after the lawbreakers. Men were excused from work [and paid for time off] and by nightfall the robbers were captured!

Boys are given military training not because Germany is preparing for war but because jobs are thus created for older men—and, unbelievable though it seems, the young men are eager to serve!

Hitler has never married. He says his family is his people, and it is his desire to devote his entire time to his country. When he speaks he speaks for every German in the country! M. M.

A DANGEROUS RUT.

Chicago, Jan. 15.—While agreeing with you that something should be done to build special automobile highways, a lot of danger could be eliminated with little cost through repairs to the streets we have.

Since Foster avenue was numbered route 41 it carries a heavy trafic. Nevertheless right under the North Western railway viaduct and in the dark there is a hole in the pavement that will put a severe test on any motorist's springs. The ones who know the street run around it, in one direction with danger to people on the sidewalk, and in the other with danger to automobiles moving in the opposite direction.

It has been fixed once or twice, but the poor work lasted only a day or two. Why not repair it permanently and remove one source of danger? H. L.

STAMPS WORTH $200,000 SHOWN AT 'OPEN HOUSE'

40,000 on Display Today; Prizes Awarded.

Charles Brisley of Detroit, who has been collecting stamps for more than forty years, won first prize last night in the exhibition at the annual open house of the Chicago Philatelic society in the Hotel La Salle. He was awarded a cup donated by Dr. C. W. Hennan of Chicago, another stamp enthusiast.

More than 10,000 stamps, valued at approximately $200,000, were on exhibit at the open house yesterday and last night and dealers plan to have 30,000 additional stamps on display today and tomorrow. The Chicago Philatelic society is the oldest stamp club in the country. It was founded in 1886.

Canadian Issues Win.

The collection with which Mr. Brisley won first prize consisted of eight frames of Canadian stamps. These included the 1859 5 cent issue, a set of unperforates and perforates in unused blocks of the years 1892-'93, and proofs of the 1897 Jubilee issue. Mr. Brisley is general chairman of the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks of the Canadian National railroad lines in the United States. Stamp collecting has been his hobby since 1895.

The four unperforated items in the collection were from the 100 stamps that once caused a postal "scandal" in Canada, Mr. Brisley recalled. A Canadian public official paid off a debt by sending the 100 stamps to the creditor, Mr. Brisley said. The four stamps that ultimately found their way into Mr. Brisley's collection are valued at $10,000.

Chicagoan Wins U. S. Class.

First place in the classification of stamps of the United States and possessions was won by Elmer Stuart of Chicago. He submitted ten frames, containing all the major varieties from 1847 to 1900, including rare cancellations and plate varieties.

In twentieth century United States issues, a sub group, first prize was won by Dr. O. A. Smith of San Diego, Cal., and second place was taken by H. Uebelhack of Chicago.

In the miscellaneous stamp classification first place went to Albert Schwarz of Atlantic City, N. J., and Richard McP. Cabeen, stamp editor of THE TRIBUNE, took second place.

SATURDAY NEWS OF NEW BOOKS

Three Famous Authors Present Novels in Week

Two Books of Fact Gain Critical Praise.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"The Lorenzo Bunch," by Booth Tarkington. [Doubleday-Doran, $2.] Published yesterday.

"Career," by Phil Stong. [Harcourt-Brace, $2.] Published on Thursday.

"Dust Over the Ruins," by Helen Ashton. [Macmillan, $2.50.] Published on Tuesday.

"The Whole World & Company," by Gretchen Green. [John Day, $3.] Published on Thursday.

"The Next Hundred Years," by C. C. Furnas. [Reynal & Hitchcock, $3.] January choice of the Scientific Book club and one of two books offered for January by the Book of the Month club.

HERE are three novels by well established novelists and two books of fact to stimulate our brain cells. They have nothing in common except the approximate date of their births. Whether or not there is any astrological relation between men and women born at the same time, there seems to be nothing literarilogical about books published simultaneously.

Books, even more than human beings, seem to resemble their forbears more than they do their exact contemporaries.

Tarkington Stamp on His New Novel

"The Lorenzo Bunch," for instance, would be recognizable as a Booth Tarkington anywhere. It is genial, light, as local as dinner table gossip, as American as a hot dog, and its tragedy is cotton-wooled in laughter. It is the story of a group of comparatively young married people who live in an apartment building in, maybe, Indianapolis. The women go to the movies, have inexpensive lunches in the corner drug store together, and a sort of community party with husbands, with dancing in one apartment, cards in another, and food in a third [the crowded one or two rooms are all so much alike that it is really a party in the same room]. They like each other, not excessively, but companionably.

Into their quiet waters sails a new matrimonial barque with a Venus and an Adonis for captain and captain's mate. They are poor but very personable young things, and they quarrel with each other on both counts. What happens when the young man is spied by an arty lady and the young woman by her husband, the town's most intrepid hunter of beauties, and how the Lorenzo Bunch takes those happenings is the burden of 294 pleasant pages.

Despite the threat of tragedy to Arlene's happy marriage when husband is convinced that she has been seen with men whose very names used to break his heart, and despite the implied discontent of the Venus with her new mink fur bearing husband and of the Adonis with his new gold-handled wife, there is nothing really to stir the emotions in "The Lorenzo Bunch." It is a deft piece of work, extremely pleasant to look upon, using no harrows on the reader's heart.

Stong's "Career" a Pleasant Book

The same thing can be said of "Career," by Phil Stong. It, too, is an eminently pleasant book. It is about the Kreugers, father and son, father the owner of a country store in a little Iowa town, son studying to be a doctor. The Kreugers are responsible people. The town relies upon them and that reliance has never been in vain, although it looks for a while as though Kreuger father were going to be thoroughly disliked at least, if not tarred and feathered. Kreuger, son, saves the situation, as he saves others, by an exhibition of brawn impelled by brain.

Phil Stong, author of "State Fair," etc., writes with that particularly compelling nostalgia about a small town that its native sons have when they get well and successfully away from it.

Ashton Novel Has Archaeological Setting

Far from America is the scene of "Dust Over the Ruins," by Helen Ashton, author of "Doctor Serocold." At Wady Haroun in Arabia an old, rich amateur archæologist assembles a party to dig for buried lore. The head scientist is a fierce Welshman, Evan, who has brought along his beautiful wife. Evan's cousin, a lanky spinster, acts as secretary and helper to the ancient amateur, and a young man, just past adolescence, goes along to make himself useful.

The story has little to do with the actual ruins, but much to do with the ruins of the boy's youthful love for the disturbing woman, with the ruins of the husband's self-respect, with the ruins of the spinster's passion for her firebrand cousin, with the ruins of the old man's archæological hopes and his emotional upset.

"Dust Over the Ruins" isn't a profound book, but it is a sharply etched sketch of a beautiful but far from dumb woman.

Gretchen Green Tells Experiences

"The Whole World and Company" is the autobiography of one of the least dumb women in the world today, I should say. Gretchen Green has told the story of an almost fabulous life—her own—spent all over the globe, in New England as daughter of a clergyman, as a settlement worker in Philadelphia, in Florida as owner and "runner" of a tearoom, in New York as an official big sister, in Idaho as a combined policewoman and social welfare director, as secretary to Rabindranath Tagore in India, as traveler in China, as proprietor of a tearoom in the royal kitchens in Venice, as secretary and general factotum for Malvina Hoffman all over the east in her search for types for the bronze busts she has made for the Field museum, as helper in the Seeing Eye, that fine organization that trains dogs to guide the blind.

Gretchen Green has traveled everywhere, met royalty and waifs, and has found life and humankind uniformly exciting. The only trouble with her book is that it is really not a book at all but a series of almost unrelated anecdotes, many of them entrancingly exciting. It is no more an autobiography than Webster's dictionary is a novel. All of the material is there, but there is no "solvent" for it.

"Next Hundred Years" Is Fascinating Book

And if you wonder where I got that word "solvent" I refer you to a wholly fascinating book called "The Next Hundred Years," by C. C. Furnas, in which highly serious subjects are treated almost with jocularity.

Some one has called it a "flippant" book. It is flippant in exactly the same fashion that Hans Zinnser's incomparable "Rats, Lice, and History" is flippant. It turns on a joke whenever the thinking gets a little heavy.

There have been hundreds of popular books telling us what has already been done in science. Sometimes one thinks that there can't be much left for researchers to search for in our highly mechanized, sanitized, efficiency expertized life.

But, ha ha, says Mr. Furnas with a sardonic chuckle, you don't know—indeed nobody knows—the half of it. We think we know something about the human body, but all we can do in most cases is to tell the patient what he has. How to cure it is still unknown.

We know practically nothing about the human mind. We can't even say what "life" is with scientific accuracy. We suspect that diet makes the man, but what diet would make the perfect man is still unknown.

We know nothing about death, and logically death ought to be postponed. We are at the mercy of insects and the only injunction which effects any results is "let us spray." We do practically nothing about curing plants, whose diseases cost us $3,000 a minute.

Author Is Professor of Chemical Engineering

His chapters on chemistry are fascinating—the best in a whole book of exciting material, I think. Perhaps that is because chemistry is the author's field. He is associate professor of chemical engineering at Yale university.

Perhaps the most popular chapters will be those which deal with our mechanized life—the section he calls "Engineering"—in which he shows what dubs we are mechanically in our supposedly highly specialized age. If somebody, for instance, could find a way of harnessing it, the sunlight that falls on the earth's surface in one minute would supply the world's present heat and power requirements for an entire year, he says.

Into every field of abstract and applied science Mr. Furnas takes his sharp pen and points not at what has been done but at what hasn't. Finally he writes three chapters on the social consequences of invention and scientific discovery.

Established Novelists Add to Laurels

BOOTH TARKINGTON. PHIL STONG. HELEN ASHTON.

Two Americans and one English woman of established reputations add to their laurels as novelists this week, Booth Tarkington with "The Lorenzo Bunch," and Phil Stong with "Career," both as American as the Washington two cent stamp, and Helen Ashton, whose characters are fellow Britishers on an archaeological expedition. These three novels and two books of fascinating facts are reviewed today.

Puleston of the United States navy, director of naval intelligence, at the request of the family of the late Rear Admiral Alfred Thayer Mahan will write the great admiral's biography and he writes us: "It will be appreciated if any readers of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE who have any letters or other documents concerning Admiral Mahan will allow me to read them. Any well authenticated anecdotes relating to Admiral Mahan would also be appreciated."

Huxley Novel an Experiment in Technique

'Eyeless in Gaza' Discards Chronological Order.

BY FRANK SWINNERTON.

LONDON—[Special Correspondence]—The title of Aldous Huxley's new novel, to be published shortly in England, is "Eyeless in Gaza." The book is not only an expression of the author's personal philosophy, but a technical experiment of great interest. The events in it are arranged in what is far from chronological order [in this respect the author deliberately invokes the precedent of the movie]; but the cumulative effect is said to be very fine, and the book will be an extremely ambitious one.

Henry Williamson has been talking over the English radio, and describing why and how he became a countryman. Having, after the war, found employment as a journalist, he could not keep his job; and then resolved to walk to the west of England.

He did this, discovered a cottage which was to be let at four shillings a week, was warned by a possible neighbor that the cottage was inhabited by snakes and an owl, took it, lived there for four years with a number of pets, including a young otter, and then, upon his marriage, moved to a larger and slightly less simple abode.

He has made for himself a highly congenial life, and insists that in order to be a real countryman, as distinguished from a writer living in the country, a man must work with his hands as well as with his pen.

The result we all know, and Mr. Williamson's "Salar the Salmon" has been an outstanding success this winter. It has been a success, not only because Mr. Williamson is a devoted observer of all natural phenomena [his observation is extraordinary], but because no other man could have written the book. Real successes are achieved in this way; and in following his bent Mr. Williamson has been wise in his generation.

Every few weeks a ship leaves Liverpool, calls at Havre, Leixoes [the port for Oporto], Lisbon, Madeira, and then, having crossed the South Atlantic, finally reaches the Amazon river, up which it steams for a thousand miles.

The late Arnold Bennett and I once traveled by this ship as far as Lisbon; and it was always his wish that we should at some favorable moment make the full journey to Manaos. The moment never came, but A. S. Wadia, the well known Parsee author, has been more fortunate.

Moreover, he took with him his camera, and used the camera to such effect that his book, "A Thousand Miles Up the Amazon" [Dent] is to be lavishly illustrated. The record thus made of a remarkable journey should be delightful. And the book should appeal to many of the admirers of H. M. Tomlinson's "The Sea and the Jungle"; for Mr. Tomlinson, although he went by a different route, gives the best description of the river voyage known to me, and shows it to be as thrilling a journey as any ordinary traveler could wish.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farms

By Bob Becker

White Vs. Yellow Corn.

January 17, 1936.

THE Hereford steers on the Yorkville experimental farm this week surprised the boys by getting temperamental about the kind of food being provided. The big white-faced animals have been receiving a daily ration of yellow corn along with a lot of other things that are good to eat. A few days ago the boys started to pick a variety of white corn that was grown on the north bank of the Fox river. It was decided that some of this white corn would be given to the steers.

We have heard farmers say that yellow corn is better for fattening cattle than the white variety—something about vitamins being present in the yellow and lacking in the white corn or some such theory. Anyway, the Herefords failed to go for the white corn in a big way. One would think from their attitude that these were educated steers, distinctly vitamin conscious.

Now the boys have gone back to the feeding schedule that calls for yellow corn for the Herefords.

The workers again had to haul a lot of straw this week for bedding for the cattle. When the snow melted recently it left the quarters of the Herefords pretty wet, so a thick layer of new straw was put into the yards. Now the white-faces can lie down on a dry bedding any time they want to.

One of the lovely scenes on the farm these winter days is a flock of juncos feeding in the snow. Until a city dweller has seen these birds going after weed seeds he really cannot appreciate how much birds add to a winter landscape and at the same time do a good turn for the farmer by consuming the seeds of weeds on farm lands. I came upon about 15 juncos the other day while hiking in the snow. They let me approach quite close to them so I could watch them do a high jumping act to get food. The seeds they wanted were on the old weed stalks too high above the crusted snow for the birds to reach. So the juncos would spring into the air to reach the clusters of seeds. One might see six or eight of these neat gray breasted birds with outer tail feathers in the air at one time, all bouncing as if they were being sprung by some unseen piece of mechanism.

If the squirrels could read "no trespass" signs, the feeding stations on the Wheaton farm could be used more by the birds these days. The pesky squirrels make several raids on the food in the bird shelters every day. When such a raid is made, the covey of quail that is relying on one of the farm bird feeding stations for much of its food has to give up the dining table to the four-footed poachers. When I was looking at the feeding stations the other day I noticed where one squirrel had brazenly packed a whole ear of corn into the woods to eat it at his leisure.

The Wheaton experimental farm has a couple of new bird residents this week. They are Hungarian partridges which were secured from the Shagbark Lake Fur and Feather farm in Des Plaines. The birds will have quarters of their own because they are going to be placed in a big pen with a cornstalk shelter in one corner.

On my walk over the farm the other day I noticed evidence of tragedies among the field mouse population. The evidence was conclusive as well as interesting to read. You will see the trail of a mouse ending finally in just a blur in the snow marked by several vivid red spots. There are no tracks leading to the red stains on the snow, so it is not a four-footed marauder after the mice. On the contrary, a feathered mouse hunter is striking from above. "Game Keeper" reports a near panic in the mouse population that occurred this week. He drove a bunch of sheep through a field. The sheep routed scores of panicky mice from their runways in the snow. One of the sheep stepped on a mouse and killed it.

Jean Stevens to Be Guest at Dinner-Dance

Gordon Kelleys Will Give Party at Onwentsia.

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE GORDON P. KELLEYS have issued invitations to a dinner-dance on Saturday evening, Jan. 25, at the Onwentsia club. They are giving it for Miss Jean Stevens and James O. Heyworth Jr., who are to be married on Feb. 1 at St. Chrysostom's church. Mr. Heyworth and his lovely bride-to-be are to be especial guests at a number of other parties, among them one which Mr. and Mrs. Gaylord Donnelley are giving on the Wednesday before the wedding at the Saddle and Cycle club. Mrs. Donnelley will be one of Miss Stevens' two attendants, the other being Miss Gertrude Conklin of New York.

Mrs. Donnelley's mother, Mrs. George A. Ranney, will give a luncheon at home on the day of the wedding, and the evening preceding the ceremony Mrs. James O. Heyworth, the bridegroom's mother, will entertain at dinner at the Casino. Mrs. Clyde G. Stevens, the bride's mother, is giving a small family reception in her Astor street residence immediately after the church service.

Arrange Prenuptial Parties for Others.

Two other brides-to-be are the center of rounds of parties. Miss Ethel Johnston is entertaining at dinner tonight for her brother, Hugh M. Johnston and his fiancée, Miss Deborah Butler, who are to be married next Saturday in Lake Forest. Tomorrow Mr. Johnston's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. DeForest Hulburd will give a luncheon in their Lake Forest home.

The Carleton Blunts are giving a dinner at the Glen View club tonight for Miss Alice May Dickinson and Gilbert H. Robinson who are to be married on Feb. 8. Watson Newhall will be host at cocktails tomorrow afternoon for Miss Dickinson and her fiancé.

Reception Tomorrow for Bernard Rogerses.

Bernard F. Rogers and his bride, the former Mrs. Ezra J. Warner, are going to Lake Forest for the week-end to be the guests of Mrs. Rogers' daughter, Mrs. Edison Dick, and Mr. Dick. The Dicks and Mrs. Rogers' other daughter, Mrs. Thomas C. Dennehy Jr., and Mr. Dennehy have invited their Lake Forest friends to a reception for Mr. and Mrs. Rogers tomorrow afternoon at the Dick home in Woodland road.

A number of small parties will be given for Mr. and Mrs. Rogers, who were married on Jan. 7, before they leave for Ormond Beach, Fla., on Feb. 1. Tonight Mr. and Mrs. Gustavus F. Swift are entertaining at dinner at their Astor street residence; next Tuesday Mrs. C. Morse Ely of 1301 Astor street will be a dinner hostess and the next night Mr. and Mrs. Nelson L. Barnes of 1120 Lake Shore drive will have a dinner party.

Cathedral Choristers Appear Here March 9.

Mrs. George D. McLaughlin is planning to spend February in Florida, so she is working now on plans for a concert to be given by the Cathedral choristers in Orchestra hall on March 9. Mrs. McLaughlin is chairman of the patroness committee and last Wednesday she gave a tea for the other women interested in the affair, including Mrs. Stuyvesant Peabody, Mrs. Frank S. Gordon, Miss Gertrude McCarthy, Miss Margaret Moran, Mrs. Albert C. Goodrich, Mrs. Kinney Smith, and Mrs. George Gilman.

"The Triumph of St. Patrick" will be the oratorio given by the choristers on March 9. It will be the first Chicago performance of the oratorio, the work of Pietro Yon, organist of St. Patrick's cathedral in New York, and the first public appearance of the choristers. Some of them will present excerpts from the oratorio at a tea to be given next Friday at the cathedral rectory for the patroness committee.

Winter Sports Claim Attention

Four Lake Foresters will leave for New York next Wednesday to see a show or two and then to go to Little Moose lake in the Adirondacks for a week-end of winter sports. They are Mr. and Mrs. Barrett Scudder and Mr. and Mrs. Ronald P. Boardman. They had planned to go to Eagle River, Wis., this week-end, but decided instead to go east for their skiing and skating and tobogganing.

Eagle River, however, will be the destination of Mr. and Mrs. Ferre C. Watkins and her brother, Donald Angus, when they leave on Jan. 31 for several days of winter sports. In addition to skiing, skating, tobogganing and curling, Eagle River winter visitors make a great feature of playing baseball on snowshoes. Mr. Angus will be with his sister and her husband in Chicago for several more months.

Shokie Club to Hold Ice Carnival Today.

Because of a thaw the Skokie Country club was forced to postpone its ice carnival from last Saturday until today, when it will be held at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, weather permitting. After the games and some exhibition fancy skating there will be a hocky game between the Skokie and the Exmoor teams.

The ice carnival planned by the Exmoor Country club for last Sunday afternoon was postponed, too, so it will be held tomorrow afternoon. In

Another Debutante Party

The debutante season is not over yet for Miss Clarice Hamill, pictured above, for still another party is being given for her tomorrow when Mr. and Mrs. Mason Phelps and Mrs. Phelps' daughter, Miss Betty Brooks, will entertain at dinner and the hocky game. Mr. and Mrs. Phelps may not have returned from a hunting trip in Mississippi in time to be present at the party, in which case Miss Brooks will do the honors as hostess unassisted. Her guests will dine at the Casino before going on to the Stadium. Miss Hamill is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred E. Hamill of Lake Forest.

Front Views and Profiles

By June Provines

LITTLE Walter, seven and a half, is of a mechanical turn of mind. For instance, he never tires of visiting the Rosenwald museum and going down in the coal mine. Last Sunday he made his first visit to the Art institute. Afterward his grandmother, a Mrs. Eliel, asked him what he liked best at the Art institute, and he answered promptly: "That thing in the washroom you push to dry your hands."

Mechanical Minded—Gardenias—Pronunciation—Name.

BOTANICAL note: An eminent medical man, seeing gardenias in a bowl on the bedside table, made comment that the flower had been named after an eighteenth century physician, Dr. Alexander Garden of Charleston, S. C. Dr. Garden, son of a clergyman near Aberdeen, Scotland, and himself educated in Scotland, had sent specimens of the fragrant southern cape jasmine to Linnaeus, the famous Swedish botanist to whom later naturalists owe the uniform use of specific names. Linnaeus then named the plant gardenia.

A DELIGHTFUL book, "Some American Medical Botanists," by Howard A. Kelly, gives other medical men commemorated in our botanical nomenclature. The wistaria, for instance, had a medical godfather, Dr. Caspar Wistar, and there are numerous others.

One of the first reuniting links between England and the Pilgrim Fathers was a floral one, Dr. Kelly points out in his book. The few doctors among the pioneers, confronted with epidemics incidental to acclimatization and poor sanitation, searched the country in the hope of finding remedies they had used in the old country. "Ships' captains were given letters to friends asking for plants and seeds required, but these, received after interminable delays, had to be very carefully tended," Dr. Kelly writes. "There were anxious periods of waiting, for a voyage of seventy days or more wrought havoc with plants, insects and reptiles. Even war did not upset botanical sympathies, and the published correspondence in times of warfare and Indian raids shows chiefly anxiety lest a ship being captured by the enemy, seeds and plants should be thrown overboard."

TICKET buyers for the Kurt Jooss European ballet, which comes to town in February with a performance Feb. 8 as a benefit for the Illinois Society of Mental Hygiene, are having difficulty pronouncing the name of the ballet. They have been asking for the You'se ballet, Juice ballet, Joe's ballet, and other things. One customer asked for the anti-Nazi ballet. "You know," she said, "that Jew's ballet." The proper pronunciation is Yohss. Yo as in "Yo-ho-ho-ho and it comes out here," and ss as one hisses the villain in a Boucicault drama.

Mrs. Hutchins Wins Acclaim in New Show

Drawings in Color Put on Exhibition.

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

Two exhibitions of interest opened yesterday. New drawings in color by Maude Phelps Hutchins were placed on view in the Quest gallery, Fine Arts building. Paintings by T. A. Hoyer, under the auspices of the Neoterics, may be found in the Findlay galleries, 424 South Michigan avenue.

Mrs. Hutchins has a gorgeous exhibit. Her drawings have gained in depth and virility. The positive qualities in the group of large line drawings sweep one into instant and ecstatic approval. This is achievement on no mean scale.

Her figures are forcefully expressed and beautifully proportioned. The swing of their outline is a rhythmic pattern easily followed. The drawings in color are practically all of the nude female figure, but sex is the last thing that enters into their composition. They are warmly realized appreciations of possibilities in curve and horizontal. Within the outline is a richly developed feeling for flesh, bone and muscle. Mrs. Hutchins comes dangerously near being classified with the Greeks in their love of symmetry and beauty.

A touch of delightful humor is given the exhibit with the addition of two charmingly casual impressions of Mrs. Hutchins' oldest daughter. One of these is found in the first floor hall of the Fine Arts building; the other Mr. Quest will show you if you ask. They are clever and expressive and disarmingly nonchalant.

Word has got about that T. A. Hoyer was once in his youth an actor of acrobatic ability. This in no way influences his painting. His exhibit in the Findlay gallery, the Neoteric room, is gayly picturesque.

The canvases are small and are chiefly landscapes filled with the most meticulous of painting. Each leaf, each flower, each tree and cloud is carefully and thoroughly portrayed. The colors are bright and an effect of fairyland persists.

Mr. Hoyer [it may be the result of backdrops in youth] sees fields, meadows, streams and lakes with a dramatic, a poetic eye. His pictures are so many exquisite glimpses of country in, perhaps, the Never-Never Land of Peter Pan.

"After a Tropical Rain," "Vacation," "Winter," and "Kentucky Mountain Road" are passports to the Island of Fey.

The exhibitions will continue to Feb. 1.

TEA OPENS EXHIBIT

Literally blown in by the wind were the dozens of women who entered the Fine Arts building yesterday afternoon to visit the Quest galleries on the second floor where an exhibition of line and crayon drawings by Maude Phelps Hutchins was being opened with a tea.

"I am blown to pieces" was the first thing everyone said, but dishevelled hair and hats askew were forgotten the moment one entered the gallery and saw the stunning and exquisite drawings.

Everyone was enthusiastic about them and the attractive artist was showered with congratulations, as was her tall young husband, Robert Maynard Hutchins, president of the University of Chicago, who beamed with pride at the praise his talented wife received on all sides.

How the mother of a 9 year old daughter and a baby daughter, and the wife of the president of a great university finds time to do so much art work is a mystery most ambitious mothers would like to have Mrs. Hutchins explain to them for that she has solved it is self evident.

Pouring tea and coffee when the crowd began to arrive were Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed, smart in green tweeds, and Mrs. Walter S. Brewster, effectively gowned and hatted in Alice blue. Mrs. Arthur A. Small and Mrs. Edward H. Bennett relieved them after a bit and then Mrs. Phillip Miller and Mrs. Carl Bricken took their places at the ends of the long table.

Some of the others at the tea were Mrs. Hugh J. McBirney, Mrs. Clay Judson, Mrs. Chauncey McCormick, Mr. Bennett, Mr. Brewster, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Stark, Mrs. Samuel Insull, the Marquise d'Ivanrey, who had to rush away to attend a tea and cocktail party the Chauncey B. Blairs were giving at their State street home for her; Mrs. Robert R. McCormick, Miss Cornelia Conger, Miss Alice Rouflier, Mrs. Byron S. Harvey, Mrs. Laurence Robbins, Mrs. William H. Bush and her daughter, Miss Emmeline Bush.

Others were Mrs. Graham Aldis, the Marquis de Veyrac, Col. and Mrs. George T. Langhorne, Martin D. Schutze and Mrs. Otho F. Ball.

Quite a few went from the Quest galleries next door to the Findlay galleries where the Neoterics were opening an interesting exhibition of paintings by a member, T. A. Hoyer.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

[TRIBUNE Studio Photos.]

A simple but striking hair dress for the business girl, designed especially for this column by a Chicago hair stylist:

The hair is swirled to the left from a short, diagonal part high on the right, giving a shapely contour across the back of the head and ending in soft rolls behind the left ear.

Balancing this slight fullness toward the back is a flat roll of curls slanted into a slight dip at the temple.

The Stage

"Anything Goes" will end its engagement at the Grand Opera House on Saturday, Jan. 25, and will move to Detroit for a week's stay at the Cass theater. The company, with William Gaxton and Victor Moore as its stars, will then probably disband. This musical comedy came to Chicago on Dec. 20, after a run of 419 performances in New York.

The next booking at the Grand Opera House will probably be Cornelia Otis Skinner in her programs of historical character sketches.

Good Morning!

Unremarkable—but enjoyable. That describes the Garrick's new comedy drama, "If You Could Only Cook."

The frothy story has been accorded excellent direction and the players handle their sketchy roles with deft artistic touch.

The principal characters, oddly thrown together by fate in a whimsical mood, are Jim Buchanan, a wealthy automotive engineer, who is out of sorts; Joan Hawthorne, daughter of a deceased college professor, who is out of work, and an ex-beer baron who is out of luck—so far as getting what he wants to eat is concerned.

The engineer [engaged to a clammy heiress whom he doesn't love] pants to recover a lost zest for life; the college professor's daughter yerns to eat. So does the one time racketeer.

And the professor's daughter CAN cook—ah, how she can COOK. . . .

A newspaper ad is the mixer that blends these three lives together—and merrily, romantically, entertainingly events roll along to a finale completely satisfactory to the observer.

Mr. Marshall is smooth and likable as Buchanan. Jean Arthur is a delight as the lady who knows her garlic. Leo Carrillo is a lamb as the genial epicure and Gene Morgan is a scream as his bodyguard.

Nice little movie. You'll like it.

A Fresh Crop of Berets Wins Fashion Notice

Have More Shape Than Usual Models.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Berets bloom perennially, no matter what the weather! New affairs arrive with almost predictable regularity. Just as soon as one millinery idea languishes in come some neat new berets and another rage starts.

We found some jaunty new felts, with quite a decided band effect and with a coy little grosgrain ribbon bow anchored well toward the front. These berets have a salty, nautical dash; they can be pushed up at the side, right off the forehead in front, or worn straight and flat.

The colors are grand—scarlet, Kelly green, navy, beige, dusty pink, and black. They have more shape than the usual soft fabric beret, sort of a cross between a soft model and a very smart small hat of felt.

You're going to like them, because they'll go with your in-between season suits and clothes and they are pinned with almost unbelievably low price marks.

Other finds for the Saturday spending orgy are some gauntlet kidskin gloves with metal rings at the wrist line. The rings decorate as well as keep the gauntlets fitting smoothly. They are perfect accessories for suits and tweed outfits for immediate wear. You'll find them in black and good strong street shades and it's no trick at all to match them in narrow or wide kidskin belts or bags; just as smartly simple and tailored as you need for all your tailored street clothes.

A good new hosiery shade is called "whinsey," a most flattering as well as obliging tone similar to the time honored "Peter Pan" that could be worn with every color. These new arrivals have those slenderizing inky black heels for contrast that can't be equaled and for slim accent that only such sheer black heels can achieve.

Club Women Express Will to Peace at International Dinner

Washington, D. C., Jan. 17.—[Special.]—With Mrs. Roosevelt as guest and speaker, and the wives of half a dozen diplomatic representatives of foreign countries present as bearers of messages from their homelands, the directors of the General Federation of Women's Clubs tonight celebrated with an "international dinner" the determined "will to peace" of club women the world over.

Mme. de Laboulaye, wife of the French ambassador, and Mme. Prochnik, wife of the Austrian minister, were the ranking members of the diplomatic group.

Given in honor of the federation's 75 clubs in foreign lands, tonight's dinner party was the occasion also of a reunion here of several members of overseas groups.

Mrs. Robert Campbell Lawson, federation president, presided.

I'll Never Tell

By Roy Vickers

SYNOPSIS.

Julius Saranack is murdered in his home, Hillfoot in Cullingham, England. Eight uncut diamonds of no great value are missing. Two days previously, Torrance Esdale, childhood sweetheart of Gerald Saranack, the murdered man's nephew, had appealed to her American employer, Hartlandt Massiter, to give Gerald an engineering job in Mexico. Gerald is expected back from Spain in two days. Massiter tells Torrance the job to be filled requires a married man. Though they had quarreled before he left, Torrance writes Gerald, in care of his uncle, her plans for their marriage. Next morning Uncle Julius calls on Torrance with the news that Gerald has married an English girl in Spain. Torrance asks Massiter to give Gerald the job regardless. That evening Torrance secretly gains entrance to Hillfoot and retrieves the letter. Then she hears voices, hides, and watches as a girl secrets something behind a brick in the fireplace. When the girl and her companion leave Torrance calls the police, then leaves, not wishing to explain her presence. When Gerald brings his bride to see her next day she recognizes Annabelle, his wife, as the same girl she had seen in Uncle Julius' house and at the hour it was later discovered he was murdered, though she keeps silent about it. Torrance asks Annabelle to breakfast with her. Mr. Massiter calls while she is there. Alone with Torrance Gerald confesses he still loves her. He married Annabelle out of pity and thinks she needs his protection. Massiter sends for Torrance. He has unearthed a motive for the crime. In his youth Julius Saranack befriended John Allister, who was accused of theft. Later Prof. Allister grew enormously wealthy through Mexican mines and made a will leaving everything to Uncle Julius. Through the American consul in Paris Mr. Massiter learns that Prof. Allister has disappeared. Torrance tells Mr. Massiter about Annabelle. They fly to Paris.

INSTALMENT XII.

ON GUARD.

Following Mr. Massiter down the wheeled steps Torrance decided that tears and laughter were stimulants. She felt better. Whatever lay ahead could not be worse than she imagined it, and what she could imagine she could face.

"Where do we go first?" she asked, as Mr. Massiter carefully inspected, and then declined, the bus waiting to convey them further.

"I can't just say. But wherever it is we won't go there in any one's company but our own. You hire the car, Miss Esdale, please, and tell them to drive to the—well, the Jorice would be quiet. We want to be able to hear ourselves talk, I presume."

Torrance arranged for the car, haggling over the price with fluent ease. As they were alternately rushed and bumped towards their destination, Torrance found herself considering the immediate change in her companion's manner.

During the last three black days he had considerably modified their rôles of absorbed financier and efficient machine, but now there was no trace of business atmosphere left at all—his response to her most casual remark was courteous to the point of deference. Greatly though she liked and valued him something within her sprang on guard.

"By the way, Mr. Massiter," she remarked, "I don't feel justified in letting you be my host on this trip. You're here entirely out of kindness to me and really the whole expedition ought to be my affair. . . . Or if you won't agree to that"—as he was about to speak—"you must let me go halves. I shan't be easy in my mind if you refuse."

"I hate all my clothes!"

There was a difficult pause. She had expected him to show embarrassment, but it was sadness she saw in his eyes, when he turned to her.

"I didn't realize you would feel that way," he began. Then—"Sure you may go fifty-fifty, if it pleases you any. But, Miss Esdale, before we fix that there's something I want to make clear to you." He looked unseeingly at Paris, seething and clattering round them; it was evident that to explain himself was an effort, and a painful one. "My attitude towards you was laid down many years before you were born by the person I loved above all others—my mother. Since her death women have divided themselves into two kinds, those she would have welcomed to her home, and the others. She would have thought very highly of you, Miss Esdale, and considered it a privilege for me to stand behind you in any way I could."

"O, thank you!" Torrance was moved and regretful. "I'm afraid I'm not very—very perceptive. Of course I gratefully accept this trip from you. Please forgive me."

"Forgive you, Miss Esdale!"

"Yes. And to prove it you must call me Torrance. Will you?"

"A very unusual and beautiful name," beamed Mr. Massiter. And in an atmosphere of mutual admiration and good will they entered the Hotel Jorice.

The faded elegance of Torrance's bedroom harmonized with her mood, but not with her wardrobe. Whilst unpacking she looked from herself in her tailored suit to the black lace evening frock that had been so suitable for Torquay, and she grimaced. She spread the frock out on the low, canopied bed and suddenly hated it. "I hate all my clothes!"

She made the discovery with a sense of release. For years, ever since she had become engaged to Gerald, she had spent a minimum on herself. Now her deep hurt suddenly flared up in a desire to see her beauty displayed in the cleverest clothes Paris could design for her. Gerald hadn't wanted her—let him say what she liked—he hadn't wanted her enough. Why should she save another penny, then? Let her spend what she had and look around for a rich husband—why not? Other girls did it. Wealth was not sordid, it was a power and a glory——

The wild moment passed. She crumped down upon the little lace frock, covering her face, shaken and terrified. A great wave of shame went over her. Gerald loved her still and while he loved her she could not be less than he thought her. She was, in thought, still his; in a sense, perhaps, more his than ever.

She straightened and freshened herself, changed her blouse for one of crisp white organdy, and went into the sitting room. Mr. Massiter awaited her.

"It's too late for lunch and too early for dinner," he said, "but I've ordered up some kind of a tea. It has only just come to me that you probably had no breakfast. When we've eaten I think we should drive out to Prof. Ardus Ellister's villa."

"The American consulate——?"

"They've no news—I rang them."

A waiter wafted in a tea wagon littered with confectionery. Mr. Massiter, to whom such delicacies were forbidden, sighed and looked determinedly out of the window. As Torrance brought him his tea she saw that he was eyeing a man who lounged against an opposite doorway, apparently absorbed in a newspaper.

"I saw that man at the airdrome while you were hiring our car. He was dodging around a shed but I have extraordinarily long sight, and I just happened to notice his long nose." He met Torrance's startled eyes. "Looks as though we must get him taped before we make any move, Torrence. Now is there anywhere you could just—I have it, a postoffice! Step along to the nearest postoffice and telephone from there to—to—the American consulate and ask them—O, anything you like. But notice whether you're followed and come right back. Wait a minute, your tea——"

But Torrance considered that tea could wait. Within three minutes she was in hat and coat and walking briskly down the steps of the hotel. The impulse to cast a backward glance at the man with the newspaper was strong, but she resisted it and turned down a side street.

She knew Paris fairly well, but short cuts were confusing. She had to ask the whereabouts of a postoffice from a passer-by. As she repeated the information the man passed her. He cannoned into a woman with a basket and apologized. She heard his voice, which was a cracked falsetto.

The man moved on and went into a tobacconist's. Through a chance arrangement of mirrors, as she passed in her turn, she could snatch a glance at him. A pale, ruthless face, with ludicrously pointed nose and receding chin. He had raised his hands in the act of lighting a cigaret and she saw that they were huge, out of all proportion to the rest of him. Huge and bony.

Shuddering she walked on. Then a blind horror gripped her—she could hardly set one foot before the other. Huge hands—and Uncle Julius had been strangled—huge hands—had Annabelle stood prettily by and watched it done? She put her own hand up and tugged at the collar of her blouse—it was far too tight. . . . She must pull herself together.

She found herself in the postoffice. Fortunately the telephone booth was empty and she could walk straight in.

Doris Blake Answers

Put Friend at His Ease.

"Dear Miss Blake: My friend, when with other boys, gets red in the face upon seeing me. Bash."

He's bashful. Put him at ease by being just as friendly when he's with his pals as when you meet him alone.

Respect Each Other's Wishes.

"Dear Miss Blake: My boy friend and I always are arguing. What should we do? J. B."

Just try to remember that the other's rights and wishes should be respected, and so avoid arguments.

Holiday Burden of Overweight Easily Reduced

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Maybe the holiday season has done it, but a lot of waistlines, hiplines, and abdomens have deteriorated in the celebrating process.

"I bet I put on five pounds," one woman writes. "I must have put on ten pounds," says another. "Next year," a third confides, "I'm going to a hideaway where there is no plum pudding!" and so on.

One good thing about our women is their quick repentance of wrongs done their figures. They begin to feel uncomfortable and that's enough to start them off on their reducing régimes again. And, luckily for our sex, getting weight off hips and waist and abdomen is a simple process calling for not too much starving.

Why not give yourself a twelve day milk diet course? It's an easy way to reduce, not too fast for discomfort, and you're never famished for food. Or, simply cut your usual meal intake in half. Or, just leave bread alone for a week or ten days, potatoes, desserts, cream in your coffee, and sugars. These after holiday complainants usually are women who keep an eye to their figures. They don't actually let themselves get more than a few pounds out of the way. So, they don't need the strenuous course of one who has been accumulating weight for years.

Indeed, I'd favor exercise for the type, just by way of strengthening the morale along with rejuvenating the waistline. A good exercise is to lie on the floor and go in for long stretching from waistline to toe tips. Then raise the feet slowly from the floor up as high as you can and, when you drop them back to the floor, do it slowly, for it is in this slow return to the floor that you get in your good exercise work.

While you're down there all rarin' to get the extras off, do this exercise: You're flat on your back. Now, raise your right leg, cross it over the left and stretch it up toward your shoulder line. Do same with the other leg. This will certainly mow down the hip flesh as nothing you ever tried before if you do it often enough. The two exercises just given, including the preparatory stretching movements, will be all you need of a morning or evening for a few weeks.

Jean Stevens to Be Guest at Dinner-Dance

Gordon Kelleys Will Give Party at Onwentsia.

addition to skating stars who will give exhibitions, and games and races for boys and girls, there will be a table tennis exhibition under the supervision of Coleman Clark, former national champion, and Douglas Kittermaster, vice president of the United States Table Tennis association.

Mrs. Dudley Root has invited a few friends to have cocktails with her this afternoon at the Casino. Her mother, Mrs. Peter Dudley, is leaving by plane today for the west coast where she will spend two weeks visiting relatives.

Twelfth Military Ball to Be held Tonight.

More than a thousand reservations have been made for the 12th annual army and navy ball, which will be held tonight in the grand ballroom of the Lake Shore Athletic club. Nearly all of the ranking military and consular officials and their wives will attend the function, which promises to be one of the gayest and most colorful events of the winter.

Col. George T. Langhorne, president of the Army and Navy club, and Mrs. Frank R. McCoy, wife of the commanding general of the Chicago corps area, will lead the grand march. Among those in the consular service who will be present tonight are Laszlo L. Medgyesy, Hungarian consul; Dr. Waclaw Gawronski, Polish consul; Ulrich Beusch, Swiss consul; Mario Carosi, Italian consul, and August Bontoux, Latvian consul.

Among the especial guests will be Gen. and Mrs. McCoy, Admiral and Mrs. John Downs, Admiral Norman Blackwood, Gen. and Mrs. Dana T. Merrill, Gen. and Mrs. Charles Herron, Gen. and Mrs. Thomas Hammond, Gen. and Mrs. Charles G. Dawes, Gen. James A. Ryan, Capt. and Mrs. Edwin A. Wolleson, Col. and Mrs. George C. Marshall, Lieut. Col. William J. McCaughey, Mr. and Mrs. Amos Ball, Col. and Mrs. John H. Wigmore, Col. and Mrs. Harold F. Ray, and Maj. and Mrs. Felix Straychmans.

Mr. and Mrs. William M. Walker Jr. and Mr. and Mrs. Pierre Bouscaren are going to assist Robert Ryan with his duties as host this evening at a dinner-dance Stephen A. Healy is giving for young Mr. Ryan and 35 of his friends. Mr. Healy is entertaining in the Lucius Teeters' Lake Forest home which he is occupying this winter.

Dance of North Shore Fortnightly.

Mrs. Russell Matthias, Mrs. Paul Holman Faust, Mrs. Donald White, Mrs. Victor Schulze, Miss Eleanor Lippincott, and Miss Julianna Holmes will be hostesses at a cocktail party tonight at the Shawnee Country club preceding the third dance in a series of five that is being given by the North Shore Fortnightly.

Members of the Arts club will enjoy a musical program tomorrow night after dinner. The program will be given by the Kolisch quartet of Vienna and will include the first Chicago performance of Alban Berg's "Lyrische Suite."

Two Music Events Tomorrow Afternoon.

Tomorrow afternoon music lovers will have to choose between two musical affairs, Trudi Schoop and her Comic ballet at the Studebaker theater and the Chicago Business Men's orchestra concert at Orchestra hall.

The ballet matinée will be a benefit for the Women's Trade Union league and there will be a large and fashionable audience.

Parthenia Vogelback, pianist, will be the soloist with the Business Men's orchestra and after the concert Mrs. Vogelback and her husband, William E. Vogelback, will be at home from 5 to 7 o'clock in their apartment, 220 East Walton place. Many well known men who have music as their avocation play in the orchestra, so its concert will attract a smart audience. The concert marks the fifteenth anniversary of the founding of the orchestra by the late George Lytton.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Garfield King are leaving today for Palm Beach. They are uncertain just how long they will be away, but plan to stop over in Charleston, S. C., for a visit on their way home.

Applique Quilt from Ohio State Is Easy to Make

Buckeye Blossoms.

BY NANCY CABOT.

This interesting applique block comes from Ohio, the Buckeye state, and is one of the simpler applied patches which do not take forever to make. The applique block measures 15 inches square when completed and only thirty blocks are used. These are surrounded by a 4½ inch border, finished with a narrow binding to match the leaves.

WOMAN'S AND MISS' DRESS.

Not too formal, but charmingly dressy is this attractive two-piece dress. Its cut is simple, with flattering fullness in yoke and sleeves, and the greatest distinction of this frock is achieved in the type of fabric chosen. The original of this model was created in wearable coral wool crêpe combined with Dubonnet red.

Almost any type of fabric is suitable for this dress. It would be especially lovely fashioned with the skirt in plain crêpe in a dark shade, with the blouse in one of the new, springlike prints in gay colors.

Style No. 3383 is designed for sizes 14, 16, and 18 years, and 36, 38, and 40 inches bust measurement.

Size 16 requires 2⅛ yards of 39 inch material for the blouse, with 2⅛ yards of 35 inch material for the skirt, and 1 yard of 35 inch lining for the bodice.

Cherry Dessert Second Task of Juvenile Cooks

Miss Meade Gives Young People Instructions.

BY MARY MEADE.

How were the peanut butter muffins last week, cooksters? Pretty good, weren't they? Then you're all ready to tackle another recipe today. [You naturally don't need any reminders today about aprons, and finding out where things are, and cleaning up the kitchen.]

Today it's a dessert [tell your mother to plan on it either for dinner tonight or tomorrow] that's even more fun to make than it is to eat—and that's saying something! Part of it is clear cherry gelatin, the rest is pink fluffy whipped stuff with lots of cherries in it, and they go together slantwise. [We'll explain that later.]

A package of cherry flavored gelatin dessert and part of a little bottle of maraschino cherries are all you need for this special looking dessert—and you may leave out the cherries if you don't see any around! Or you may use any other flavor you like better than cherry if you want to. Seems funny that you can make anything fancy out of just that, but wait and see!

It goes like this:

CHERRY WHIPSTITCH.

1. Open a package of cherry flavored gelatin dessert [or whatever other flavor you choose] and pour the powder into a big mixing bowl.

2. Look on the outside of the package to see whether you add boiling or warm water to the powder—the directions will be right there! Then, according to the directions on the package, add either two cups of boiling water or two cups of warm water to the powder in the bowl.

3. Stir the gelatin well so that it all dissolves in the water.

4. Get out four dessert dishes or sherbet glasses.

5. In a cool place, lay the dessert glasses down on a sideways slant. To do this, let the bottoms of the glasses stay right on the table, and lean the tops against the side of a stack of magazines about 3 inches high. Put another magazine under the tipped bases to keep them from slipping.

6. Divide the gelatin in the mixing bowl into two parts. Pour half of it into these four tipped glasses. You won't be able to fill them, naturally, because they're so tipped, but there should be just about enough gelatin to fill up one corner of the glass.

7. Leave the glasses tipped just as they are to allow the gelatin to become firm.

8. Put the rest of the gelatin into a cold place until it begins to get a little thick and sirupy in appearance.

9. Get a shallow pan that's bigger around than the mixing bowl, and fill it with cracked ice.

10. Set the bowl of sirupy gelatin into the pan of cracked ice so that it will be cold while you beat it.

11. With an egg beater, whip and whip the gelatin until it becomes light in color and looks fluffy and thick like whipped cream.

12. Cut six maraschino cherries into little snips and mix them with the whipped gelatin.

13. As soon as the plain gelatin in the dessert glasses is set, stand them up straight, and fill the glasses right up to the top with the fluffy "whipstitch" stuff.

14. Keep the glasses in a cold place until you're ready to surprise the family at dessert time tonight. They will love it—and so will you, or we don't know our families!

See you next Saturday! And don't forget to write in if there's anything you especially want to make.

Sorority Luncheon.

Chicago alumnæ of Theta Upsilon will celebrate the 22d anniversary of the founding of their sorority with a luncheon today in the Continental room of the Stevens hotel.

According to CULBERTSON

A MAGNIFICENT BID.

If I were serving as the judge to determine the best bid hand of the year—a sort of Pulitzer or Nobel prize in the field of contract bridge—I should unhesitatingly award the palm to Mr. Albert Morehead of New York. He was my partner, sitting South, when the following remarkable deal occurred.

West, dealer.
North-South vulnerable.

NORTH
♠ A K Q 9 8 6
♦ A
♣ None

WEST
♠ J 10 7
♦ K 7 5

EAST
♠ None
♥ J 10 9 7
♦ Q J 10
♣ J 9 8 7 6 5

SOUTH
♠ 5 4 3 2
♦ 9 8 6 4 3 2

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
1 club	2 clubs	5 clubs	Pass
6 clubs	7 clubs	Pass	7 diam'ds
Pass	7 hearts	Pass	7 spades*

*Final bid.

As sensational as the bidding was, it was no less logical. My own overcall of opponents' suit was, of course, the only possible choice on the first round. East's jump to five clubs was justified by his extraordinary distribution and the desire to shut out communications between myself and my partner. Obviously, Mr. Morehead could not make a free bid over five clubs. West's six bid really was of a defensive character—he felt that it was his best procedure to anticipate a slam bid by his vulnerable opponents and possibly induce a contract in the wrong suit. [He nearly succeeded.]

With my terrific holding I was not satisfied with a measly small slam. I knew that a grand slam was assured if I could find South with four cards in either major suit. Hence my second cue bid at the range of seven! South's response was logical—he bid his six card diamond suit. Now came the crux of the hand: How many players would read my seven heart bid correctly? Mr. Morehead did. His perfect analysis was as follows: North's seven club cue bid forces a grand slam. The only problem is to find the right suit. Obviously, seven diamonds is not it, because North has taken that bid out to seven hearts. But North, if he could be sure of making seven hearts, would not have troubled with a seven club cue bid—then the heart bid must be an "asking bid." North insists that I choose between hearts and spades.

So, on the magnificent four card suit of 5 4 3 2, Mr. Morehead bid seven spades and earned my gratitude and admiration! His reasoning was flawless, and we were rewarded by making our contract without difficulty.

TODAY'S QUESTION.

Question—Should a four card suit be rebid under any circumstances?

Answer—Most decidedly it should—whenever the partner, by his bidding, shows that he, too, holds four cards of the suit. In exceptional circumstances [low contracts, for instance] a four card suit may be rebid after only a single raise.

Daughters of Sweden.

The American Daughters of Sweden will hold their 10th annual dinner at 7 o'clock tonight at the Drake hotel.

Dorothy Hurd, Lawson Little to Wed Feb. 8

W. Lawson Little, British and American golf champion, and Miss Dorothy Hurd will be married in St. Chrysostom's church on Feb. 8.

The date of the wedding was announced last night by Miss Hurd's mother, Mrs. Robert Maxon. The ceremony will be performed at 8:30 o'clock by the Rev. Dudley S. Stark, rector.

Little, who has won the British and American amateur golf crowns for two consecutive years, and who was awarded the Sullivan memorial trophy in 1935 as the outstanding amateur athlete in the United States, will have as his best man Johnny Goodman, Omaha, Neb., former national amateur golf champion.

Mrs. James Alsdorf of Evanston will be the matron of honor, with Miss Shirley Ann Johnson as maid of honor.

The bridesmaids will be the Misses Mary Ann and Sally Fox, Wichita, Kas.

At a ceremony last evening in the chapel of the First Congregational church of Evanston Miss Ellen Noyes Woodhead, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Woodhead of Barrington, became the bride of Frank Irving Dougherty Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Irving Dougherty of Bradenton, Fla.

Miss Woodhead wore her mother's wedding gown of heavy ivory satin, cut in princess style with a long train. Her net veil was clasped about her head with a band of pearls, and she carried white roses and sweet peas.

Her sister-in-law, Mrs. Robert Chadwick Woodhead, who was her only attendant, wore a green watered silk gown with a V-neck and a high collar, puffed sleeves, a tight fitting bodice and flaring skirt. Her bouquet was of yellow roses and heather.

Robert Woodhead was Mr. Dougherty's best man, and Lee Dake Chillson, formerly of Bradenton, now in business in Chicago, and Marcy Sellew were ushers.

A reception for the same group of relatives and close friends who witnessed the ceremony was held afterward at the Georgian hotel. Mr. and Mrs. Dougherty are not leaving on a wedding trip at this time. They have taken an apartment on the north side.

The marriage of Miss Elaine Wormser, daughter of Mrs. Leo F. Wormser of the Ambassador, to Thomas J. Reis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon J. Reis of Cincinnati, will take place at 7:30 o'clock tonight in the Tower room of the Drake hotel. Alva W. Goldsmith has come from Cincinnati to give his niece in marriage, and Dr. Solomon B. Freehof, an old friend of the bride's late father, has come from Pittsburgh to read the marriage ceremony.

Attending the bride will be Mrs. John E. Coleman as matron of honor, and Mrs. Gordon J. Reis Jr. and Mrs. James Frey as bridesmaids. Mr. Reis Jr. and Robert W. Reis will serve their brother as groomsmen, and Erwin M. Bettman of Cincinnati will act as best man.

Following the ceremony a supper will be served in the French room. Mr. Reis and his bride are going to Nassau on their wedding trip, and will be at home after Feb. 15 at 714 Mitchell avenue, Cincinnati.

Convalescent Child Requires Tactful Care

Do Not Force Unpleasant Duties on Him.

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

The illness of a child—its aftermath in physical and emotional and mental states—plus the loss in school work that it involves, often make parents, through anxiety and some lack of understanding of the situation, deal unwisely with their offspring. The following letter and answer will, I believe, prove suggestive to the many parents who are in a similar predicament. The letter reads:

"Dear Mrs. Bevans: I have a problem that I hope you can help me with. I have a ston 10 years old. He is in the third grade at school due to illness, but he is fully recovered now except that he is inclined to be highly nervous.

"He is backward with his work in school. It is not that he can't do the work, but he just does not try when he is in class. I help him at home every day and he really can do the work, but sometimes he is careless and will not think. I have gotten glasses for him because I thought that might be the trouble, but they do no good.

"I have spoken to him in a nice way and asked him to try to do better because when he gets older and is ready to go to work he will be able to get a better position. I promised him a little present if he would do better, but even that will not work. I must add that he is not dull or lazy. He likes to work outside around the chickens or in the garden, or cutting or raking the lawn or anything else, but when it comes to school work he just will not try.

"Can you suggest anything else that I might try? I've seen his teacher and she cannot seem to get him to try either. I would appreciate it greatly if you could help me."

The answer is: "I read your letter over carefully and think that the first thing for you to do is to realize that even though your boy has recovered from his illness, he is probably suffering from the effects of it somewhat in nervousness. Therefore, I think the most important thing now is to build up his health. If he were my son I should consider taking him out of school for the coming half year and teaching him at home. Or I would have him stay only half a day and let him rest and do outdoor or manual work to his heart's content.

"If you stop fretting him and yourself about his school work I believe that he will actually do better work. But you must make allowances for him until he is less nervous."

"Now we must admit that some children do not care for academic work but love to use their hands. Certainly all the manual work that this boy likes to do is splendid for his health. I would go on this general plan that I have suggested for the present. And physical activity is excellent for his nerves."

Nervous children may be helped if their mothers will make use of the suggestions contained in our leaflet "Helping the Nervous Child." It will be sent out on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

NINE CONVICTED, 11 ACQUITTED OF STAVISKY FRAUD

Widow Freed; 7 Years Is Longest Sentence.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Jan. 17.—Mme. Arlette Stavisky, widow of the famed Serge [Handsome Alex] Stavisky, and ten others were acquitted today of taking part in the celebrated $60,000,000 Stavisky frauds.

Eight defendants received prison terms ranging up to seven years. One other, Deputy Gaston Bonnaure, got a suspended one year term and lost his seat in parliament.

All the 20 defendants had pleaded that they were innocent victims of Stavisky, that they had "misplaced their confidence." Even Stavisky's widow declared that she believed her husband's income was made in legitimate channels and not by defrauding French investors.

7 Years for Tissier.

The heaviest sentence—7 years—was meted out to Gustave Tissier, manager of the municipal pawnshop at Bayonne. It was Tissier's confession which led to the discovery of the frauds two years ago and later to Stavisky's suicide.

Others convicted were Joseph Garat, a deputy and former mayor of Bayonne; Henri Cohen, appraiser at the Bayonne pawnshop; Raoul Desbrosses, manager of the Orleans pawnshop; Paul Guebin, a bond salesman; Henri Hayotte, implicated in a jewel swindle; Georges Hatot, an actor whom the prosecution charged worked for Stavisky as a millionaire; Gen. Joseph Bardi de Fourtou.

Those Acquitted.

Besides Mme. Stavisky, those acquitted are Emile Antoine Digoin, former French detective inspector; Emile Farrault, appraiser at the Orleans pawnshop; Camille Aymard, a newspaper man; Albert du Barry, newspaper editor; Georges Gaulier, lawyer; Pierre Guiboudribaud, lawyer; François Darious, newspaper man; Paul Levy, weekly newspaper editor; Henri Depardon, office employé, and Gilbert P. Romagnino, secretary of a Stavisky company.

RECRUIT FIRING SQUAD IN UTAH TO EXECUTE SLAYER OF THREE KIN

Salt Lake City, Utah, Jan. 17.—(AP)—A firing squad was recruited tonight for the execution of Delbert Green.

The State Supreme court ruled against further appeal for the convicted murderer who chose his fate after his first trial six years ago. His execution is set for Jan. 24.

In Davis county—where Green shot and killed his young wife, her mother and stepfather—Sheriff Joseph Holbrook began recruiting five men to fire rifles at Green's target-marked heart.

Of the upwards of 30 murderers executed in Utah in 80 years, all but two or three have been shot. Green chose death by a firing squad when first convicted in 1930. Utah law gives a condemned man the choice of death before a firing squad or on a gallows.

Everyday Frocks, Fourth Floor.

Bright flowers, dark backgrounds—that's the story in print as it concerns new between-season frocks. This frock uses a multicolored shoe string bow at the neck to pick up the colors of the print. A shirred yoke gives front fullness in the waist, and there are puffy push-up sleeves. All silks, in black, brown, navy. 11 to 17. $10.95.

The "presto-change-o" dress provides a variety of frills and furbelows for Teenya. The two-tone tie at the neck laces through and may be easily detached to make way for an organdy bow or two crisp white flowers—whichever accent happens to suit your mood. Both come with the dress, in cellophane envelopes. Alpaca weave in black, navy, brown. 11 to 17. $10.95.

LOUIS WINS IN FIRST ROUND; 23D KNOCKOUT

PURPLE BATTLE ILLINI TONIGHT; IOWA AT OHIO

Michigan Tries to Stop Haarlow.

Games Tonight

Indiana at Minnesota.
Iowa at Ohio State.
Chicago at Michigan.
Northwestern at Illinois.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

This is the night when Ohio State and Illinois, already on the borderline of elimination from the Western conference basketball race, will find whether hopes for the 1936 title still may be realized. What is true of the Buckeyes and the Illini is true of their opponents, Iowa and Northwestern, respectively, although their case is not quite as desperate.

Illinois has lost two games. One was to Iowa by a one point margin, 27 to 26, in the opening conflict at Iowa City. The other defeat was last Monday night by Ohio State, 18 to 13, on the Champaign floor, where Northwestern plays tonight. Ohio State also was beaten by Iowa, 25 to 23, and lost to Purdue, one of the two undefeated leaders of the conference. The defeat by Iowa was at Iowa City so in view of the game on their home court and improvement attested by victory over Illinois, it is logical to assume Ohio State will win tonight if logic ever is a basis for forecast in as uncertain a game as basketball.

Purple Are Favorites.

Northwestern, off to an indifferent start when Indiana's final rally whipped the Wildcats, 27 to 24, came back in splendid shape Monday night to defeat Minnesota at Patten gymnasium, 45 to 24. But Northwestern only led by two points at the half and its impressive victory was due to a surge of accurate shooting in the closing minutes. If Northwestern tonight gets the same results from its effective floor work as it did against the Gophers, the Wildcats should expect to win despite the fact that they always have had trouble at Champaign.

Victory tonight for Ohio State and Illinois will give the front runners advantage over all pursuers that may leave the title race to be fought out between Indiana and Purdue, who unfortunately do not meet this season.

Indiana plays Minnesota at Minneapolis. The Hoosiers, with a well balanced scoring quintet, and with advantage of Fechtman's height, is favored to give Minnesota its fourth Big Ten defeat. And by victory tonight Indiana will have a one game lead over Purdue which does not play for two weeks because of semester examinations.

Haarlow Is Key.

Indiana can be beaten. Any basketball team can be beaten and in this day of circumscribed attack with results depending on the luck of the scoring it is practically impossible for a team to go through a 12 game conference campaign without a licking. Chicago threatened Indiana's supremacy and only lost by three points and the Maroons haven't won a Big Ten contest.

Michigan is another of the teams which has lost two games. The Wolverines' only victory was at the expense of Minnesota, 38 to 28, and since Michigan plays Chicago tonight at Ann Arbor it may be that the Wolverines will step up in the standings. Capt. Bill Haarlow, outstanding candidate to succeed himself as the leading conference scorer, probably holds the key to the result of the game. Purdue stopped Haarlow and won easily. Indiana couldn't stop the Maroon captain and nearly lost. Michigan must have better than average success if it hopes to outdistance Chicago tonight.

BRENTANO WINS SILVER SKATES PRIZE FOR ENTRIES

Brentano playground, operated by the board of education at Washtenaw and Schubert streets, has been awarded the team trophy for the largest number of contestants taking part in the Silver Skates Derbies last Saturday and Sunday. William Horschke and Alice Rentz are instructors at Brentano.

The Catholic Youth organization and Northwest Skating club also placed high in the list of competitors in the nineteenth annual skating races sponsored by THE TRIBUNE.

Clara Bow Sues Railroad; Charges Injury to Horse

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 17.—(AP)—Clara Bow and Rex Bell filed suit for $1,999 today against the Southern Pacific railroad charging injuries to their race horse, Embassy Boy. The film couple said Embassy Boy was cut on the right rear leg in 1934 while being transported from Lexington, Ky., to race in California. He probably never will race again, said their attorney.

YANKEES ACQUIRE JOHNSON, HADLEY FROM SENATORS

De Shong and Hill Sent to Washington.

New York, Jan. 17.—[Special.]—The New York Yankees, determined to add power to offset the advantages gained in recent trades by the Red Sox and Tigers, today exchanged Pitcher Jimmy De Shong and Outfielder Jesse Hill for Pitcher Irving [Bump] Hadley and Outfielder Roy Johnson of the Washington Senators. No cash was involved.

Joe McCarthy, manager of the Yankees, said he had been after Johnson for some time and finally clinched the deal by including De Shong, one of the Yanks most promising young pitchers. Johnson, who batted .315 in 145 games last year for Boston, is a left hand swinger, a type badly needed by the Yankees. He was included in the deal which sent Carl Reynolds to the Senators last fall in exchange for Heinie Manush.

Roy Has a Good Record.

Johnson is 32 years old and played his first professional baseball with the San Francisco Seals of the Pacific Coast league ten years ago. He was with the Detroit club in 1929 and was traded to Boston in 1932. His all-time big league batting average is .304.

Hadley is a veteran. He started with the Senators in 1926, later playing with the Chicago White Sox and the St. Louis Browns before returning to the Senators last season.

In ten seasons Hadley worked in 360 games, winning 107 and losing 128. Last season he won 10 and lost 15 with a seventh place club and had an earned run average of 4.93. De Shong, who was not rated a regular until the season was well along, pitched four victories for the Yankees and lost one game. His earned run average was 3.29.

Hill Shows Speed.

Hill, a former University of Southern California athlete, is one of the speediest outfielders in the league, but averaged only .293 at the plate last season. He came up last season from the Newark farm of the Yankees and participated in 107 games in his first year as a big leaguer. He stole 14 bases.

De Shong also got his minor league training at Newark.

McCarthy announced that he had dropped negotiations for Frank Higgins, third baseman of the Athletics. Before coming here from his home in Buffalo Joe stopped at Philadelphia for a conference with Connie Mack. He brought the Mack proposition to Col. Ruppert, president. Ed Barrow, business manager, mulled over it for a couple of days and then told Mack it was all off.

No Hope for Deal with A.'s.

"I am returning to Buffalo tonight with the conviction that we will get neither Higgins nor Hale, and that all deals with the A.'s are off," McCarthy said. "I am not going to break up my ball club just to get another player whose value to us would be doubtful."

McCarthy also returned Third Baseman Merrill May to the Newark club. May was voted the outstanding recruit of the International league for 1935, but his batting record was only .290.

Joe added three Newark pitchers to his list for an observation in training camp. They are Kemp Wicker and Spurgeon Chandler, right handers, and Ted Kleinhans, southpaw, who has been up with the Cubs, Phillies and Reds.

Braves Get Rookies.

Bill Terry, Giant manager, sent two young minor league pitchers, Tiny Jim Chaplin and Sharkey Eiland, from his Nashville farm, to the Boston Braves for cash today.

The move was in fulfillment of Terry's promise at the Chicago convention in December to cooperate with other National league clubs in bolstering Bob Quinn's club.

The Brooklyn Dodgers announced that Vince Sherlock, rookie infielder, had signed his contract, first of the Dodgers to do so.

Nevers Gets Coaching Job at Lafayette

Easton, Pa., Jan. 17.—[Special.]—The appointment of Ernie Nevers of Stanford university as head coach of football at Lafayette college was announced tonight by Henry W. Clark, director of athletics.

Nevers, who will succeed G. Herbert McCracken who resigned last fall, brings to Lafayette an imposing football background. As a Stanford undergraduate of 1922-1926, he was regarded as one of the outstanding full backs of all time. Since then, he has been prominent in the professional ranks.

Nevers was born in Willoro River, Minn., June 11, 1903. He attended high school at Superior, Wis. and Santa Rosa, Cal. At Stanford he majored in history, and was outstanding in football, baseball and track.

For the last three years he has been at Stanford as varsity back field coach, chief assistant to Coach Tiny Thornhill, and freshman baseball coach.

Bobby Grayson, Stanford Full Back, to Wed Today

HONOLULU, Jan. 17.—(AP)—Bobby Grayson, Stanford university full back, and Christine Williams will be married at St. Clement's Episcopal church tomorrow at 4:30 p. m.

LOUIS IS GLAD HE DUCKED THAT 1ST RIGHT HAND

Retzlaff Wants One More Chance—"for Fun."

BY FRANK MASTRO.

"I thought that first right he swung would have knocked me out of the Stadium," said Joe Louis in his dressing room last night, discussing the first punch Charley Retzlaff fired at him in their fight at the Stadium. Louis blocked the blow with his shoulder.

"Gee, I didn't get warmed up," Retzlaff declared.

Both were calm. The former Chicago Golden Gloves champion showed no elation over his quick knockout victory, while Retzlaff wore a surprised expression. He didn't seem to understand how it happened.

"He Can't Take It."

Louis sat on his rubbing table discarding his hand bandages as reporters and photographers pressed around.

"Were you hurt at any time, Joe?" some one asked.

"Gee whiz, he didn't hit me," Louis replied. "How could he hurt me if he didn't hit me?"

"Did he have you worried at any time?" another queried.

"No, all I thought of was to keep away from his right hand."

"He can't take it," Louis added.

"I told Roxy [John Roxborough, his co-manager] that I would end it in the first round."

Charley Wants Another Chance.

Retzlaff, displaying a slightly cut lip, was hesitant about clasping the hands of friends commending his courage.

"What's the matter, Charley? You've nothing of which to be ashamed," they assured him.

"Shucks," he repeated, "I didn't even get warmed up. I don't know what hit me and I didn't even hear the referee count over me."

"Are you through as a fighter?" some one ventured.

"What the heck" he responded, "now I've gotta start from the bottom again."

His tone indicated he is ready to retire and spend the rest of his days on his farm in North Dakota.

"He didn't hurt me," he explained as he shuffled off to the shower. "I'd like to box that guy again for the fun of it."

JUST A SAMPLE OF WHAT WAS TO COME

Members of Italian Sled Team Barred

GARMISCH-PARTENKIR C H E N, Germany, Jan. 17.—(AP)—Several Italian bob-sledders, entered in the winter olympics here Feb. 6-16, have been disqualified on grounds of professionalism, it became known today as the German Olympic committee pored over the list of 1,200 contestants—by far the largest in the history of the winter games.

Several of the Italian bob-sledding teams had planned to use internationally-famed automobile race drivers as steersmen, but these have been declared ineligible. Affected by the ruling was Achille Varzi, well known racing pilot, as well as Count Trossi, Cortese and Brivio.

Schaefer Is Investigated.

In this connection, there have been concern in some quarters over the status of Karl Schaefer, Austria's great figure skater, world and olympic champion. Although he is registered here as an amateur, word came today that the American Skating union was investigating the conditions under which Schaefer's name was used an an advertisement in a sporting goods publication. It was recalled that Schaefer was questioned several months ago by the International Skating union but no action was taken.

A study of the entry list reveals that athletes between the ages of 11 and 50 would compete in the Olympics. Yetsuko Inada, 11 year old Japanese girl figure skater, and Capt. Zahn, German bob-sledder who is almost 50, represent the extremes in age among the competitors entered from 28 countries.

Weather Is Warmer.

The United States will compete in every event except the military sky patrol. Canada is passing up the same event as well as the bob-sledding competition. Germany, Austria and Czechoslovakia alone will compete in every event.

Greece has entered the fewest events, planning to challenge only in the 18 and 50 kilometer ski races.

A sudden rise in temperature caused worried faces in this resort today, but experts declared facilities for artificial freezing are so well provided that the program is certain to be run off without difficulty.

Talking It Over

BY ARCH WARD.

[Copyright: 1936: By The Chicago Tribune.]

JOE LOUIS lashed out with a left arm that looked like a railroad tie soaked in creosote at Chicago Stadium last night and Charley Retzlaff, the elongated farmer from North Dakota, settled to the floor in sections, emitting low musical notes intelligible only to jungle creatures and train dispatchers. . . . But Retzlaff was game. . . . He struggled to his feet, standing there swaying on cellophane legs, ready to be stiffened by one more punch. . . . But he caught a blizzard of blows before he finally went down for good under the impact of a quick left and right to the head. . . . He didn't fall with a bang. . . . It was more of a gentle swoon after the manner of a jumpy spinster getting her first look at Tarzan of the Apes. . . . Louis in his last two Chicago appearances, against King Levinsky and Retzlaff, did only three minutes and 46 seconds of fighting for which he collected approximately $75,000. . . . There isn't much left for Louis to tackle now except the Art institute lions, the national budget, and the brewers' horses. . . . The Louis fans in the upper galleries, nourished on knockouts, couldn't make up their minds whether the former Golden Glove champion was twice as good as he was against Levinsky or whether Retzlaff was twice as terrible. . . . You have to admire the outspoken frankness of the two dollar fight fans. . . . They never hesitate to call a bum a tramp. . . .

Julian Black, Jack Blackburn, and Larry Amadee were in Louis' corner, and Murray McLean, Jerk Doran, and Mike Ferrozzo seconded Retzlaff. . . . Former Gov. William Langer of North Dakota was there to root for his fellow citizen, but he never had an opportunity to lead his delegation of 100 in a cheer. . . . He issued a diplomatic statement before the bout that Retzlaff was in superb condition and win or lose there would be no alibi from his supporters. . . . Four young Retzlaff rooters from St Paul, headed by Phil Lombardi, rode a freight train to Chicago to see the match. . . . The fighter dug into his pockets for money with which to pay for admission tickets. . . . Jim Mullen, Stadium co-matchmaker, who has been suffering from a stomach ailment for several days, didn't see the show. . . . He listened to the broadcast in his offices adjacent to the arena. . . . Col. Matt Winn, president of the American Turf association, who sat up front with Ed Fleming, said Louis looked like a thoroughbred. . . . Mrs. Joe Louis, who rode home from Yankee stadium on the subway the night Joe collected $218,000 for whipping Max Baer, had her own car waiting for her and the members of her party last night. . . . Mayor Frank Couzens of Detroit was a late arrival. . . . He was accompanied by Frank Gorman, Detroit controler. . . . Louis went to the home of his manager, Julian Black, for a celebration party after the match. . . .

Retzlaff did no celebrating, although he earned about $9,000 for his 85 seconds. . . . He will return to North Dakota tonight. . . . An extra long pair of gloves had to be ordered for Retzlaff at the last minute. . . . The official six ouncers fit Louis perfectly, but they were too short for Charley. . . . Mike Jacobs, under whose direction Louis is boxing, will return to New York for a meeting of the boxing commission Tuesday. . . . The commissioners wish to talk to him about that Havana fight between Louis and Isadore Gastanaga which was canceled at Jacobs' insistence, thereby creating a delicate international situation. . . . The Cuban ring board has suspended Jacobs and has asked New York to follow suit. . . . "If New York bans me I can take the next Louis fight to Philadelphia," Mike explained. . . . Joe Jacobs, manager of Max Schmeling, who is expected to be Louis' next major foe, said his man could whip both Louis and Retzlaff on the same card. . . .

It's a sophomore year as far as Northwestern's athletic teams are concerned. . . . First, it was Don Heap in football. . . . Mike McMichaels, Fred Trenkle, and Jean Smith, all sophomores, are regulars on the

PUTS RETZLAFF AWAY IN MINUTE AND 25 SECONDS

Count of 7 Precedes Finishing Blow.

Charley Retzlaff lasted a minute and 25 seconds against Brown Bomber Joe Louis at Chicago Stadium last night.

Fifty seconds after the battle had started Louis shot a left hook to the North Dakota farmer's chin.

Down went the farmer boy. At the count of seven, while still half dazed, he lumbered back to his feet. He was helpless from that mighty blow. He staggered into the ropes. He clung to the topmost rung and his half bending back was turned toward Louis.

Smashed Down Again.

The Brown Bomber twisted him around. He shot a barrage of lefts and rights to the head and body. Then came the end. Louis zoomed a terrific right to the chin. Retzlaff went down and when his limp body landed on the canvas it sounded as though a ton of rocks had suddenly been unloaded.

Retzlaff never came up. At the count of nine, still only half conscious, Retzlaff got to his knees, but immediately fell on his back. Before he could make another effort to rise he had been counted out by Referee Phil Collins.

Retzlaff, famed for a terrific right hand punch, was able to toss only two of them in the direction of Louis. The first one landed on Louis' left shoulder. The second one hit Louis on the right hip. Just after it had landed Louis swung the left hook which floored the farmer for the seven count and softened him up for the final blow.

Crowd Braves Blizzard.

Braving a blizzard, 14,106 customers journeyed to the Stadium and paid $67,826.66 to see the fight.

It was the twenty-seventh straight triumph for Louis since he cast his lot with the professionals after winning a 1934 Tribune Golden Gloves championship. It was his twenty-third knockout during that spectacular campaign. It was his tenth knockout in a row.

Louis' knockout victims include every outstanding heavyweight in the world with the exception of the champion, James J. Braddock, and the German champion, Max Schmeling. Louis' next opponent no doubt will be Schmeling and the battle will take place in New York or Philadelphia next summer.

Shows No Emotion.

The lithe Louis did not waste a blow.

His face, as usual, did not show the least emotion. He was the perfect physical specimen. A glint of a desire to knock his foe unconscious could be detected now and then as his handlers adjusted his gloves and he glanced at Retzlaff in the opposite corner.

Louis wore a bright blue silk robe that was trimmed in red. Retzlaff entered the ring wearing a faded checker cotton flannel robe.

Retzlaff didn't appear to be frightened at all. When the bell sent them into action he rushed out and met Louis before the Brown Bomber hardly had left his chair.

That Left Hook Lands.

That was the extent of Retzlaff's aggressiveness. A few seconds later his chin came into contact with the short left hook which Louis shot at him. The blow traveled no more than eight inches. Yet it landed with the power of a batterng ram. Down went Retzlaff and just a few seconds later the fight was over.

It was the quickest knockout Louis ever has scored. His other fast one was against King Levinsky at White Sox park last summer. Panic stricken Levinsky lasted 2 minutes and 21 seconds, almost a full minute more than Retzlaff did.

The customers who shelled out nearly $68,000 to see the brief bout did not raise a complaint as they filed out of the Stadium. Most of the same customers had watched Levinsky knock out Retzlaff in the same ring in one round many months earlier. Retzlaff was hit hard by Louis but no harder, perhaps, than Levinsky hit him on his previous visit here.

Louis Draws $25,000.

Out of the $67,826 gross receipts and the broadcasting and film rights, Louis got about $25,000 for his minute and 25 seconds work. Retzlaff's share was approximately $9,000, and something like a $9,000 smile spread over his face after he had pulled himself up out of the resin dust and had marched rather nonchalantly out of the ring.

It was Louis' show right from start to finish. To those who got a thrill out of his easy chore their money was well spent. It would have been worse had Louis attempted to carry Retzlaff along for a few rounds. Joe got the customers home good and early, anyway.

Louis scaled 199¾ pounds and Retzlaff 198½.

DATES SET FOR GOLDEN GLOVES EXAMINATIONS

First Group to Get Tests Next Tuesday.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The schedule of preliminary medical examinations for amateur boxers who wish to enter the Chicago Golden Gloves tournament has been completed. Two of these examinations will be held next week, two the following week and the final examination will take place at Trafton's gymnasium on Feb. 5, five days before the opening of the west side sectional trials.

Every boxer must have a preliminary examination, and on the night he fights another physical checkup is required.

Schedule of Examinations.

The schedule of examinations follows:

Tuesday, Jan. 21; Thursday, Jan. 23; Wednesday, Jan. 29 [at the Catholic Youth Organization center, 31 East Congress street]; Thursday, Jan. 30, and Wednesday, Feb. 5.

All examinations except that on Jan. 29 will be held at Trafton's gymnasium, 180 West Randolph street, between 6 p. m. and 8 p. m. No boxer, however, is eligible to appear at any examination unless he files an entry and produces a parental consent card. This card must be filled out and brought to the examination to which the boxer has been assigned.

Six hundred boys have received cards to report for examinations next Tuesday night. Five hundred have received letters for next Thursday night and approximately 200 more will be directed to report that night.

Entries Close Jan. 31.

No boy will be permitted to enter this year's tournament after Jan. 31. Late entrants, in all probability, will appear at the final examination on Feb. 5.

It is not necessary to write for detailed instructions at this time. If you wish to enter, send in your entry blank which appears daily in THE TRIBUNE and you will have complete instructions by the time you take your examination. At that time you also will receive a ticket of admittance for the sectional tournament. The first entrants have permission to choose the section in which they wish to compete. Late comers will be assigned in order to equalize the number of fighters at each center.

309 Named for Futurity at Pimlico

New York, Jan. 17.—[Special.]—The Pimlico Futurity, which will be renewed next November after a lapse of two years, has drawn 309 nominations from 69 interests, it was disclosed in the closing of entries for the race. Because the race was not run for two years, the books were kept open for yearlings as of last December in order to insure a good field.

At the top of the list of nominations is A. G. Vanderbilt with 27, and next is C. V. Whitney with 14, one of which is a colt by Boojum, which won the 1929 Hopeful. The estate of Lester W. Labrot also has named 14; Mrs. Payne Whitney has named 12, and William Woodward, chairman of the Jockey club, is represented by 11 nominations.

For the 1937 Futurity, entries for which also closed last month, there were 526 nominations from 76 interests, while the 1938 Futurity drew 715 nominations. This last will be a real Futurity, the nominations being the foals of this year.

PREP TEAMS TO RACE TODAY FOR SKATING TITLE

The 14th annual Chicago public high school ice skating meet will be held this morning in Lincoln park at the south pond. The first race is scheduled for 9 o'clock.

Eleven schools with a total entry list of 135 junior and senior skaters will compete. Washburne High school, one of the new members of the league, will be making its initial appearance. Tilden Tech will defend its senior title, and Austin the junior championship.

The schools which will be represented are Tilden, Austin, Lane, Lindblom, Schurz, Senn, Sullivan, Crane, Washburne, Parker, and Calumet.

MORTON HEAVIES TRIUMPH OVER DEERFIELD, 24-18

Evanston Cracks Down on New Trier, 44-21.

The Morton heavyweight basketball team continued its march toward the suburban league championship by defeating Deerfield, 24 to 18, on the latter's court last night.

Morton's lightweights remained in a tie for first place with New Trier by winning, 17 to 15, over Deerfield. New Trier triumphed over Evanston, 32 to 23.

Evanston Beats New Trier.

With Proviso idle, Evanston moved into second place in the heavyweight section by turning back New Trier, 44 to 21. Shepard, Oak Park heavyweight forward, played his last prep game and led the Oak Park attack in its 40 to 28 victory over Waukegan.

St. Patrick established itself as the favorite to win the west section heavyweight title in the Catholic league race by handing St. Mel, defending champion, a 54 to 33 beating.

Bowen, Calumet Tie, 26-26.

The City league senior schedule was featured by a 26 to 26 overtime tie between Bowen and Calumet in the south section. Calumet led at the end of the first half, 12 to 11, but Bowen held a 24 to 23 advantage with only a few seconds remaining to play. Stampf was fouled and sank the free throw to tie the score. Dolac of Bowen sank a basket in the extra period, but Calumet tied the score when Bucholz made good on two free tosses.

Hirsch remained in first place in the south section by scoring its second victory, defeating Hyde Park, 29 to 25. Davis, center, and Guards Feld and Cogan paced the Hirsch attack. Hirsch led at the half, 15 to 14, and at the third period, 22 to 14. It was Hyde Park's first defeat. Wetzel and Kline starred for Hyde Park, each scoring eight points.

Coaches Are Opposed to Rule Changes

New York, Jan. 17.—(AP)—A chorus of "noes" today greeted the proposal for a new football scoring system involving the abolishment of the try for extra point, the award of a point for each first down and a five minute overtime period to break ties.

Football coaches in all parts of the country, polled by the Associated Press, vetoed the idea with emphasis and by a 9 to 1 margin. Their opposition to other proposed rules changes, including return of the goal posts to the goal line, was less pronounced.

Walter R. Okeson of Lehigh, chairman, and other members of the national collegiate rules committee, were noncommittal on the radical alterations proposed yesterday by Bill Crowley of New York, former president of the eastern association of football officials.

No Changes Imminent.

Judging from current reaction, there is no chance whatever that the rules makers will tinker with the scoring system when they go into annual session at Palm Springs, Cal., Feb. 14.

Coaches for the most part ridiculed the scoring proposal and insisted it would rob the game of its present day thrills by putting emphasis again on the old "rock 'em and sock 'em" style of play.

Noble Kizer, Purdue athletic director and head football coach who is one of the four representatives appointed by the American Football Coaches association to serve in an advisory capacity on the rules committee, implied that the officials were "whistling in the dark."

Coaches are Satisfied.

"I am confident the majority of coaches feel as I do," said Kizer. "The present rules, with the possible exception of the slow whistle, are entirely satisfactory from the standpoint of the player, spectator, and coach.

"A point for a first down and eliminating the point after touchdown would take football back 40 years," he continued. "It would place a premium on the slow, plodding type of power attack, and the long runs and passes that have made football the colorful and spectacular game that it is today rapidly would disappear."

Another Backward Step.

The proposal of Tommy Hughitt, Buffalo official, for a 15 yard penalty for pass interference, instead of giving the ball automatically to the offended team at the spot of the foul, drew small support. Gil Dobie of Cornell pointed out that "deliberate interference in the end zone on long scoring passes might be encouraged because the penalty would mean loss of only 15 yards to the defending team and would prevent a touchdown."

Kizer declared this change also would be a step backward and would soon result in virtually eliminating open play.

"I can just see a defensive man taking a running block at a clever pass catcher to knock him out of the play when a long pass is about to be completed. What's 15 yards when compared to 40 or 50?" he said.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

ON THE WAY.

FRIEND ARCH: Well, Arch, by the time you receive this I will be well on the way toward Hialeah to help improve the breed of thoroughbreds for cavalry remounts as preambles to charters of racing associations usually recite. Naturally, I have missed the opening day due to circumstances over which I had little control. There was delay due both to personal finances and to the old family bus.

You see, Arch, while I'm not keen for the beautiful scenery and other discomforts of touring, we had planned to drive down with Daughter Wake at the wheel most of the way because it would be less expensive. That was before we took the old family bus to the hospital for its physical examination.

The diagnostician at the service station—you know how service stations are, I suppose they have to make them pay somehow—well, he found coronary sclerosis of the cylinder block, atrophied piston rings, nephritis of the radiator and other ailments with a most unsatisfactory prognosis unless something was done about it. And it had run—if not all right, at least it had run—until we took it in.

So I suggested a metabolism test, which was a mistake, because it recorded minus 32, whatever that means. Well, when the head mechanic told me how much it would cost for repairs I passed out because there wasn't that much circulating media in our family. After reviving me, they called in the manager, who's a nice fellow and a friend of mine at that—except for service charges.

When I protested the bus was not old enough to have sclerosis, he offered to sell me a new car with a liberal trade-in allowance for the old. Whereupon I offered him the old car outright with a liberal allowance for leading it away. That made us even up on suggestions and negotiations along that line ended.

Then he told me how his company had just paid a dividend intending to prove how good the cars were so people wanted them. And I said: "No wonder. They'll probably declare an extra dividend if I let you make these repairs." It was good clean fun, only I meant it. So it was finally arranged to put the old bus in the contagious disease ward, await its partial recovery, keep the surgical charges as light as possible, then send it after us on its own power, if any, or by freight. I asked him to get the "junk" rate for freight, which of course wasn't very nice, but that's the way I felt then.

Anyway we have to go by train now and soon as possible I'll find out for you whether the hurricane blew away the flamingoes and black swan on Hialeah's infield lake. You remember the first flock, or is it herd, of flamingoes flew back to the West Indies before they became accustomed to their new habitat.

When we get there I'll write and tell you about everything and your friends and I plan to do a lot of hard work for you this winter. Already I feel better since you said I better leave this climate. My cold seems waning, my headache subsided and even the pains in my joints are less. Of course one is likely to get pain in Miami Beach "joints," but they're a different kind of pains, mostly financial. So I've asked Dorothy Stone to forward my weekly pay check where it will do the most good and you know where that will be—right to me. You'll be hearing from me. Hoping you are the same. Regards.

HARVEY T. WOODRUFF.

Boy Files Damage Suit Against Hoag of Yankees

Sacramento, Cal., Jan. 17.—(AP)—Gus Blanos, 15, filed suit here today for $1,000 damages against Myril Hoag, New York Yankees pitcher. Blanos alleged that while passing Hoag's home the night of Jan. 8, the pitcher attacked him with his fists and blackjack. Blanos's attorney said Hoag later explained he had mistaken the boy for a prowler.

Ski Jumpers Aim at Norge Slide Record

Final workouts are on the program today for seventy-five jumpers who will compete tomorrow afternoon in the Norge Ski club's 30th annual tournament at Fox River Grove. The meet starts at 1:30 o'clock.

The slide and hill are in perfect condition and all riders are confident the record of 183 feet will be surpassed. Alf Engen, North American record holder, personally has guaranteed he will soar beyond that mark if conditions are right.

Their are a host of jumpers, in addition to Engen, who may erase the old record. High on the list is Howard Jansen, a 19 year old Chicago youngster, who has shown title possibilities. Jansen, in workouts, has done better than John Elverum, Pacific coast champion, although the latter has not stretched in his practice efforts.

The Norge club, aside from Jansen, will pin its hopes on Gunnar Oman, Guttorm Paulsen, and George Gundersen. Oman is known as the most graceful jumper in the United States, while the other two are dependable performers.

One of the highlights of the meet will be the appearance of the Bietila brothers, representing Detroit, Mich. The Bietila boys arrived in town yesterday and Paul, age 17, journeyed out to the hill immediately. He leaped 194 feet last Sunday at Minneapolis to beat even the class A jumpers. His brothers, Roy and Leonard, also are proficient. Roy and Paul, too young for major competition, will stage an exhibition jump.

Humboldt Ice Carnival Will Be Held Today

An ice carnival consisting of eight skating races and six novelty events will be held this afternoon and evening at the Humboldt park lagoon. An attendance of 30,000 is expected.

Boys and girls, as well as adults, will compete in preliminaries of skating events at 2 o'clock, and finals will start at 7:30 o'clock. At 8 o'clock this evening a costume parade on skates will take place.

Neighborhood dogs will get their chances to race this afternoon. A special event has been arranged for youngsters who believe their pups possess a turn of speed. The race will determine the champion among northwest side ice-racing dogs. The program will be under the supervision of the Chicago park district.

The annual municipal ice skating meet also will be held today at Douglass park, starting at 1:30 o'clock. Twelve speed races are on the program, as well as several relays. This meet will be held under the direction of the bureau of parks recreation and aviation.

First, second, and third place skaters in each race will receive gold, silver, and bronze medals, respectively, and the playground collecting the most points will be awarded a team trophy. Relay victors will get gold buttons, with other prizes to be given second and third place teams.

Purple, Maroons Open Swimming Season Tonight

Northwestern and Chicago will open the Big Ten swimming season with a dual meet at Patten gymnasium tonight. The water polo teams of the two schools also meet.

Tonight's meet will make the conference debuts of Sophomores Dan Zehr and Trahern Ogilby for Northwestern. Zehr, who hails from Fort Wayne, Ind., competes in the backstroke and free style events. He was a member of the United States Olympic team in 1932. Ogilby, former Illinois high school 220 and 440 champion, comes from Rockford.

Capt. Bill Rollinger, free style star, heads the list of returning Purple veterans. He is a former Big Ten champion in the 50 yard dash. Other free style lettermen are John Grandland, Robert Kaufman, and Robert Herridge. Ben Jewell, who placed in both the conference and national intercollegiate backstroke last year, and Gus Horschke, breast stroker, are other veterans available.

The Wildcats possess three divers of more than average ability. They are Dick Lughborough and Don Hervig, letterman, and Ray North, sophomore.

Shute, Walsh and Kringle Lead at Miami

Miami, Fla., Jan. 17.—(AP)—The women had their troubles in the first 18 holes of the 36 hole $1,500 tropic open—South Florida's first event featuring golfers of both sexes—today.

Helen Hicks, former national champion, needed 91 strokes, trailing most of the men professionals, while Maureen Orcutt Crews finished with 86, eleven strokes behind the amateur leader.

Topping the field of professionals were Denny Shute and Frank Walsh, Chicago veterans, and Frank Kringle of Linden, N. J. They toured the par 72 Miami Country club course in 69.

At the head of the string of amateurs that included Buddy Rogers, band leader; Vernon [Lefty] Gomez, New York Yankee pitcher, and Waite Hoyt, Pittsburgh Pirate hurler, was Ralph Doll of Canton, O., with a 75. Rogers, paired with Miss Hicks and Johnny Revolta, the P. G. A., champion, finished with 97. Gomez got around in 89 and Hoyt in 87. Revolta shot 78.

MEHLHORN LEADS FIELD

Sacramento, Cal., Jan. 17.—(AP)—Wild Bill Mehlhorn teamed up with a wild wind today and took the lead at the start of the $3,000 Sacramento open golf tournament. The Louisville, Ky., professional shaved a stroke off par with 71 and led a field of 113 by a stroke.

Even with par for the 6,800 yard municipal course were three other professionals, Charles Lacey, Great Neck, N. Y.; Emory Zimmerman, Portland, Ore., and Art Straub, Brielle, N. J.

Bracketed at 73 were Herman Barron, White Plains, N. Y.; Mark Dry, Oakland; Craig Wood, Deal, N. J.; Orville White, St. Louis, and Wiffey Cox, Bethesda, Md.

Trailing at 74 were Ky Laffoon, Chicago; Harold McSpaden, unattached and winner of the meet last year; Ernie Pieper, San Jose amateur; Horton Smith, Chicago; Jack Grout, Fort Worth, Tex.; Harry Cooper, Chicago; William Bolger, Australia; Al Zimmerman, Portland, brother of Emory; Jack Fessezke, Jackson, Mich., and J. J. McHugh, San Francisco.

3,000 Crows Slaughtered with Dynamite

BY BEN MARKLAND.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Lake City, Ill., Jan. 17.—[Special.]—More than 3,000 crows were killed on the A. L. Wilt farm near here tonight when 50 dynamite bombs were set off by employés of the state department of conservation as part of its campaign to decrease the number of destructive black pirates in the state.

Unfavorable weather conditions, combined with defective bombs, were given as the reason for the small number of crows killed in comparison with other bombings held this winter. More than 25,000 crows were killed Dec. 21 when a big roost was bombed near Highland, Ill., and about 20,000 birds were destroyed near Adair Dec. 17.

120,000 Crows Killed This Winter.

Tonight's bombing brought the total number of crows killed by the state this winter to approximately 120,000, according to Pete J. Erio, acting chief inspector of the department of conservation.

With the temperature slightly above the freezing mark, many crows stayed in the fields all night instead of banding together in the roost. The ideal night for a bombing, according to department officials, is an extremely cold night, when the birds will flock to one small roost in numbers often exceeding 100,000.

Tonight many of the birds stayed away from the roost and many others flocked together in smaller roosts near the one big rookery.

100 Bombs Set; 50 Explode.

One hundred bombs were set during the day in the Osage orange hedge which serves as a roost for the crows. Only about 50 of these exploded when set off by remote control. Defective caps on the dynamite sticks which were encased in the bombs caused the duds.

A. L. Wilt, who operates the farm on which the explosion took place, said that he was glad to have state officials help rid the area of crows. He believes that they are partly responsible for a few cases of cholera among his hogs and that they have damaged his grain crops. Sportsmen are interested in the crow bombings because of the crows' habit of destroying the nests and eggs of song and game birds.

RING INSPECTOR REINSTATED AS CHARGE FAILS

New York, Jan. 17.—[Special.]—The New York state athletic commission today reinstated its chief inspector, Louis Beck, after the latter's accuser, Nat Fleischer of The Ring boxing magazine, had failed to produce witnesses to prove his charge that Beck was in collusion with gamblers.

Fleischer, who had caused Beck's suspension last Tuesday when he told the commission he had seen Beck look over the shoulders of boxing judges between rounds and then confer with gamblers in other parts of the fight clubs, stated he was merely reporting a personal observation, and that his original story was not to be regarded as a definite charge. He added he had no direct proof, and that if the commission wished to push the matter further, it could do so at its own expense.

KOWALIK WILL BE PROMOTED TO STARTING ROLE

Grimm Figures It All Out in Black and White.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

All that Charley Grimm salvaged from his late lamented job as vice president of the Cubs was the right to sign pay checks and his figurin' pencil and memo pad.

While Charley was vice president he frequently whiled away a winter's afternoon by using the vice presidential pencil and pad wrestling with such vice presidential problems as consumer demand, dealer acceptance, and turnover. During the three days he has not been vice president, however, Charley has been using the pencil and pad in strictly baseball computation.

Yesterday he phoned Cub headquarters with the announcement that Fabian Kowalik is going to be a starting pitcher in 1936. Kowalik has been mentioned as a likely possibility ever since the Cubs failed to obtain a starting pitcher in the November-December flesh marts.

Here's How Its Figured.

It is said the Charles John seemed just a little bit breathless as he reported his work with the figurin' pencil. He had just figured, he said, that Kowalik's average last season compares most favorably with that of Lon Warneke in 1931, 1931 being the year immediately preceding the season in which Lon bounced to fame with 22 victories and 6 defeats.

Mr. Grimm previously has seen many points of similarity between the Kowalik of 1935 and the Warneke of 1931, but, according to his report yesterday, the statistics almost bowled him over. Or at least they convinced him Kowalik will be a regular in the imminent season.

Last season Kowalik appeared in 20 games, exactly the same number in which Warneke appeared in 1931. Kowalik won 2 games as compared with three which Warneke won. The loss column is in Kowalik's favor. He lost only two games while Warneke dropped seven in his pre-stardom year. A total of 239 batsmen went to bat against Kowalik compared to the 299 who went to the plate against Warneke in 1931. Kowalik allowed 60 hits last season and Warneke allowed 67.

It Figures Out Swell.

Kowalik's biggest edge over the 1931 Warneke was in the matter of control. Fabian didn't hit a batsman, whereas Lon nicked three; Fabian walked only 19 as compared with Lon's 37. Thirty-one runs, of which 27 were earned, were made off Kowalik. The 1931 Warneke allowed 33 runs, of which 23 were earned.

If Kowalik follows the figuring of Manager Grimm he'll still be behind Warneke in one department. He will be 26 when he reaches stardom. Warneke reached the heights at 23.

PACHO STOPS LOCATELLI IN EIGHTH ROUND

New York, Jan. 17.—(AP)—Bobby Pacho, Los Angeles lightweight, scored a technical knockout over Cleta Locatelli of Italy in the eighth round in Madison Square Garden tonight. Referee Arthur Donovan stopped the fight after Pacho opened a bad cut over Locatelli's left eye.

The decision was booed by the small crowd of 5,237 who paid $10,057.72 to see the boxers meet for a shot at either the lightweight or welterweight championship. Locatelli was ahead in rounds when Donovan intervened.

FINDS HIGHWAY TO MEXICO CITY STILL DANGEROUS

Tribune Survey Reveals Perils of Trip.

BY HAL FOUST.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 17. — THE TRIBUNE roadster covered the 762 miles from Laredo, Tex., to this city in 25 hours of driving, broken into three sessions at the wheel. The trip was made with less difficulty than was anticipated from having covered the same route two years ago. The inspection of the road, however, indicated that the Mexican government is a bit optimistic in predicting that the highway will be ready for general tourist travel by May 15.

The hazards today are not great for motorists familiar with mountain and rough driving. Nevertheless, the risks are real and the trip should not be attempted without full appreciation of the dangers.

Dangers Are Outlined.

A greater menace than tumbling down a mountain, in the opinion of this reporter, is the chance that some minor mechanical accident or failure might stall a tourist for several days in one of the Indian villages of thatch roofed huts, with health threatened by contaminated water and food.

There are fifty or sixty miles of driving over loose rock with sharp edges and points that cut into tires. These rocks, even when driving twenty or thirty miles an hour, are tossed against the bottom of the car, pounding on the battery box, gasoline tank, and exposed wiring. The jolts of ruts and bumps loosened a nut on the spark regulator of THE TRIBUNE roadster, sapping all power from the engine.

Another hazard is the frequent landslides above the places blasted on precipices for the highway. Cars have been buried by those avalanches.

Compensated for Trip.

After fully considering all of the dangers, however, there is ample compensation for the able and adventurous motorist in touring this new highway to Mexico City.

The 226 miles from Tamazunchale carried the roadster from the tropics of that Indian village on the Rio Moctezuma for 80 miles of climbing up verdant mountain sides to elevations over 8,000 feet above sea level.

At the lower elevations [500 feet above sea level] parrakeets and other noisy birds of bright plumage sang from settings wild with vegetation foreign to northern eyes. At higher levels Indians in big hats and white overalls pulled and pushed plows for coffee in fields too steep to afford footing for a draft animal.

Still higher the trees were those of the temperate zone. On the western slopes, the dry side of the mountains, cactus was profuse. Population was even more sparse than vegetation. There were a few small groups of Indian huts supported, apparently, by flocks of goats.

4 PORTO RICANS SHOT IN ANOTHER POLITICAL CLASH

PONCE, Porto Rico, Jan. 17.—(AP)—Four persons were shot, one fatally, in San Juan today in another outbreak of widespread disorders attendant upon registration for the November elections.

There were riots yesterday in the towns of Vega Baja, Canovanas, and Vabucoa with many persons wounded. In San Sebastian one person was killed and several were injured.

Officials said that on the island during the last week eight persons have been killed, 60 wounded, and 42 arrested.

Driver Is Kidnaped; Truck and $10,000 Cargo Stolen

Don O'Day, 3220 Lowe avenue, reported to the Deering street police yesterday that three gunmen kidnaped him at 31st and Halsted streets and robbed him of a truck containing $10,000 worth of tobacco, liquor, and other merchandise. After driving him around in a car for two hours, O'Day said, the hijackers ejected him at 33d street and Western avenue. The truck was owned by the Broderick Teaming company, 3236 Shields avenue. Its cargo was consigned to the Liggett Drug Store company.

Jury Convicts Hoodlum on a Gun Toting Charge

Martin Quirk, south side hoodlum, was found guilty yesterday on a charge of carrying concealed weapons by a jury in the Criminal court of Judge John C. Lewe. A motion for a new trial will be heard Tuesday. If it is denied Quirk faces a possible maximum sentence of a year in the Bridewell and a $300 fine. Quirk was alleged to have entered the Croydon hotel grill, 616 Rush street, on Nov. 15 and fired several shots.

$1,755 Tax Refund Sought on James Forgan Estate

Suit seeking a $1,755 refund on the $57,517 inheritance tax paid the state of Illinois on the $1,454,985 estate of James B. Forgan, banker, who died in 1924, was filed yesterday in the County court by the First National bank as trustee. Attorney Joseph Relnick, who filed the suit, said that the original tax was assessed on the assumption that Mrs. Jessie Ott, Forgan's daughter, would be survived by but one heir. Mrs. Ott was survived by three children at the time of her death in 1928.

MARY HERRON'S WILL DISPOSES OF $175,000 ESTATE

The will of Mrs. Mary W. Herron disposing of an estate estimated at $175,000 was admitted to probate yesterday by Oscar S. Caplan, assistant to the probate judge. Mrs. Herron, who was 81 years old, lived at 338 Kenilworth avenue, Oak Park. She died last Nov. 20. She was the widow of John W. Herron, Peoria merchant. Under the terms of her will the estate will go to a son, William A. Herron; a daughter, Mary W. Herron, and a daughter-in-law, Mrs. John Herron.

Also admitted to probate was the will of Edward W. Hinton, leaving an estate estimated at $42,000 to his widow, Mrs. Mary Hinton, 1221 East 56th street, a son and a daughter. Mr. Hinton, who was professor emeritus at the University of Chicago school of law, died Jan. 2. He was 67 years old.

The following other wills were admitted to probate and filed with Clerk Mitchell C. Robin:

ROBERT G. WILLIAMS, died Dec. 30. Estate, $18,000, to daughter and son. Griffith R. Williams, son, executor.

ERNEST R. MELLEN, died Dec. 3. Estate, $5,000, to widow and executrix, Daisy L. Mellen.

EMMA COE WHIGAM, died Sept. 8. Estate, $16,000, to husband and two nephews. Wallace H. Whigam, husband, executor.

FIVE OF BABIES IN UNLICENSED HOME CLAIMED

Parents yesterday claimed five of the nine babies removed on Thursday from an unlicensed children's home at 4535 Beacon street. Five of the babies were placed in St. Vincent's orphanage and four in St. Joseph's Home for Children after Municipal Judge Leon Edelman ordered the closure of the Beacon street place and an investigation of its conduct.

Mrs. Lucille Parker, 40 years old, charged with operating the Beacon street home without a license, is at liberty in bail pending a hearing on Jan. 22. At that time investigators for the state department of child welfare are to make a report of their findings to Judge Edelman.

At St. Joseph's yesterday two boys and a girl from the Beacon street place were claimed by their parents. In St. Vincent's three were unclaimed last night. Their parents have been notified to call for them.

REV. B. C. HEENEY, VETERAN PASTOR, DIES IN RECTORY

The Rev. Bernard C. Heeney, pastor of St. Gertrude's Catholic church, Glenwood and Granville avenues, for the last 18 years, died of a heart attack last night in the rectory. He was 64 years old. Before going to St. Gertrude's, Father Heeney was pastor of a church in West Chicago and assistant pastor at Holy Angels church in Chicago. He is survived by three sisters, Mrs. James Baggott, Mrs. Theresa Hughes, and Miss Frances Heeney.

Widow Awarded $23,458 from Insurance Company

Mrs. Sarah Myers, 2000 Lincoln Park West, won a jury verdict for $23,458 against the Mutual Life Insurance company of New York yesterday before Federal Judge John P. Barnes. The jury held that her husband, Charles W., picture frame manufacturer, died accidentally on Sept. 3, 1930, entitling her to double indemnity on two $10,000 policies on which the company paid $20,000. Heart disease was blamed for the death, but Mrs. Myers contended a fall was responsible and exhumation of the body showed that the skull had been fractured.

Funeral Service Is Held for Mrs. Emma S. Welshon

Funeral services for Mrs. Emma Squires Welshon, 71 years, old of Chicago and Baltimore, who died in a hospital at St. Augustine, Fla., last Monday after a three weeks' illness, were held at 3 p. m. yesterday in the chapel at 5708 Madison street. Mrs. Welshon was the widow of John L. Welshon, Chicago hardware merchant, who died in 1931. Two sons and a daughter survive.

News of the Radio Stations

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Phillips Lord's new "Gang Busters" series over CBS is something of a bust as a radio program. First case concerned the solution of the Millen Brothers—Faber murder in Massachusetts. Our chief complaint is the manner of presentation. First scene has Lord talking to the police chief who was credited with the solution of the case. The official begins telling his version of the story and suddenly the show switches to drama. Thus it goes for thirty minutes with the police chief talking for a while only to be followed by other dramatic episodes.

The whole thing has an air of clumsy artificiality about it. And right in the middle of the presentation Tiny Ruffner, the commercial announcer, cuts in with a dramatized sketch in which he sells the policemen at headquarters a batch of shaving cream. On top of it all the police chief had a vocal inflection like one imagines only the Cabots and Lowells have—no good for the public conception of a hard boiled official's voice and manner.

"Gang Busters" is the show that the toiletries sponsor has put on the air in place of the homely humor of Clare, Lu, 'n' Em. They just left the air this week after a run of five years. Yesterday morning a baby girl was born to Louise Starkey Mead [Clara] at Evanston hospital. Baby weighed 7 pounds and was named Cameron Jean Mead. Cameron is the middle name of her father, Paul Mead.

The broadcast of the Louis-Retzlaff fight last night set some sort of a record for commercial radio. There were two beer announcements which took up 4 minutes and 15 seconds of the broadcast time, the fight itself lasting only 1 minute and 25 seconds.

Two more English air favorites arrived today to join Jack Hylton's troupe Sunday on CBS and next week at the Drake over W-G-N. They are Clive Erard, a singing comedian, composer and arranger, and Effie Atherton, songstress and dialectician. They will supplement the circus, which already includes Pat O'Malley, Alec Templeton, Magda Needl, and Peggy Dell.

The practice of naming orchestras after dance teams is one that doesn't make much of a hit with radio listeners. When Veloz and Yolanda came to the Palmer house, Shep Field's orchestra became the Veloz and Yolanda orchestra. For months Al Kavelin has been turning out clever music from the Blackstone under his own name. Suddenly his orchestra has become the "De Marco's orchestra, under the direction of Kavelin." So far as we know, Veloz and Yolanda, and the De Marcos contribute nothing to radio. This is only a device designed to advertise them over the air.

The Northerners will launch their sixth year on the air next Monday evening over W-G-N. . . . Bob Hawk has moved his well known "Red Hot and Low Down" program from WCFL to WJJD. Show runs from 2 to 3 p. m. daily except Sunday. Hawk is being assisted by Jimmy Corbin. . . . Channon Collinge, famous American-English composer, who conducted the Cathedral hour over CBS, died Wednesday in New York following an operation. He was 61 years old.

In Joe Penner's new picture he plays the part of a chap who has forgotten his name. A bit of unfortunate casting. The radio public has practically forgotten his name, too. . . . There are persistent reports that Dick Powell is soon to leave "Hollywood Hotel."

48,000,000 USE FACILITIES OF PARKS IN YEAR

An estimated total of 48,413,892 persons used the facilities of the Chicago park district during 1935, it was announced yesterday by Robert J. Dunham, president of the park board. This total was exclusive of 3,680,000 visitors to the Lincoln park zoo, 1,126,095 to park conservatories, and visitors to such institutions as the Field museum, Adler planetarium, Museum of Science and Industry, Art institute, Academy of Arts and Sciences, and Chicago Historical Society building, all situated on park property.

The largest attendance was in the field of sports, the report showed. Attendance at beaches last summer totaled 15,909,946. Attendance figures for other park activities follow:

Swimming pools	1,985,709
Skating ponds	1,251,630
Toboggans	25,545
Fieldhouse gymnasia	2,667,469
Horseshoes	58,994

Clubrooms	1,237,221
Pre-school groups	1,957
Playgrounds	2,027,265
Vacation schools	134,187
Drama and movies	68,072

The park system was used more widely in 1935, Mr. Dunham asserted, than in any previous year.

CIGARET VENDING DEVICES CALLED PERIL TO MINORS

A subcommittee of the city council license committee considering the question of barring cigaret vending machines in Chicago was told yesterday that continued use of such machines will increase cigaret smoking among children. John Hardy, representing the Boys' and Girls' Anti-cigaret league, told the subcommittee that minors are able to use the machines.

Representatives of vending machine manufacturers said they are in favor of stringent laws to protect minors. The subcommittee will report to the license committee before the next meeting of the city council Jan. 29.

Meanwhile Barnet Hodes, city corporation counsel, drafted an ordinance to prohibit the sale of cigarets by machine. The proposal was drawn up for Ald. James J. McDermott [14th], chairman of the council judiciary committee, who said he will ask its passage if similar action is not taken by the license committee.

COL. LAWTON IS PROMOTED TO BRIGADIER

Gov. Henry Horner has appointed Col Samuel T. Lawton, commanding officer of the 122d field artillery regiment, a brigadier general of the Illinois National Guard. He will command the 58th Field Artillery brigade. In this post he succeeds Brig. Gen. Frank R. Schwengel, who retired from the Guard in December.

Official announcement of the promotion of Gen. Lawton was received yesterday by Col. Lawrence V. Regan, chief of staf of the 33d division.

Gen. Lawton, an attorney, enlisted in the militia organization in 1909. He served on the Mexican border in 1916. During the world war, when he was a captain, he commanded troops in Meuse-Argonne and St. Mihiel commands. He has been commander of the 122d Field Artillery since 1926.

EVANSTON GIRL, HURT IN DENVER, BELIEVED DYING

Friends received word yesterday that Miss Mildred Sundquist, 20 years old, 1236 Hinman avenue, Evanston, is not expected to live as a result of injuries received Thursday while horseback riding in Denver, Colo.

Miss Sundquist, who received a double fracture of the skull when her horse stumbled and fell, has been unconscious since the accident. Her father, Carl I. Sundquist, general manager of Reid, Murdock & Co., wholesale grocers, and Mrs. Sundquist went to Denver by plane as soon as they were informed of the accident.

Miss Sundquist and her elder sister, Marguerite, formerly attended Northwestern university. This year they were students at the University of Colorado in Denver.

$10,000,000 TAX REFUND HELD UP BY WILKERSON

Awaits Mandate of Supreme Court.

Release of approximately $10,000,000 of bonds and cash in AAA processing taxes impounded in his court was refused yesterday by Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson. He ruled packers and other processors who posted it must await a final mandate on the Supreme court's Agricultural Adjustment act cases.

JUDGE WILKERSON

Judge Wilkerson criticized the "undue haste" of processors in attempting to obtain release of the funds before the Supreme court has issued its mandate and while the government still has a chance to ask a rehearing on the decision which held the AAA unconstitutional.

Contrary to Earlier Ruling.

The decision was contrary to a ruling Thursday by Federal Judge John P. Barnes, who ordered the return of more than $7,500,000 in cash and bonds deposited by seven packers and one milling concern.

Although the rice millers' case, which brought the Supreme court's second ruling on the AAA, held the processing tax unconstitutional, Judge Wilkerson said yesterday that until the court's final mandate is issued, not even the plaintifs in that noted suit may recover their money.

Attorney James B. Cooney, representing Wilson & Co. units, told the court the chances against the Supreme court reversing itself were "10,000 to one," but the judge was unimpressed.

Judge Explains Situation.

"There has been a very able dissenting opinion in which three judges of the Supreme court have joined," the court said. "There have been cases where the Supreme court has granted a rehearing and changed its views, especially where there was a sharp division of opinion.

"The litigants are not yet in a position to recover. There is no reason why this case should be different than others. The justices who dissented acted with equal sincerity as the justices who handed down the majority opinion. A mere opinion is not a mandate. Under rules of the Supreme court the parties have a right to ask for a rehearing."

According to Attorney Carl R. Perkins, the government has until Jan. 31 to apply for a rehearing. It is understood Attorney General Cummings will reveal whether the government will seek a rehearing next Wednesday.

Seven Companies Involved.

Seven companies were involved in yesterday's ruling. They are Wilson & Co. of Oklahoma, Wilson & Co. of California, Kerber Packing company, Armour & Co. of Illinois, Illinois Meat company, Quaker Oats company, and Mid-States Gummed Paper company. The last five are Chicago companies.

Attorneys for the companies said their deposits in bonds and cash were: Armour, $4,912,853 in bond, $3,741,213 in cash; Wilson [Oklahoma], $200,000 in bonds; Wilson [California], $100,000 in bonds; Kerber, $33,000 cash and $57,000 bonds; Illinois Meat, $240,000 cash and $375,000 bonds; Quaker Oats, $500,000 cash, and Mid States Gummed Paper, $400,000 cash.

Federal Judges Charles E. Woodward has continued his cases until Monday morning. Federal Judges Philip L. Sullivan and William R. Holly, who have jurisdiction over 30 cases pending in this district, were out of the city.

NEW YORK CASH RETURNED.

Utica, N. Y., Jan. 17.—[Special.]—More than $300,000 in processing taxes or bonds held as security under the AAA was ordered returned today by Federal Judge Frederick H. Bryant to five New York state processors.

GREAT NORTHERN IRON ORE VOTES PAYMENT OF $1

The Great Northern Iron Ore Properties, St. Paul, Minn., yesterday declared a distribution of $1 a share on certificates of beneficial interest. A payment of 50 cents was made a year ago.

Associated Dry Goods corporation declared another $3 dividend on account of accumulations of the first preferred stock. The payment is the same as was made in the four preceding quarters.

Julius Kayser & Co., declared a dividend of 37½ cents on the common. In November last year 25 cents was paid, while on Sept. 10 a dividend of 65 cents was distributed.

Railway and Light Securities company voted a special dividend of 25 cents on the common. The last payment on the issue was 37½ cents on May 2, 1932.

Consumers Co. Hearing Is Postponed Until Feb. 17

Hearing on reorganization of the Consumers company under section 77B of the federal bankruptcy laws was postponed yesterday by Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson to Feb. 17, when attorneys for various interests informed the court they needed additional time to iron out certain differences before accepting or rejecting the plan advanced by trustees.

Calls Supreme Court Greatest Aid to Revival

East St. Louis, Ill., Jan. 17.—[Special.]—If any credit is to be given for the business recovery now growing in this country it should go to the justices of the United States Supreme court, said Sterling Morton, secretary of the Morton Salt company and Democratic grandson of a former secretary of agriculture, here tonight. He addressed the southern division of the Illinois Manufacturers' association.

"There has been a general recovery in business during the last seven months," he said. "Whether it is a healthy and lasting recovery, or a feverish recovery based on the inflation already here and the greater inflation reasonably to be expected, no one is wise enough to predict.

Some Measure of Recovery.

"For the present, we do have a measure of recovery. Already we begin to hear of a shortage of labor, especially in the more skilled trades; already some factories are nearing capacit operation; already pay rolls grow larger.

"Loud claims for the credit for this recovery are heard from various factions, but I haven't yet heard any claims from those who are really responsible—from the men whose carefully considered action restored a degree of confidence and started the business ball rolling. I refer to the justices of the Supreme court.

"They said quietly, but decisively, that this country must have a government of laws, not a government of men. To them alone is due the credit for bringing renewed courage and confidence to the average man in business."

Warns Against Planned Economy.

In warning against the grave and increasing dangers of politically "planned ecenomy," he urged business men to accept the challenge of defending their rights as "trustees" for their employés and stockholders.

"We are to have only 'planned production for use'—what bosh!", Morton declared. "These words are used to cover the real interest of the planners. As surely as day follows night, burocratic planning of production must lead to burocratic planning of consumption.

"Business is accused of utter, blind selfishness. Now it has the chance to be intelligently selfish and, at the same time, do the nation a great service. The job is more important than the success of your own business. If your business fails you have the ability to create another one. But if the planned economy comes you will have neither your business nor the opportunity to create a new one."

GERMANY CUTS SLIM GOLD STOCK IN BUYING FOODS

[Copyright: 1936: By the New York Times.]

BERLIN, Jan. 17.—The Reichsbank statement for the week ended Jan. 15 revealed today that during that period Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, president of the bank, used 6,000,000 marks [the mark is currently quoted at 40.33 cents] of Germany's slender gold supply to buy foreign foodstuffs, especially fats, to ease the food shortage in Germany. This expenditure reduced the Reichsbank's official gold reserve from 82,500,000 marks to 76,500,000, which in turn reduced the gold and foreign exchange "coverage" of German paper money to just a fraction above 2 per cent.

In order to stretch German food supplies the Coöperative Association for National Nutritation issued an appeal to the German people to eat more bread with which Germany can now supply herself. Bread consumption has been decreasing largely because of the deterioration in the quality of bread which is attributed to the numerous admixtures and to the fact that the quality of German wheat had been neglected for the sake of quantity.

HOTEL LA SALLE PAYMENT AWAITS OWNERS OF BONDS

Approximately $25,000, representing a portion of the first and final 5 per cent dividend alloted holders of first and refunding 5½ per cent serial gold bonds of the old Hotel La Salle company, is being held by the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company awaiting claimants, it was disclosed yesterday as affairs of the old corporation were cleaned up before Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson.

The total payment amounts to $46,440, but $21,000 of this will be claimed by a bondholders' protective committee on deposited bonds which it holds.

There is no record of bondholders entitled to the balance, but, according to R. B. Johnstone, attorney representing the trustee, public notification will be issued shortly. It is expected a large part of the unpaid balance will then be claimed.

ILLINOIS COAL OUTPUT SETS FIVE YEAR PEAK

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 17.—(AP)—Shipping mines of Illinois produced 41,328,971 tons of coal during 1935, a gain of 2,673,444 over 1934, the department of mines and minerals reported today. The 1935 output was the highest annual production since 1930.

Figures on the 1935 output of local mines were not complete, but a substantial increase over the preceding year's production of 2,058,551 was expected.

In December shipping mines produced 4,763,895 tons, compared with 4,431,164 tons a year ago and 3,952,278 tons in November. Illinois mines employed 37,044 men during the month, 2,301 working in 24 strip mines and 34,743 in 138 shaft mines. Strip mines produced 803,640 tons and shaft mines, 3,960,255 tons.

Field Opens 5 New York Sales Offices

Marshall Field & Co., manufacturing division, last night announced completion of the first stage of a program of expansion begun several months ago when the company decided to cease operating as a jobber for others and concentrate on distribution of products of its own factories and mills.

The current phase of development is centered on expansion of New York sales activities. To cover the important New York market districts, the Field manufacturing division has set up five sales offices representing the major commodity groupings of its products.

Better Way to Buyers.

In view of the situation peculiar to New York, it was explained, the company found it impossible to reach buyers to the best advantage without splitting up its sales offices. The various markets are highly specialized and are not centered in one or two locations as in Chicago, the company said, making it advisable to establish several offices.

All five of the offices have been rebuilt and redecorated on modern lines. Special design and lighting effects have been sought in merchandise displays.

Latest of the offices to be opened is that for domestics and bedding sales at 82 Worth street, where Field has leased sizable quarters in the old downtown loft district on lower Manhattan. This is in the heart of the textile industry's market and features products of the fifteen Field mills in North Carolina and Virginia. Important lines include sheets, blankets, bedspreads, and towels. Also displayed in this building are the Field cotton dress fabric lines.

Other Office Locations.

Headquarters of the silk, rayon, and wool fabric division are set up at 1440 Broadway. A block away, at 1350 Broadway, is the showroom of the cotton dress and silk lingerie factories. Floor coverings and rugs occupy space jointly at 295 Fifth avenue.

The former central office at 200 Madison avenue now houses the knit underwear and hosiery group and glove, handkerchief, and lingerie lines. The curtain and drapery section of the home furnishings division also remains there.

Also to be installed at the Madison avenue quarters is the new division of design and styling, established Dec. 1 at the time the old Field wholesale organization was recast into the manufacturing division.

Space occupied at the former central office will be much less than formerly, but aggregate New York space will be slightly large.

RAILWAY HEADS DISCUSS WAYS TO ECONOMIZE

Problems involved in effecting economies through consolidation and joint use of facilities, elimination of unnecessary facilities, and provision for employés displaced by such action, were discussed here yesterday by directors of the Association of American Railroads at a meeting in the Blackstone hotel.

J. J. Pelley, president of the organization, and other members of the board declined to discuss their recommendations, which will be presented to a general meeting of the association today. It was understood efforts will be made to negotiate with labor unions on a plan of retirement for displaced employés. This program, undertaken with the coöperation of Joseph B. Eastman, federal coördinator of transportation, has been blocked by the 1933 emergency transportation act.

Presidents attending yesterday's session included: F. E. Williamson, New York Central; M. W. Clement, Pennsylvania; H. A. Scandrett, Milwaukee; S. T. Bledsoe, Atchison; W. P. Kenney, Great Northern; Carl R. Gray, Union Pacific; A. C. Needles, Norfolk and Western, and L. A. Downs, Illinois Central.

British May Raise Steel Prices to Offset Cost Gains

LONDON, Jan. 17.—(AP)—Steel interests are said to be considering the raising of prices to customers to offset an increase in the price of coal. Although prices of raw materials used in the manufacture of steel have risen considerably, there has been no corresponding advance in steel prices.

FURNITURE SHOWS' SALES RISE 50 PCT.; BUYERS SET RECORD

With sales running 50 per cent ahead of last January's show and attendance setting an all-time record, the semi-annual furniture show will close today after a two weeks' run.

Lawrence H. Whiting, president of the American Furniture Mart, said yesterday that 8,223 buyers had registered, compared with the previous high mark of 7,308 set for the two weeks' market last July. Last January the number of buyers totaled 6,231.

At the Merchandise Mart officials of the international houseware exposition and allied groups stated that registration of buyers would pass the 8,500 mark by tonight, when the show ends. The last high was nearly two thousand under this figure at the July, 1935, show. Furniture and other exhibitors there said the business booked would run 5 to 60 per cent over last season.

U. S. STEEL SEEKS SIMPLIFICATION TO EASE NEW TAX

New York, Jan. 17.—[Special.]—It is understood that the management of the United States Steel corporation has under consideration the problem created by increased federal taxation of holding companies but has not as yet worked out a solution. The Bethlehem Steel corporation yesterday announced that it will consolidate a group of its most important subsidiaries to effect substantial tax savings.

The problem of the United States Steel corporation is of the same type as that of the Bethlehem Steel corporation. Like the Bethlehem it is a holding company. Moreover, it also is in arrears in dividends on its preferred stock. However, the U. S. Steel corporation's problem is more complicated than that of the Bethlehem Steel corporation because of its vast size.

The United States Steel corporation has assets of more than two billions of dollars, compared with $600,000,000 for the Bethlehem Steel. It has about twenty-five major subsidiaries and in addition has numerous small ones. The United States Steel subsidiaries not only cover every phase of the steel manufacturing industry but also include shipping, mining, and railroads, which operate 50,000 freight cars.

BERE ELECTED PRESIDENT OF CLEARING BANK

The State Bank of Clearing yesterday elected Lambert Bere president to succeed Henry P. Isham, who resigned to become a director of the First National bank of Chicago. Bere was formerly vice president and cashier. Prentice S. Porter was elected vice president and John A. Camphouse was promoted from assistant cashier to cashier. Other officers were reëlected by the directors.

All directors and officers of the Metropolitan State bank were reelected at annual meetings of stockholders and directors.

Stockholders of the Niles Center State bank elected Miss Alma E. Klehm a director in place of her brother, the late Edwin T. Klehm. Willard C. Galitz, assistant cashier of the bank and son of its president, William J. Galitz, was elected to the board. All other directors and officers were reëlected.

Sales of National Tea Co. Show Gain for Last Year

The National Tea company yesterday announced sales of $61,609,669 for the year ended Dec. 31, 1935, an increase of 0.4 per cent over the $61,338,372 for 1934. In the thirteenth period of 1935, consisting of four weeks and two days, the company's sales amounted to $5,340,570, an increase of 16.1 per cent over the preceding period, when the total was $4,599,871, but 11 per cent below the $5,401,556 for the corresponding period of 1934.

Engineering Construction Awards Lower Last Week

Engineering construction awards for the last week totaled $54,714,000, of which $3,333,000 represented private work and $51,381,000 public activities, the Engineering News-Record reports. The volume is below the high level of the preceding week, but more than double the average weekly figures for the first half of last year.

Freight Holds 5 Year Peak for 7th Week

Washington, D. C., Jan. 17.—[Special.]—For the seventh consecutive week freight car loadings in the United States have reached a five year seasonal peak. The total last week amounted to 615,028 cars, showing a more than ordinary increase, according to figures released today by the Association of American Railroads.

An increase of 73,044 cars, or 13.4 per cent, over the preceding week was in line with estimates made earlier in the week, but particular encouragement lay in the pointed upturn in miscellaneous and less than carload shipments.

Consumer Buying Indicated.

Roughly, two-thirds of last week's improvement came from these two classifications, which are generally regarded as reliable indicators of the movement of manufactured goods into the hands of consumers.

The total for the week was 61,510 cars, or 11 per cent above the corresponding week of 1935. The increase over two years ago amounted to 57,762 cars, the gain over the 1933 week was 108,706 cars and the total rose 42,524 cars above the 1932 period. In the preceding week of this year there was an increase of 75,305 cars over a week earlier and a gain of 44,710 cars over 1935.

Christmas Slump Recovered.

The decline of 132,855 cars during the Christmas week now has been offset by gains since that week with 15,494 cars to spare.

Totals for various classifications last week follow:

CANADIAN DOLLAR ADVANCES TO PAR WITH U. S. MONEY

New York, Jan. 17.—[Special.]—Canadian dollars today reached parity with the American dollar for the first time in many months in the foreign exchange market here. The pound sterling also rose against the dollar, but gold bloc currencies were considerably weaker.

Losses in the gold group amounted to 2 points in the French franc, 8 points in the Swiss franc, and 22 points in the Dutch guilder. All are still substantially above their export levels, though.

The drop in the French franc to 6.60½ cents raised the value of the American dollar 30 points, or .3 cent, against francs to $1.0043 from $1.0013 yesterday.

The British pound was ¼ cent higher at $4.96, and the Canadian dollar at $1 in American currency was 3⅛ points higher for the day. Scandinavian currencies were unchanged, but German marks lost 9 points. Hongkong dollars, 38 points; Shanghai dollars, 18⅛ points, and Japanese yen, 3 points. Slipping silver prices may account for the pronounced weakness in far eastern silver money.

Receipts of foreign gold today were $2,545,400 from Canada and $6,400 from Guatemala.

NEWSPAPER 'AD' TOTAL IN '35 SET AT HALF BILLION

New York, Jan. 17.—(AP)—Editor and Publisher, newspaper and advertising journal, today estimated daily newspaper advertising in 1935 at about $520,000,000. This compared with about $490,000,000 in 1934 and $440,000,000 during 1933. It estimated the volume in 1929 at $850,000,000.

Daily newspapers had a gain of 5.8 per cent over 1934 in actual lineage on the basis of an index of advertising measured in 52 key cities throughout the United States. December was the year's peak month, and was the first month to surpass 1931 levels.

A tabulation of lineage in dailies of 89 cities showed gains were made in every part of the nation, the publication reported.

STOCKS MIXED; TRADERS GROW MORE CAUTIOUS

Drop in Silver Acts as Drag on Market.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 17.—For no particularly apparent reason the stock market speculative community affected a more cautious mood today. Price movements were mixed and generally narrower than they have been and the turnover declined to 2,357,116 shares, the second smallest total of the year.

Observers found little real evidence of bearishness, however, and it was believed that the rank and file were merely awaiting more light on the road ahead before enlarging commitments.

The world crash in the price of silver metal had a depressing effect on the white metal shares and acted more or less as a drag on the entire market.

U. S. Smelting Drops, Rallies.

United States Smelting dropped nearly 4 points under rather heavy selling, but recovered a point or so of its loss. Declines of fractions to around 2 points were noted in American Smelting, Cerro de Pasco, Howe Sound, and others of the group. The gold miners, on the other hand, showed a disposition to brace up with McIntyre setting the example with a rise of a point or so.

Aside from the dip in the silvers, the market feature from the tape-watcher's viewpoint was a subsidence of the excited trading in some of the low priced issues, whose sudden popularity has been such a mystery for the last week or so. Two or three issues of the group maintained their strength, however, one of them being Newport Industries, which was shoved to another new high to the accompaniment of rumors that another chemical company is acquiring control of it.

Another issue to arouse speculative comment is Advance-Rumely. The stock is now "ex." Most of its calculable assets, namely, $1 in cash and one-half a share of Allis-Chalmers, will shortly be paid. An unused plant at Battle Creek is said to be about all the assets left. Yet the stock is selling at double its price of two or three days ago, when it went ex-dividend.

Profit Taking Is Brake.

Light profit taking acted as a brake on the oil and railroad shares. Union Pacific was an exception to the downtrend of the carrier group, bucking the trend for a gain of more than a point.

Steel stocks were under light pressure and small losses were suffered by the tobaccos.

Some sharp movements occurred among the farm implements on the outlook for a fresh farm bonus effort. Deere moved to new high ground.

Most of the cigar company stocks were strong. Cuban American preferred lifted its gain for the last two sessions to 10 points before feeling profit taking sales.

Exchange Seats Sell Higher.

The New York Stock exchange announced that arrangements for the sale of a seat for $172,000 have been made, an increase of $2,000 over a price paid earlier this week and the highest value in about two years. The depression low for memberships was $65,000. In 1929 the peak was $500,000.

The price of memberships in the New York Curb exchange also bounded upward today with a transfer at $38,000, up $8,000 from the previous transaction and a new high since January, 1934. The depression low for curb seats was $16,500, while the boom time peak was $254,000, reached in 1929.

REFUND SOUGHT BY DEPOSITORS IN BAIN BANKS

A massmeeting of depositors of the defunct Bain banks will be held at 8 p. m. Monday in the Gage park fieldhouse, 55th street and Western avenue, for the purpose of mapping action to obtain repayment of some of the $13,000,000 owed depositors when the chain failed in 1932.

The meeting is sponsored by the Lawn Civic association, whose membership includes 1,500 of the more than 100,000 depositors affected. William F. Stelzer is president of the association. State Auditor Edward J. Barrett and Receiver William L. O'Connell have been invited to attend and tell of steps taken to date in efforts to obtain "dividends."

Only three of the twelve banks have repaid anything—the returns ranging from 15 to 17½ per cent of deposit liabilities. Loans from the Reconstruction Finance corporation have been approved for these three and five of the other nine, but have not been paid out yet. No hope is held for loans for the other four.

Cut in Capital Proposed by Illinois Brick Company

A reduction of authorized capital of Illinois Brick company from $6,000,000 to $2,400,000 will be voted on by stockholders at the annual meeting Jan. 31. Ratification of the proposal, shareholders have been informed, would make possible resumption of dividends as soon as warranted by earnings. The reduction of capital would be accomplised by cutting par value of the 240,000 shares of stock from $25 to $10. The capital fees would be used to wipe out deficits and leave a capital surplus.

Proposed Law Hits Municipal Bondholders

D. T. Richardson, chairman of the municipal securities committee of the Investment Bankers' association, yesterday issued a warning that legislation is pending in congress which, if passed, would jeopardize the security of many municipal bondholders.

D. T. RICHARDSON. [Teloff Photo.]

In a talk before the bankers' central states group Richardson said that an amendment to the municipal bankruptcy laws is pending which would restore the features successfully opposed when the law originally was passed to permit municipalities to scale down their debts and charges in the same manner that corporations effect reorganizations.

Consent Not Required.

The pending measure would permit a reorganization to be begun in federal courts by any local government unit without consent of creditors, if that unit has a loan from the federal government. Protective committees, even if they represented practically all of the bondholders, would be counted as a single bondholder and would have no more voice in proceedings than a person owning only one bond, he said.

The present laws, which Richardson termed satisfactory, require consent of two-thirds of each class of bonds and 75 per cent of the aggregate amount outstanding before a municipality may petition the federal courts for adjustment of its debts. This, Richardson pointed out, protects bondholders from an arbitrary action to cut interest or scale down debts.

Progress on Debt Problem.

John O. Rees, director of the committee on public expenditures, told the investment bankers that Cook county governmental bodies are making substantial progress on their debt problems, but that many obstacles still remain before the tangled finances can be straightened out.

Restoration of tax collections to normal is the next phase of the problem which must be attacked, said Rees, but these cannot be expected to improve until refunding operations of the county and park district are completed.

"Taxpayers are certainly entitled to expect the park board and county board to do the same as the sanitary district has done in its refunding operation," said Rees, "and until they do politicians can't expect tax collections to get any better."

Records "Beyond Description."

"The records of the county," said Rees, "are beyond description. The situation is imposible. If a taxpayer wishes to learn how much his delinquent taxes are, he has to go all over the county building to find out.

"An effort is under way to abstract the books, set up what each property owner owes, and put officials in a position to do something if they wish. Necessity, I think, will force them to do something in the next few years to improve tax collections.

"You can't expect taxpayers to rush in and pay when there is a dispute as to what they owe, when others are getting their bills changed, and when there is practically no effort by officials to settle matters."

TEXAS OPPOSES RAIL PLAN TO MOVE TO CHICAGO

Fort Worth, Tex., Jan. 17.—(AP)—A temporary injunction restraining the Chicago, Rock Island and Gulf railway from moving a part of its general offices from Fort Worth to Chicago was granted in District court here today on the petition of the state of Texas and the city of Fort Worth. Judge Frank Culver announced the case would be tried on its merits. He will set a hearing date later.

A Texas statute enacted in 1889, provides that a railroad operating in Texas must keep its general offices in the state.

SILVER PRICES CRASH AGAIN; U. S. LOSS GROWS

New York Quotation Falls 3 Cents.

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Silver prices again dropped sharply yesterday throughout the world in the latest of the series of bumps which have been occurring since the New Deal price pegging program began to collapse on Dec. 9.

In New York the price for imported bar silver crashed three cents to 45¾ cents per fine ounce, the lowest since July 30, 1934. This meant a further loss of approximately 25 million dollars for the United States treasury, based upon the 835 million ounces which it has acquired since the present administration began its program of subsidies for silver producers on Dec. 21, 1933.

Total Loss 167 Millions.

Yesterday's price was approximately 20 cents under the 65¾ cent figure at which the treasury had pegged silver during the fifteen weeks preceeding Dec. 9. This drop of 20 cents in less than six weeks means a loss of approximately 167 million dollars for the treasury.

Because the New York official price, which is announced daily by Handy & Harman, leading silver brokers, is virtually dictated by Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau, who dominates the market, yesterday's 3 cent drop was understood to have been forced by a lowering of the treasury's official bid.

This blow, which took silver brokers throughout the world by surprice, was dealt the world market shortly after the price in London had been knocked down to 19 pence, which is equivalent at current exchange rates to 42.43 cents in American money. The London price fell ⅞ penny from Thursday's price and 1½ pence, about 3 cents, from Wednesday.

Declined Cent on Thursday.

The three cent drop in New York yesterday followed a one cent decline on Thursday. The drop in London yesterday was the sharpest since January 2 and was believed to have been caused by rather heavy selling there following Wednesday's weakness in New York. Montreal silver futures prices closed steady to 50 points lower yesterday.

Figures released by the department of commerce yesterday indicated that the treasury had been purchasing the metal heavily in oriental markets last month. Silver valued at $23,506,206 came into the United States during the week ended Jan. 10, compared with imports of $10,507,829 in the preceding week.

Yesterday's New York price was only 4 cents above the 1934 low of 41¾ cents. It was 35¼ cents below the 1935 high of 81 cents reached on April 26, and 31⅛ cents below the official price of 77.57 cents at which the treasury purchases domestically mined silver.

Officials Won't Comment.

In Washington treasury officials declined to comment on the substantial additional decline in silver prices. An anonymous spokesman was quoted as saying, "I don't believe we will have any statement other than that we are still carrying out the provisions of the silver purchase act."

Congressmen from the western silver mining states met in Washington yesterday and appointed a committee of five to confer with the senate silverites on the fall of the price of silver.

The silver purchase act of 1934 directs the secretary of the treasury to continue buying silver abroad until one of two things happens—either the price of silver rises to $1.29 an ounce, or the total of the treasury's silver reserves reaches an amount equal to one-third of its gold reserves. Yesterday's New York price was 83¼ cents below the $1.29 goal and the treasury's silver holdings were still 1 billion 300 million ounces short of equaling its gold reserves.

SUGAR CODE BAR TO COMPETITION, SAYS U.S. CHARGE

Government Files Reply in Trust Case.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 17.—(AP)—The government charged the Sugar Institute, Inc., today with seeking "the elimination of competition" in what officials regard the biggest anti-trust case in years.

The institute, a trade association of American refiners of imported sugar, had argued, in its earlier brief before the Supreme court, that it was carrying out the principals of NRA on a voluntary basis. The government filed its reply today and the case will be heard Feb. 3.

Government's Argument.

"The [institute] were not so much concerned with the promotion of free competition as they were with the elimination of competition [called 'individual bargaining'] and the substitution for it of the system called 'mass bargaining,' under which all refiners and other sellers closely organized and coöperating together, are grouped on one side and are supposedly offset by countless disorganized buyers," the government argued.

The institute had contended, the government brief said, that "their agreement to sell only at prices and terms openly announced in advance of sale, supplemented by an agreement not to 'discriminate' between customers, is justified as a means of preventing the secret concessions which previously had frequently been given."

Differs with Institute.

"Implicit in this attempted justification of the restraint [of trade]," the government said, "is the promise that such concessions could be eliminated only by this kind of an open price agreement. The government takes issue with this promise; it contends that full publicity of all closed transactions would effectively put an end to secret concessions."

ARGENTINA USES U. S. GROWERS TO EXPAND COTTON

BUENOS AIRES, Jan. 17.—(AP)—Argentina, which recently made plans to settle North American cotton farming families in the Chaco territory, has increased cotton acreage 70 per cent over last year to a new record of 809,600 acres.

This was announced by the national cotton board shortly after Gov. José Castells of the Chaco had returned from a trip through the American cotton belt, where he made tentative arrangements to bring Texas and Mississippi cotton families to Argentina in 1936. The Americans, under the plan, will be used as "missionaries" to show Argentine farmers how to grow cotton properly.

Italy Applies to Register Bonds Listed in New York

Washington, D. C., Jan. 17.—[Special.]—The kingdom of Italy has filed an application for permanent registration on the New York Stock exchange of $79,275,400 of its external loan sinking fund 7 per cent gold bonds, dated Dec. 1, 1925, and due Dec. 1, 1951. The bonds are part of the $100,000,000 loan which the government floated in this country after Italy had funded its wartime debt to the United States.

*New 1935-'36 high.

New York, Jan. 17.—[Special.]—The bond market worked into higher ground today, with second grade rail issues continuing as the pace makers. Transfers of $19,153,000 compared with $18,211,000 the day before.

Domestic corporation issues kept a firm grip on recovery, utilities again were in wide demand and the industrial and low-yield divisions has a generous quota of strong spots.

Federal Issues Recover.

Several issues of treasury bonds gained 7-32ds in a belated rally that wiped out a somewhat ragged appearance prevailing during the forenoon. The 3s of 1951, the 3¾s of 1946 and the 3¼s of 1964 were popular. Guaranteed obligations did almost as well.

Outstanding among the rail bonds were the New York, Susquehanna and Westerns, all at new highs for 1935-'36. The second 4½s closed 5 points higher, the 5s of 1937 were 6¼ higher and the 5s of 1940 advanced a major fraction. This road is controled by the Erie. New Haven 4½s and Chicago and North Western 4¾s were among other rails improving.

Two Other Groups Strong.

Gains in the utilities and industrials continued sharp. Utilities Power and Light 5½s, International Hydro-Electric 6s, American and Foreign Power 5s and Laclede Gas 5½s were among the strongest in the former, while Childs company 5s and Bush Terminal 5s were bid up 3¼ to nearly 5 points in the industrials.

Foreign bonds were steady but had little feature except the improvement among Italian governments and municipals, which advanced small fractions to more than a point.

American Laundry Machinery.

Investors' Guide: Will you please give me information on American Laundry Machine Co.?—M. E. C.

Answer: American Laundry Machinery company manufactures equipment for laundry, dry cleaning, and textile establishments. It also sells its products to hotels, schools, hospitals, steamships, etc.

It operated at a loss in 1932 for the first time in nine years, and has been unable to report a profit since. Net loss in the first half of 1935 was $149,000, against loss of $300,000 for the first half of 1934.

The company lost $687,000 in 1934, $1,187,000 in 1933, and $985,000 in 1932. Net profit in 1931 was $772,000, or $1.23 a share, against $1,849,000 in 1930 and $3,542,000 in 1929.

Current position on Dec. 31, 1934, was strong. Working capital was $17,959,000, equal to almost $30 a share. There is no funded debt. Capitalization consists solely of 601,188 shares of $20 par common. Dividends on the stock have been paid regularly since 1912. The stock now pays 10 cents a quarter.

The stock deserves a fairly good rating, not so much on the basis of current operations, although there have been indications of improvement, but on the basis of its past record and strong cash position.

Buckeye Copper Company.

Investors' Guide: I have $13,000 in Buckeye Copper. Do you think there is any possibility of realizing any return from it?—K. M. F.

Answer: We have the following report:

"Buckeye Copper Company, Inc.: Incorporated Delaware, 1922, and located at 15 Prospect avenue, Brockton, Mass. The company apparently made an honest effort to develop the property but was hampered by limited funds and went out of business. There is no market for the stock; on Oct. 28, 1931, 320 shares were sold at auction at $16 for the lot.

"The company became defunct and inoperative in January, 1932. It is our opinion that the shares are valueless."

Nash Motors.

Investors' Guide: Will you kindly inform me on Nash Motors? I purchased 20 shares of their stock, of record Oct. 17, 1935, but have received no dividend. What's wrong—G. H. I.

Answer: You purchased the stock too late for the Nov. 1, 1935, dividend. That was paid to stock of record Oct. 15.

You will, however, be entitled to the next dividend on Feb. 1.

GRAINS FIRMER; TRADING QUIET; PRICES NARROW

Speculative Interest in Market Is Small.

Speculative interest in the grain markets yesterday was at a minimum. Wheat and corn held within a range of about ½ cent per bushel. Little attention was paid to routine developments. Final sales on the active deliveries of all grains were small fractions above the finish on Thursday.

A little scattered buying by cash interests and mills was in evidence in May wheat at times. This was regarded as reflecting slightly better flour sales, but the demand for flour continues far below trade expectations.

Winnipeg showed relative strength compared with Chicago. This was due more to lack of pressure from the Canadian wheat board than to aggressive buying, although hedges were removed on about 750,000 bushels which had been sold for export to Europe.

Wheat Higher in Liverpool.

Liverpool again reported a lack of pressure of cash grain and closed about ¾ cent per bushel higher. Australian and No. 2 Manitobas are now selling in the Liverpool parcel market at practically the same price, whereas recently Manitobas commanded a big premium.

American wheat traders are paying considerable attention to the continued relative strength in Liverpool compared with Chicago and Kansas City. At the time the English market closed yesterday the July delivery there was at 7 cents premium over Chicago and 10¾ cents per bushel above Kansas City, the widest difference that has prevailed in some years. On Thursday Kansas City was at 9¾ cents and Chicago at 6% cents discount under Liverpool.

It is estimated it costs about 30 cents per bushel to ship No. 2 hard winter from Kansas points to the Liverpool spot market, but normally good quality cash wheat sells at a premium over futures in the English market.

Crop Control Plans Watched.

Prospects that the government will attempt to control the spring wheat and corn acreage during the 1936 season through the medium of the soil conservation act passed by congress last year caused some comment in the trade, as such action might eliminate the prospect of a large increase in the area.

Closing prices on the May deliveries of leading grains with comparisons follow:

	Yesterday.	Thurs.	Wk. ago.
Wheat	$1.00⅝	$1.00⅝	$1.01⅝
Corn	.60½	.60	.60⅝
Oats	.28	.28	.28½
Rye	.54¾	.54¾	.54⅝

Heavy snow over a good part of the corn belt, which is expected to check the movement of cash grain to terminals, was responsible for the May delivery developing independent strength. May corn closed only ½ cent under July, the smallest discount since late in October.

A membership on the Board of Trade was transferred yesterday at $6,000 net to the buyer, a gain of $200 from the previous sale.

GRAIN EXCHANGE BILL TO GO BACK TO COMMITTEE

Washington, D. C., Jan. 17.—[Special.]—The commodity exchange regulation bill now pending on the senate calendar will be recommitted to the senate agriculture committee for further study, it was disclosed today by Chairman Smith [Dem., S. C.].

He said he understood from high administrative sources that rehearing on the bill has been recommended to consider deletion of some provisions. Attempts to send the bill back to committee failed yesterday when Sen. McNary [Rep., Ore.] objected.

The bill was reported out favorably by the agriculture committee at the last session of congress. Grain exchange officials have made a determined effort to obtain a new hearing on the measure, asserting they were not permitted to present their side of the case at the original hearings.

PRICES OF LARD FUTURES UNCHANGED TO HIGHER

Trade in lard futures yesterday was largely confined to the May delivery. Scattered selling by longs was offset by commission house buying on resting orders at about 11 cents per pound. Closing trades were unchanged to 5 cents higher. Clear bellies were inactive.

Cash lard closed at $10.87, loose and leaf at $10.25, and clear bellies at $15 per 100 pounds. Prices in dollars per 100 pounds:

Rudyard Kipling, English Writer, Dies—Tell How Ellsworth Was Saved—Senators Denounce Nye

KIPLING DIES—The British poet, who died in London after emergency operation, shown with wife. (Story on page 1.)

KIPLING IN HIS YOUNGER DAYS—Two pictures of Rudyard Kipling, world famous British poet, who died in London at age of 70 following operation, as he appeared in years gone by. These pictures were both taken in the years before England entered the world war. (Story on page 1.)

SHIP WHICH FOUND ELLSWORTH ALIVE—The British scientific ship, Discovery II., shown tied up at dock in London, reported the finding alive of Lincoln Ellsworth, explorer, and his companion, Herbert Hollick-Kenyon, who had been missing in antarctic two months after airplane flight.

THEIR LETTER BRINGS THE POLICE—Barbara Evans, 3822 Wilton avenue, and her brother, Jack, whose letter to police after neighborhood "scrap" brought squads in belief kidnaping had occurred. (Story on page 2.)
